PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT.

CHRISTMAS CARDS FOR 1884.

In order to reassure my Customers and the public, I announce this early, that my Stock of Colonial Manufactured Cards is already to band, and persons who prefer to be early in making their selections, may do so on and after the 1st October proximo.

The Designs, the Patterns, and the Execution of the Colonial Christmas Cards this year are alike creditable to all concerned.

Splendid Scenery, Gay Flowers, highly Plumed Birds, and captivating comicalities in indigenous Animals, each and all with appropriate mottos and verses—render the cards highly suited to convey true Colonial elements to the old folks "at Home." They will command a large demand, and the "first come will be the first served."

MY IMPORTATIONS of English, Continental, and American Cards, judging by the samples to hand, bid fair to outrival every period of the past. Any attempt to enumerate, let alone describe them, would occupy too much space for a "preliminary." The varieties in design, in pattern, in colour, in motto, and in finish, are simply legion.

In due course my large Exhibition Hall, with improvements and embellishments, will be open to the public, when the pleasure of a visit will be free to all.

C. E. FULLER, Importer of Christmas Cards, SYDNEY and PARRAMATTA.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS FOR CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH. CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.

The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which, in OUTWARD APPEARANCE, so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.

Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—

1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to EACH PACKET.
2. Each SINGLE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words "John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey," printed thereon.
3. The name Steedman is always spelt with the two EE's.
4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.

It is of inestimable benefit to CONVALESCENTS, WEAK and OLD PEOPLE, and RICKETY CHILDREN, who find in it the CALCAREOUS ELEMENTS—entering into the CONSTITUTION of the BONES—and thus enables children to cut their teeth without convulsions. PETER MOLLER'S COD LIVER OIL cannot be excelled, or even equalled. This is evidenced by the continual awards (nineteen) whenever and wherever it is exhibited in competition with the best samples of other makers. The latest proof of this assertion was given at the International Fisheries Exhibition, London, 1883, where some fifty exhibitors were represented, and fine specimens of Oil, from all parts of the world, shown; but PETER MOLLER'S is the ONLY COD LIVER OIL for which the International Jury at the Fisheries Exhibition AWARDED TWO GOLD MEDALS.

By his process the Oil is perfected in one operation. No after manipulation can restore those invaluable qualities which are lost by incautious or careless treatment: any such attempts must tend only to further deteriorate the therapeutic value of the Oil, and can alone be directed to masking a flavour which never should have existed.

The marked characteristics of PETER MOLLER'S Cod Liver Oil are:—

Absolute Purity — Easy Digestibility,
Pristine Freshness, — Certain Efficacy,

Combined with a very slight but agreeable flavour. In Capsuled Bottles only.

Of Chemists, Grocers, &c., and stores and go-downs everywhere.

Mr. Adger may be consulted at his offices, 131, Elizabeth-street, where letters and testimonials are open to inspection, which must satisfy the most sceptical, signed as they are by persons of the highest positions in society. AUSTRALASIAN POWDER AND EXPLOSIVE MANUFACTURING CO., Limited.
Registered under the Companies' Act.
ALTERATION OF PROSPECTUS.

CAPITAL ...	£48,000
PROPRIETORS ...	TWO-THIRDS
NEW ISSUE ...	ONE-THIRD.

Capital, £48,000, of which two-thirds are retained by the Proprietors for the purchase-money for the process of Mr. Von Bieren and the Property and Plant, and One-third is offered to the Public in a new issue of 16,000 Shares of £1 each, to be paid up as under:—
On Application, 2s 6d; on Allotment, 2s 6d; the balance in Calls of 2s 6d as required, at intervals of not less than one month.
The whole of the subscribed capital of this new issue will be devoted to the completion of the works and the manufacture of powder, and it is probable that not more than 10s or 12s. per share will be required.

General Superintendent: CARL VON BIEREN.
Directors: S. M. FRANKLAND, Esq. | J. J. LOUGH, Esq., J.P. | PRIOR MOORE, Esq. | H. TOWNSEND ROBEY, Esq. | ALDERMAN JOHN TAYLOR.
Solicitors: Messrs. STEPHEN, LAURENCE, and JAQUES.
Secretary: A. B. ARMSTRONG, Gladstone-chambers, 90, Pitt-street.
Bankers: THE MERCANTILE BANK.
Broker: J. MULLENS, 92, Pitt-street.

The proprietors now withdraw the first prospectus, under which an advance was to be made to Mr. Von Bieren, and offer one-third interest in the company, on a purely commercial basis.
The property and plant as they now stand have cost about £14,000, and a sum of about £7000 is necessary to carrying the works to completion.
Subscription is invited for 16,000 Shares so as to provide an ample margin for contingencies. No more calls will be made than are required for the above purposes.
The Directors hold themselves free to close the list when 8000 shares are subscribed for. If shares be not taken up to that number, the deposits will be returned in full.
An early meeting of all the Shareholders will be called, when the present Directors will retire in order to give to the holders of the new issue shares a voice in the choice of the Board, and the number of Directors will then be increased to seven.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

The works are planned for a delivery of ten tons of Powder of all kinds per day, but an estimate on the basis of one-half this out-turn gives the following result on 250 working days per annum:—

4½ tons Blasting Powder at 250 days, equal to 2,250,000lb., valued at 5d ...		£46,875 0 0
½ ton Fine Powders at 250 days, equal to 250,000lb., valued at 1s 3d ...		15,625 0 0
Gross product ...		£62,500 0 0
Less cost—
Blasting Powder, 2,250,000lb. at 2½d	£23,437 10 0
Fine Powder, 250,000lb., at 4d ...	4,166 13 4	27,604 3 4
Net profit ...		£34,895 16 8

A profit of this nature on a capital of £48,000 is ample to cover all risks, whether from explosions or otherwise, and leave a very handsome return to the Shareholders. It is obvious that this new industry is heavily weighted for profit, considering the heavy charges on imported Powder in the shape of freight, insurance, storage, Customs duties, and other expenses.
The Powder made by Mr. Von Bieren in the presence of the Directors was submitted by them to Colonel Roberts, R.A., and J. T. Blanchard, Esq., of the Ordnance Department, and highly approved. Colonel Roberts, when speaking of this powder at the dinner at Ingleside, on the 26th July, said:
"During the last 10 days some samples of the powder manufactured by Mr. Von Bieren had been submitted to him, and as far as he could judge from a really very casual examination, they were already quite up to the standard of what anyone could expect. One of the samples was a hand-made powder that would hold its own with any ever imported. He had seen what was going on inside the works, and had found that they had attained a very high state of perfection in glazing the powder, so that it would not become dirty and rub away. As far as they could ascertain, the powders made in the factory were quicker in working than those made in England. He believed Mr. Von Bieren had some secret, some quiet chemical process of making the powder so much quicker than those ordinarily used. Because of their quickness to touch they would be all the more valuable for blasting, in which a great quantity would be used. The force which he represented did not use a large amount of powder; but it would take from the company something like 150 to 200 barrels a year, and that would be a help in starting."
Such returns on capital as those indicated above have a corresponding risk attendant upon them, but subscribers are informed that the conformation of the ground admits of unusual precautions for confining the loss from explosion to very small and inexpensive portions of the buildings and plant, and Mr. Von Bieren's experience has enabled him to take advantage of this peculiarity of the site to the utmost.
Applications must be made to the Broker, Mr. JOSIAH MULLENS, 92, Pitt-street, in the form to be obtained from him.
The shares will be allotted in the order of application, but no allotment will be made under 25 shares.

TRADE PROTECTIVE INSTITUTE
TEMPLE-COURT, KING-STREET, SYDNEY; and at BRISBANE. (Established 1878.)
We feel it necessary to correct an erroneous impression which has obtained in some quarters that we are about to wind up or make some alteration in regard to our office. We believe a rival office, at a public meeting held lately, resolved to wind up; but we have no intention whatever of either winding up or of increasing our subscription rates.
THE TRADE PROTECTIVE INSTITUTE has for the past six years been a steady success, and was never more successful than it is at present. Our subscribers' roll in the two colonies now shows more than 2500 members.
It is evident from the patronage we have received that we have supplied a want which was much felt by the mercantile public, and we can promise our members every effort to be increasingly useful to them.
No person or firm doing credit business can afford to do without the facilities and advantages we offer, especially at the low rates charged, viz.—Daily Circular, with half-yearly index (including telephonic inquiries), £4 12s per annum; Weekly Circular, and half-yearly index, £2 10s per annum.

GAS COOKING STOVES.
RALEIGH'S "PARAGON" and "VICTORY."
The following Testimonials should deter the public from purchasing the old style of English Gas Stove, which has been proved over and over to be completely useless and highly extravagant as a Cooking Stove.

TESTIMONIALS.
The Australian Gas-light Company, Sydney, Feb. 17, 1879.
Sir,—I hereby certify that I was present during the cooking test of your "Victory" Gas Stove, and saw a joint roasting and six vessels boiling at the same time, with one burner only; the consumption of gas being 13 feet per hour, at a cost of one penny.
(Signed) G. EDWARDS, Inspector.
To Mr. Raleigh.
To do this with any English Gas Stove in the colony would require six burners at least, and consume 50 feet of gas, instead of 13.

Ivy Lodge, Redfern.
To Mr. Raleigh.
Dear Sir,—The Gas Stove I purchased from you has proved a great success.
I had an English Gas Stove in use, which was constantly out of order, and did not cook well. I replaced it with your "Victory," which I have now been using some time, and my cook tells me it roasts, bakes, grills, toasts, &c. to perfection, and is to my entire satisfaction.
Yours, &c., F. LEE.

Hudson Brothers, Redfern Works.
To Mr. Raleigh.
Having purchased, as you are aware, an English Gas Stove with tiled sides, which was strongly recommended to me, and given it a fair trial, I found it did not answer for either roasting or baking. I sent the stove to you to be altered into a Raleigh Stove, and I have now had it some months in use in my kitchen in its altered state, and I think it only fair to tell you that, whilst in its original condition it was almost useless to me, it now answers admirably for all purposes, viz.: roasting, baking, grilling, toasting, and boiling.
Yours truly, JOHN J. WOOD.

N.B.—The ENGLISH GAS STOVES referred to above are identical with those at present offered on such FAVOURABLE TERMS to the PUBLIC.

THE AUSTRALIAN MUTUAL INVESTMENT AND BUILDING COMPANY'S ESTATE, GRANVILLE HEIGHTS.

Convenient to all the Large Workshops and Manufactories.

Right in the very heart of GRANVILLE, with frontages to High-street, Budham-street, Abbott-street, Reid-street, Farnell-street, Cohen-street.

The views from the Estate are some of the best obtainable in or around Granville, and from its proximity to Granville Station, to Messrs. Hudson Brother's, Ritchie's, and other large manufactories, this land must, within a very short time, be worth more than double the price now asked for it.

FOR SAVING MONEY there is certainly no Savings Bank or other means of investment equal to GRANVILLE HEIGHTS.

IT IS NOT SPECULATION, for it does not want a prophet to foretell WHAT GRANVILLE IS GOING TO BE, from its position, as the greatest junction town in the colony, together with the fact that all the large manufactories are settling there, is sufficient to forecast what its future will be.

The Price is fixed at £40 Per Allotment.

THE TERMS are extremely liberal.

For One Lot, £4 deposit, and the balance by instalments of 10s per month.
For Two Lots, £6 deposit (the two), and the balance by instalments of 15s per month (the two).

INTEREST 6 PER CENT.

ASSISTANCE TO BUILD.
The Company will advance 90 per cent. of the cost of Buildings erected on this estate, repayable by instalments of 5s 6d per week for each £100 borrowed.

DIRECTIONS for OBTAINING a LOAN.
Submit your Plan and Specification together with your application for Loan. Immediately your application is granted you can proceed to build, and the Company will advance up to 75 per cent. of the work done as the building proceeds—this is the usual practice, as your builder will tell you—and when the building is finished, the Company will pay over the balance of the 90 per cent.; you will then have to find the 10 per cent. balance. Your repayments on account of the loan do not commence until after the building is finished, and the interest is charged only upon the amounts as they are advanced.
Should you, from any cause, wish to pay off the whole or any portion of the loan, you can do so at any time with interest to date only.
There is no necessity for the land to be entirely paid for before getting a loan to build.
Immediately the deposit is paid the company will advance to build.
There are no Entrance Fees, no Application Fees, no Fines, no Mortgage Fees.
But at the end of the year, if your payments are all made good, you will receive a bonus of at least 7 per cent. upon the amount paid off the land, and at least 2 per cent. upon the amount paid off the loan. By our system the two amounts are kept separate.
Thus, without being a shareholder you will be getting a larger share in the profits than can be obtained from any other society or company.
The liberal manner in which the Company has Lent to Build has so greatly enhanced the value of the Company's Estates that Land purchased only 12 months ago has changed hands at 60 per cent. advance, and immediately this land is sold improvements will be made. Houses will be built, and the same results are sure to follow here as elsewhere.

QUEENSLAND SUGAR INDUSTRY AND THE LABOUR QUESTION.

XXXII.—THE JOHNSTONE RIVER.
(BY OUR SPECIAL COMMISSIONER.)

The Johnstone River sugar district is one of the most lately developed, and certainly is also one full of promise in the future. But a few years ago it was a jungle of luxuriant tropical growth, and to a great extent still is so, as, notwithstanding the land cleared and placed under cultivation, the mills and buildings erected, the greater portion of its rich soiled land is still in its primeval state.

Here, as elsewhere, "the labour question" is the principal topic of conversation in the planters' homesteads, in the selectors' humpeys, in the hotels, and places of public meeting. The universal chorus is, "We must have reliable labour at a cheap wage, or the industry will perish." A planter said to me, "To this district alone the present want of confidence, the unsettled state of affairs, means a check in progress that will be felt for years to come. I know that a mill had been ordered from the manufacturers, to cost £60,000, to be erected in this district, but the moment the present Ministry, with their anti-coloured labour views, took office, the order was countermanded." In another instance, where at present a small and somewhat old-fashioned mill is at work, it was intended this season to have erected, with a capital of over £20,000, a new and more extensive one; but the contemplated action has been checked, pending the settlement of the question. In other instances, also, it is stated that capital was ready to be invested in the district, but for the reason stated has since been withheld. "After all," said a planter, "kanaka labour, with the many charges on it, the losses by death, and so on, is not a cheap labour, but it is reliable. With white men we are at any time subject to a strike, or it may be that the news of a new goldfield, the offer of a higher wage elsewhere, a disagreement with regard to work or such cause, may place us at the mercy of these men. In the midst of crushing, when any check or hindrance may involve great loss, the men may ask for a higher wage; and, if refused, then the mill is stopped, the cane remains on the field, and all is brought to a standstill. It would mean ruin. If we are to compete against Mauritius, Bourbon, Java, and other sugar-growing lands, we must have equally cheap and, above all, equally reliable labour. In the case of each plantation in the district, more coloured labour is required. In some instances I have had acres of land, lately planted with cane, pointed out to me, the weeds growing apace and threatening to choke the rising cane. "I cannot do anything," said one planter, with a despairing shrug of the shoulders. "It makes my heart bleed," said he, in dolorous tones, "but there is no one to weed it. What am I to do? In Mauritius they help the planter, in France and Germany they give bounties to the sugar producer, but in Queensland they ruin him. This could be made one of the finest sugar lands in the world, but we must have the same opportunities as our neighbours? Look at that field full of weeds, well, if I put a white man in the blazing sun to hoe them out he would throw down the hoe in an hour and say it was 'niggers' work;' and yet he won't let the nigger do it. Besides, how could we hope to live if we had to give 15s. or 20s. a week for labour that elsewhere can be got for about a shilling a day? It's not to be done; so take away coloured labour and you will bring ruin on an industry that has already been, and in the future will be still more, a fortune to the colony."

The little township of Geraldton lies at the junction of the main or northern branch of the river and the south branch, which in reality is little better than a creek, with numerous sand banks at low tide rendering it quite unfit for navigation by other than flat-bottomed dingies. The river proper is one of the finest streams in Northern Queensland, being navigable for several miles beyond the junction at low as well as high tide. It is now about two years since Geraldton was founded, and it yet remains in quite an embryo state. The town on paper looks an important place, having streets laid out and squares reserved, and so on, but like many other similar townships in the sugar-growing districts, the site of the future Town Hall is a dense scrub, and palms raise their heads above the brambles that cover the site of the future theatre. The houses built, with but few exceptions, of galvanised iron, are overshadowed by tall trees, and the lookout from the rear of the principal hotel is upon a jungle of tropical vegetation. At Geraldton one is forcibly reminded of Martin Chuzzlewit and Mark Tapley when they went to Eden and sought for the cathedral site and the public square. One day with a resident I went into the scrub, where we were literally "up to the neck" in brambles and undergrowth, on every side being trees, bushes, and palms; suddenly my companion espied a couple of surveyors' pegs. "Ah," said the resident with a comprehensive sweep of the arm that included half the country round about, "this is Hope-street."

The site of the primitive little township is certainly very picturesque. It is upon a tongue of land, as I have stated—the junction point of the two branches of the river. A bend in the stream hides its course, and makes the great sheet of water spread out before the town resemble a lake in a setting of verdure-covered banks and waving cane-fields. In the distance is a low range of dull, sage-coloured undergrowth, brightened by a yellow sandbank near a jutting point. A light breeze ruffles the water, and before it, sailing to the jetty, is a Chinese boat with its rattan sail filled out before the wind. In the middle distance is a grove of trees, upon a projecting point of land, and among the foliage, their thatched roofs just visible, is a cluster of Chinese huts, with a spiral of smoke curling above the tree-tops. In the foreground is the wharf, with a steamer lying at its side, and closer in are the houses of the town.

Geraldton possesses a post-office, a police court, and a curious little lock-up where drunkards and other offenders are fastened to a long chain passed from one end of the building to the other. It has several stores and two hotels, the principal one, a very comfortable country inn, standing upon one of the best sites in the township. Messrs. Burns, Philp, and Co., the Wright, Heaton of Northern Queensland, possess a store near the wharf, and run a line of steamers to the river; Messrs. Aplin, Brown, and Co. also running boats to the district. The oldest mill on the Johnstone River is that on the plantation of Innisfail, the property of the Johnstone River Sugar Company, the principal proprietor of which is Mr. T. H. Fitzgerald, a pioneer of the river. The spot where he landed is a little distant from the present site of the mill, and there can be seen the ruins of the first house he built. The spot is now a wilderness of sweet-potato plants and pumpkin creepers, making a great show of purple and yellow flowers. The plantation is situated near Geraldton, on the further bank of the northern branch of the river. It consists of two contiguous selections, each of 1280 acres. There are at the present time about 220 acres under cane to be crushed this season, and about 60 acres of additional land has been planted for next season. This season's crop consists partly of plant and partly of rattoon cane, the present crop of the latter being the third rattoon. The mill has been established four years, this being the fourth crushing. The wonderful fertility of the rich loamy soil which is characteristic of the district is shown in the fields, where the cane attains great size and height. M. Daniel Dupont, the manager of the estate, who was one of the pioneers of the sugar industry in the colony—his name in Mackay, where he resided for many years, being familiar as a household word—considers the Johnstone to be one of the finest sugar districts in Queensland, and certainly the luxuriant growth of the cane, its soundness, and its bulk, fully support his assertion. Along this river bank one's feet sink deep into free, rich-coloured loam, a very hot-bed of vegetable life. Scrub cut to the ground one year has by next year become again so dense that it has to be hewn into with the knife and axe. The principal varieties of cane grown in the district are Meera and Rappoe.

On the Innisfail plantation the cane is left unstripped, and in many cases I noticed between the canes rows of maize had been planted. Near the mill a group of coloured girls in their bright print dresses were husking the cobs of corn, a great golden pile being heaped before them. This corn is used almost wholly on the plantation for horse-feed.

This mill started crushing on the 29th May the present season, and it is anticipated the average yield will be about two tons of sugar per acre. At first a white sugar was made, but there were so many competitors in that line that it was found more desirable to make the bright yellow sugar at present being produced. The mill is not a large one, and has not all the latest appliances, but nevertheless it does good work. The cane is taken from the fields partly by drays and partly by tramway, according to the nature of the ground to be traversed. The density of the cane juice in the district averages about 9 per cent. Beaume.

There are 40 kanakas employed on the plantation, a number of Cingalese, Malays, and also a number of Chinese cutting cane on contract. About 14 white men are engaged as overseers, mill hands, &c., the wages for labourers ranging from 25s. to 30s. per week.

At the present time the majority of the land under cane is contained in the selection upon which the mill has been erected; but in the second selection higher up the river, about 45 acres are under crop, the young cane looking in splendid condition. The land cultivated is surrounded by dense scrub, with thickly wooded hills in the distance, whence occasionally the blacks make a raid upon the fields and do much mischief.

A few miles further up the north branch of the river, exquisitely beautiful at this point, is Goondi, a native name signifying elbow, given to a selection situated beyond a bend in the river. Turning "the elbow of the river," a most delightful picture is presented: a broad stretch of water in the foreground; a jetty, with a steam launch lying at its side; a sloping bank of trim vegetable garden—here a carpet of the bright green-leaved sweet potato, there, neat lines of lettuce and other kitchen plants; in the distance the river, margined by overhanging banks of fern and creeper, each appearing to meet the other, the enclosed water resembling a mirror set in a frame of ferns and bushes. It is about 18 months since Mr. C. E. Adams, with a party of men, landed from a little boat at Goondi, cut their way through the scrub and viewed the land. It was a dense wilderness, great trees laden with supple-jacks and creepers raising their heads from the scrub beneath. It is hard, indeed, to realise, as one stands by the mill, its busy hum as the saws cut through the great logs ringing in one's ears, that only 18 months ago this was absolute jungle. On either side are rows of trim white houses, offices, stores, &c.; a tramline runs past the mill to where one sees groups of men felling the timber, cross-cutting it, planting cane, making roads, and doing all the work which transforms the wild woodland into the orderly and fruitful farm. Mr. Adams is the resident representative of Messrs. Parbury, Lamb and Raff, who are agents, for a number of persons—including several Sisters of Mercy—who have taken up selections and are putting the land under cane. The number of the selections is sixteen, ten of which are on the north branch, two in the tongue of land between the southern and northern branches of the river, and the remaining four on the southern branch. Six of the selections are already freeholds; on the others bailiffs have been placed, and after fulfilling the conditions required, these selections will also become freeholds. In connection with the properties, Mr. Adams employs about 90 kanakas, 60 Chinamen (including contractors) and about 80 whitemen: the wages of the latter, occupying positions such as labourers and overseers, being from 20s. to 35s. per week. On the selections upon the north branch about 30 acres of land are at present under cane and a quantity of corn has been sown. Further northward, about from 40 to 50 acres of scrub land are being cleared ready for planting. The intermediate selections between the two branches of the river are also being cleared, and a small quantity of land is being placed under cane. On the south branch about 60 acres have been cleared on two selections, and a portion of the land has been planted with cane. On another selection on this branch cane was at the time of my visit being cut, and carried by a shoot into a punt at the river bank. It was taken across the river to a tramline, whence it was carried to the Queensland Sugar Company's mill to be crushed. On the remaining selection on the southern branch about 40 acres have been cleared and roads made. Out of the whole sixteen selections cane is cultivated to a less or greater extent on 12 of them.

At Goondi about 210 acres of land have been cleared of scrub, and about 160 of this quantity are now being planted or made ready to plant with cane. Some splendid timber is being hewn on the estate, portion of it being taken to the sawmill to be cut into planks, and portion stacked for future use; it being the intention, or it had been so until the trouble about the labour question arose, to erect a mill on the estate. Some of the best varieties of wood in the district are the cedar, Johnstone hardwood, white beech, orange wood, &c.

SOFT-HANDED SONS OF TOIL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In almost every issue of your paper lately, I have noticed with interest a continuous correspondence upon the subject of the "unemployed," principally under the above heading.

It is a glorious advantage that, by your great kindness, it comes within the grasp of the poorest individual to express his opinion, and relate his struggles, in defence of the accusation of being too proud, or too idle, to face hard toil. One gentleman relates, as an incentive to others, that he arrived here some years ago with only five shillings, and is now in receipt of a salary of over four pounds per week. This, it is needless for me to state, is an isolated case. How many clever men—men of wonderful capability, men with large families—are slaving—yes, slaving—for the paltry salary of 30s. per week, and have been doing so for years, without any prospect of an increased remuneration. Then, again, some years ago, when this "Five Shilling Gentleman" arrived, and seems to have been so wonderfully successful, the labour market of New South Wales was not so glutted as at present, and men had a better chance of succeeding to a position.

Now, there are hundreds of men equally clever, energetic, and anxious unable to get employment of any sort, and are actually beggaring themselves and families of their last few shillings in endeavouring to get work, as explained in the letter in your to-day's issue. I, with many others, can fully endorse the facts as related by "Bookkeeper," and feel very grateful for your kindness in publishing them through your columns.

But "Bookkeeper" evidently has not experienced all the misfortunes many others have, for not only have some expended to the amount of over £3 in stamps and stationery—not only have they wasted useful time in continually copying testimonials to enclose with their applications, but, where specially stipulated, have sent their original credentials, which were not returned, even when advertised for by themselves, causing an extra outlay; nor that alone, but some have received replies to their letters appointing an interview.

Now, Mr. Editor, doubtless you are a man of feeling. Just picture to yourself the unbounded joy of a man who has been struggling for months, and at last receives what he imagines fortune's favour. Even his wife and little ones are jubilant. How eagerly he rushes to keep the appointment punctual to the second! He interviews the proprietor, and after a conversation, during which he is inspired with every hope, he is told, "You are too old," "Too far advanced," "Want a lad," "Will let you know," "Call again," and upon calling again is crushed on hearing, "I'm sorry, but I've filled the vacancy."

You can easily imagine how crestfallen and almost broken-hearted the disappointed fellow wends his way home to the wife, who is anxiously, hopefully, awaiting his return.

You can easily imagine the sorrow that ensues. Any man has feeling for the suffering of his family, and cannot bear to hear the cry of his little ones for bread.

This almost maddens him, and although, hitherto possessing unblemished principles, he wildly plunges into crime to appease the cravings of his little darlings, and is branded ever afterwards as a felon. Can he conscientiously be blamed? He cannot obtain employment, he dare not beg, no one will help him—what else then can he do? The cry is, "Try the Country." Are there not plenty starving in the country? We boast of British freedom—the abolition of slavery—but Britons are the only slaves now, and some of us, educated, clever men, are not to proud to do any work, yet cannot get it. The few who are fortunate enough to get some little work, to help keep the wolf away, have to work almost as hard, and with as little recompense, as any African slave.

But to keep to the subject. We want work, no matter how hard, and our merchants and employers of labour should meet our unemployed on fair ground. Give us a fair start, and our "soft-handed sons of toil" will readily grasp the pick and shovel and work shoulder to shoulder with our "horny-handed brothers."

In all the correspondence upon this important matter I have not observed any mention of establishing anything to aid the poor working man. Who is the working man? We all are; we, poor struggling unemployed. The working man is the foundation of society; he is the locomotive to the train of all business, and the capitalist is only the engineer who drives the machinery. Yet the working man is the most illused, the most forgotten. Why do not some of our patriotic, Christian gentlemen who waste pounds in banquets, complimentary picnics, public breakfasts, balls, races, &c., establish a fund and distribute a share of their wealth to assist the starving unemployed?

But I fear I have trespassed too far already upon your valuable space. Still, as this is my first public letter, I pray your pardon.

I can testify by my own experience to what both I and "Bookkeeper" have asserted, and, if necessary, can prove the veracity of the statements.

Trusting you will favour me by publishing this, and that it may be the means of affording some benefit to our fellow-sufferers,

I am, &c.,
JUSTICIA.

VICTORIAN TOPICS: MELBOURNE STREET IMPROVEMENTS.—II.

MELBOURNE, SEPT. 29.

In a previous letter the improvements which the principal Melbourne streets are undergoing were briefly sketched. The account given of the wooden pavement which is to replace the macadamised roadway went somewhat into detail, but the other works—namely, the underground drains and the widening of the footpaths—were only referred to in a general way. Regarding the drains, it is important to remember that they are exactly what the word conveys, they are drains pure and simple, not sewers. They are designed simply and entirely for the purpose of carrying off the storm water, which would otherwise flood the streets. No sewage is permitted to enter them upon any pretence whatever. No communication with private premises is allowed except under special circumstances. If it can be shown that rain water or the natural moisture of the soil settles about the foundations of buildings, permission is given for the construction of pipes to convey the water into the drains, but the greatest precautions are taken to keep out sewage. It was never intended that the drains should be anything but storm-water conduits. If a system of underground sewerage had been adopted, the River Yarra and Hobson's Bay would have become mere cesspools, or it would have been necessary to have spent vast sums of money in the establishment of works for the disposal of the sewage. The City Council carefully discussed the question as to whether sewers or storm water drains should be constructed, and decided in favour of the latter. Offensive matter will have to be disposed of as it is at present. All that the drains are to be called upon to do, is to carry off the storm water, which in times of heavy rain converts the street channels into rivers, and floods the adjacent premises. It is believed, also, that under the new system the unfragrant smells which have given Elizabeth-street and Swanston-street a bad name for many years will be removed. It is contrary to law of course to discharge offensive matter into the channels, but it has been found impossible to prevent the practice. The streets have frequently been filled with vile odours from one end to the other through the discharge into them of offensive matter at a high level. With the new drains this cannot happen, for at intervals of a chain and a half gratings and traps are provided, into which all liquid substances discharged into the channels will drop. Impurities therefore, instead of traversing the whole length of the street above the surface, and poisoning the air as they go, will be carried away underground. It is believed, moreover, that detection will be easier under the new system than under the old, since the gratings and traps will localise the source of pollution.

The underground drainage system of Melbourne is confined almost entirely to Elizabeth-street and Swanston-street. These two streets drain all the others, but the bulk of the storm water finds its way to Elizabeth-street, which, in fact, occupies the site of an ancient creek. In making excavations for the drain the bed of the creek was disclosed, so that we are after all only furnishing an artificial conduit in place of the outlet which nature had provided. The Elizabeth-street drain—or drains rather, for there is one on each side of the thoroughfare—extends from Flinders-street to Therry-street, a distance of about three-quarters of a mile. The dimensions are not the same on both sides of the street, and the diameter is less at the higher than at the lower level. At Flinders-street on the east side the drain is 8 feet 6 inches in height and 7 feet 2 inches in width, while on the west side the height is 6 feet 4 inches, and the width 5 feet 2 inches. As the higher levels are reached, the quantity of water to be carried off diminishes, and at Therry-street the diameter of the drain is reduced to 4 feet 6 inches. The Swanston-street drains are not nearly so large as those of Elizabeth-street. At Flinders-street on the east side the height is 6 feet, and the width 4 feet 6 inches, while at Lonsdale-street, which is the northern terminus of the drain, the height is only 4 feet 8 inches, and the width 3 feet 6 inches. The drain on the western side of Swanston-street is smaller still, its diameter being only equal to 2½ feet. As stated in a previous letter the Swanston-street drain, which is a light undertaking compared with that of Elizabeth-street, is already completed, and the wood paving of the street is in progress. The Elizabeth-street drain is at this moment in full swing, and the work is being prosecuted with great energy, for it has to be finished, according to the terms of the contract, by the end of next December. It would not interest the general reader to give an elaborate description of these drains. A word or two will be sufficient to indicate the character of the work. The Elizabeth-street drain may be taken first. As will be gathered from the dimensions given, its shape is oval or it would be more correct to say ovoid. The lower part is narrower than the upper, a form of construction which has been adopted with the object of getting as strong a scour as possible. The drain consists of three rings or courses of brickwork, coated inside with cement. Externally the drain is well protected as to the lower portion by a filling of concrete: the upper portion is simply covered with earth. The smaller dimensions of the Swanston-street drain permitted as to some portions of it a less expensive method of construction. The Swanston-street drain cost only £10,000, while the contract price for the Elizabeth-street drain is £38,000. These two works constitute practically the underground drainage system of Melbourne. Two short supplementary drains are contemplated, viz., in Bourke-street, from Russell-street to Elizabeth-street, and in Collins-street, from Swanston-street to Queen-street; but neither of these works has yet been entered upon.

While the chief purpose of the underground drains is to carry off the flood-waters, and so protect the citizens from the inconvenience of inundated streets, and the shopkeepers from the losses caused by the swamping of their premises, the alteration allows other improvements of an important character to be made. In the first place, the deep channels, which are dangerous to both vehicles and horsemen, but which were absolutely necessary as means for carrying off the storm-water, are done away with. Not only are the streets thus rendered safer, but the width available for traffic is made larger since the whole roadway from kerb to kerb is brought into use. But the extra space thus afforded has not been given up to wheeled traffic. The claims of the foot passenger for more room have been recognised. During certain portions of the day Collins-street, Bourke-street, Swanston-street, and Elizabeth-street are so thronged that the old footways of 12 feet wide are quite insufficient. It was decided, therefore, to substantially enlarge them by increasing the width from 12 feet to 18 feet. In Swanston-street, from Flinders-street to Lonsdale-street, the alteration has already been made; and Elizabeth-street, from Flinders-street to Therry-street, will be similarly treated. The work, which forms part of the contract taken for the drain, is in fact already in progress. The footpaths in Collins-street, from Swanston-street to Queen-street, and in Bourke-street, from Russell-street to Elizabeth-street, will also be widened to 18 feet as soon as possible.

The improvement to the footpaths is not limited to increase of area. The verandahs are to be bettered; in point of fact, they are to be reformed altogether. The verandah has always been a weak point in Melbourne street architecture. Hitherto everyone has been allowed to indulge his own taste, and to give effect to his own ideas whether they were liberal or parsimonious. As a natural consequence our street sunshades have been somewhat diversified in character; they might best be described by the term patchwork. In one place you may see a handsome or even ornamental structure, and adjoining it as ugly a thing as you could possibly imagine. One roof would be supported by light iron pillars, and another by heavy wooden posts. In some instances next-door neighbours were unable to agree even as to the height of their verandahs, and the general result was as displeasing to the eye as it could possibly be. All this is to be changed, in those portions of the streets at all events which are undergoing alteration. The widening of the footpaths has made it necessary to extend the verandahs, and it has been decided that the enlarged verandahs shall not only be new as to form and material, but that they shall all be constructed after one design. Nothing but iron is to be used—wood is vetoed altogether. The roofs are constructed of corrugated iron, while the supports consist of light cast-iron fluted columns. Skylights are allowed where circumstances require them; but this is the only deviation from the strict uniformity of the plan that has been permitted. Every verandah must be erected in strict conformity with the official design, and under municipal supervision; but the cost is charged to the occupier or owner of the premises. The verandahs are now in a transition state. Here and there in Swanston-street new verandahs have been erected, but side by side with them the old ones are to be seen, their posts rising from between the flags, which overlap the old verandah line by 6 feet or so. A curious and very unsightly appearance is thus given to the street. This branch of work is not being pushed forward at present, but as soon as the widening of the footpaths is finished, a general reconstruction of the verandahs will take place.

When all these changes have been carried into effect the chief Melbourne streets will wear a far handsomer appearance than they do now. The deep channels will be obliterated, the roadway will be smooth and clean; the footpaths, widened to 18 feet, will gain in spaciousness and importance, while the light and uniform verandah will be an ornament to the streets, instead of an excrescence. In less than six months, if the contractors fulfil their obligations, of which no doubt is entertained, all these improvements—drains, wooden pavement, extended footpaths, and new verandahs—will be completed, and Melbourne, as regards its principal streets, will have put on new apparel. It can only be hoped that the improvement as regards appearance and comfort will fulfil expectation, and repay the city for the large outlay—something like £200,000—which the ratepayers through their representatives in the City Council have sanctioned. As a closing word it is only proper to state that the works are being carried out under the personal supervision of the City Surveyor, Mr. William Elsdon.

COMPULSORY VACCINATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Thousands of anxious parents throughout the colony have read, and appreciated, the liberal expressions on the question of compulsory vaccination contained in the leading articles of the Herald, Echo, and Mail under dates respectively 23rd, 22nd, and 27th instant, and one can imagine the anathemas privately uttered by Tasmania's delegate to the Sanitary Conference, Dr. Turnley, against the press of Sydney for their fair and impartial criticisms, and inserting letters from anti-vaccinators; but whose letters Dr. Turnley and his school have the privilege to reply to in the same column, which, not availing themselves of, we can only account for by their want of facts to controvert, and having only ipse dixit statements and theories to put forth, they are conscious of their weakness before the tribunal of free, enlightened, and critical readers. To one like myself, just returned to Sydney after a residence of about seven years in London, the liberality of the Sydney press on social, political, and theological questions is noticeable and very gratifying, and augurs well for the future of this important and wealthy colony.

As opposed to compulsory vaccination we are conscious of having right on our side; and although for a time, as in England and elsewhere, we may suffer under the unjust despotism of medical priesthood, as Protestants, Catholics, Nonconformists, Quakers, &c., have in turn suffered under the dominant power, right must eventually assert itself, and the strong arm of the law will not be at the command of any class to force a particular theory or operation upon the unwilling.

In this colony, with its practical, liberal, and common-sense legislators, we have every reason to believe that such power will never be granted for such purposes.

Sir Robert Peel, so recently as 1849, said:—"To make vaccination compulsory, as in some despotic countries, would be so opposed to the mental habits of the British people, and the freedom of opinion wherein they rightly glory, that I never could be a party to such compulsion."

Mr. John Bright, in a letter dated December, 1883, stated:—"To me it is doubtful if persuasion and example would not have been more effective than compulsion, but to inflict incessant penalties upon parents, and imprison them for refusing to submit their children to an operation which is not unfrequently injurious, and is sometimes fatal, seems to me a needless and monstrous violation of the freedom of our homes and of the rights of parents. The instances of harshness and cruelty which you mention shock me greatly. After so much contest for mildness in our laws, are such things still possible in our country?"

Again, Mr. Herbert Spencer has declared, "I am strongly opposed to compulsory vaccination;" and further, "I wish I had known some time since that vaccination prosecutions had in any case been carried so far as you describe, as I should have made use of the fact. It would have served farther to enforce the parallel between this medical Popery which men think so defensive, and religious Popery, which they think so indefensible."

We could fill columns with testimonies from men of "light and leading" in the paths of science, medicine, and politics, in opposition to compulsory vaccination, and yet our worthy and indefatigable medical officer, Dr. Mackellar, so far outran his discretion as to say, "the opposition is on the part of those who are quite ignorant of the subject," and "of persons who are interested in making vaccination appear in a bad light."

Probably the writer has had more to do with anti-vaccinators than the whole of the Sydney medicos put together, and can say, as a rule, they have become so by careful study, intelligent observation, or painful experience, or all three; in fact, they are specialists on the subject, whereas any doctor must be aware that the pro-vaccination laity know as little of the subject as possible, believing in blind faith on the word of "my doctor."

To the charge of "being interested in making vaccination appear in a bad light" we plead guilty; but it is akin to the interested motives which moved, supported, and carried on to victory Edward Lloyd Garrison and his few devoted followers, in the agitation against the atrocious slave laws of America.

Their interested motive was to benefit the oppressed and suffering masses. Our interested motive is to benefit oppressed and suffering Englishmen and Englishwomen, and indirectly all who suffer under the tyranny of the poisoned lancet.

Like the anti-slave-law agitators, we suffer fine, imprisonment, ignominy, and loss of caste in present day society. We spend large sums of money annually, and receive nothing but the satisfaction of having done what we believe to be our duty.

Those are different interested motives and results than which the doctors would have your readers understand we have.

We challenge them to show such motives. Let them show their sincerity by refusing all pay for vaccination, whether from the pockets of the ratepayers through the Government, or directly from the pockets of their patients; let them pay damages for injuries to those they operate upon. We will then think they are sincere and disinterested, and that they believe vaccination is a perfectly safe and sure operation. It will be no greater sacrifice, and the reward will be the same that agitators against compulsory vaccination have. Under the present circumstances it is extremely rich for doctors, who are paid for the operation and consequent attendance, to accuse us of interested motives (pecuniary inferred).

I fear my trespass on your space is already too great; but the convincing statistics of Dr. M'Crea deserve notice. Dr. W. B. Carpenter, C.B., in his letter to Sir Lyon Playfair, quoted them, and on his authority Sir Lyon Playfair used them with telling effect in his speech on June 19, 1883, in the House of Commons.

Dr. M'Crea, with equal success upon his audience, quotes them thus:—"During the Franco-Prussian war the French army, which was not vaccinated, lost 23,469 men from smallpox, while the German army, which was, only lost 263, which would bring conviction to the minds of all persons as to the value of vaccinating. (Hear, hear.)"

These statistics were questioned by a prominent anti-vaccinator, and he wrote off to the officials of France and Germany, and the reply was to the effect that no such statistics were recorded, and none kept during the war. Dr. Carpenter in the meantime received similar replies, and was honourable enough, through the public press, to acknowledge his error in the following words, under date August 6, 1883:—

"I feel bound to make public what has recently come to my knowledge in regard to the number of smallpox deaths (23,469) alleged to have occurred in the French army during the war of 1870-1871, which I stated in my letter to Sir Lyon Playfair on authority which I had every reason to believe to be good. . . . After considerable delay, I have received, through Col. Cameron (military attaché to the Embassy in Paris) an explicit statement that the army medical returns of the Franco-German war are so incomplete as not to supply the total for which I asked."

Dr. M'Crea has given authority to the same error here. Will he be equally honourable and write to the press of Sydney acknowledging the error? Yours, &c.,

GEORGE TOMPSITT.

The rebels at Suakim are becoming bolder every day. The outer lines of fortification made by General Baker are unoccupied on account of the insufficient number of troops. If the railway works are to proceed, the fortifications must be held and extra English troops sent down to protect the works. The rebels within the last few days have carried off in broad daylight, within easy reach of the guns, 56 camels and 54 sheep on different occasions. A house within the lines was set on fire by them, and nightly attacks are made, the firing continuing during the greater portion of the night. What with the oppressive heat in the day and sleepless nights, the correspondent of the Daily News says the number on the sick list is not surprising. Moreover the steamer Loch Ard, specially sent to provide the troops with ice, has been the greater portion of her time employed in transport duties, running between Suakim and Suez. Several deaths have been caused through want of ice. The casualties have been one woman killed and about seven persons wounded.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. OUR NEW ZEALAND LETTER.

WELLINGTON, SEPT. 26.

We have had less of politics during the last month than we had had for a number of months previously, though we are only letting ourselves down gradually, and are yet at a somewhat high tension. On the 29th ultimo Major Atkinson's Ministry was displaced by a majority of eight, after an existence of four days. The debate, like that which preceded the downfall of the first Stout-Vogel Cabinet, lasted only one evening, and was of a peculiar character for a no-confidence debate, the speakers on both sides being constrained to mildness in their denunciations of each other, as knowing it to be merely an accident that they were not at that moment sitting side by side as colleagues, rather than facing each other as opponents, and being also pervaded by the knowledge of a strong probability that a few days later they would be members of the same Cabinet. Major Atkinson and his colleagues resigned next morning, and a general expectation that Mr. Ormond would be urged to constitute himself the medium for a coalition between the two parties was not realised, but on Sunday Mr. Stout was given a second innings, and set himself to the task of forming a Ministry calculated to be more durable than the heterogeneous combination effected under him a few days previously, a combination that had so ingloriously fallen to pieces. Mr. Stout first made overtures to Major Atkinson for coalition, but as he stipulated that in any event the Major should not be Premier or Treasurer, and otherwise adopted a rather high tone, his offers were coldly received. He then offered that Major Atkinson should nominate three members of the new Cabinet, and on the Major declining, Mr. Stout prevailed on him to submit the offer to a meeting of his party. The meeting agreed that, in view of the two divisions showing the Stout-Vogel party had been defeated by 19 votes, while the Atkinson Government had only lost by eight, and in view also of other relative facts, the offers made were rather childish, or, at any rate, showed but a weak apprehension of the position; and it was agreed to entertain no further proposals for coalition. Being thus thrown wholly on his own rather incongruous party, Mr. Stout made probably the best use of the materials available. As Messrs. Montgomery and Macandrew insisted on living and dying together, he decided to put that pair of antiquities on the shelf, from which they are unlikely ever again to be taken. Captain Morris and Sir G. Whitmore, who had also been in his first Government, Mr. Stout left out, and then in a few days he got together the following seven:—Mr. Stout, Premier; Sir J. Vogel, Treasurer; Mr. Richardson, Minister of Works; Mr. Ballance, Native Minister; Mr. Tole, Minister of Justice; Mr. P. Huckley, M.L.C., Colonial Secretary; and Mr. Reynolds, M.L.C., without portfolio. Of these Messrs. Huckley and Tole are new to office; and as the latter is the most faithful of the few remaining followers of Sir George Grey, his joining the Ministry was looked upon as ensuring the support of his leader as much as anything in the political actions of the ex-Governor can be depended on—though past experience created in many an impression (not yet wholly effaced) that Sir George, in allowing Mr. Tole to join the new Government, had some deep move in view, and that he would again play his "rogue elephant" policy to the mortification of the new allies he had but lately denounced (and which does not necessarily follow in his case) with much cause. Several incidents during the formation of the Ministry showed that the relations between Mr. Stout and Sir Julius Vogel were strained to the verge of breaking-point. Sir Julius, intensely disliking dependence on the unreliable support of Sir George Grey, resented the action which had rendered an alliance with Major Atkinson impossible, and the Canterbury Vogelites, though their chief was indifferent on the point, insisted, to within an ace of mutiny, that Sir Julius should be Premier. The Canterbury representatives are as Conservative as any New Zealand politicians can be, and have therefore a natural antipathy to the extreme theories and ultra-Radicalism of Mr. Stout, and their aversion to Sir George Grey is even stronger. Their real inclination was for an alliance between Sir Julius and Major Atkinson, which would put Mr. Stout and Sir George Grey together into an impotent minority; and, had the rupture actually occurred, this was what was meant to follow. The narrowness of the escape was shown by statements from both Mr. Stout and Sir Julius when they met the House, the ill-health of the latter being adduced as the reason why he had not taken the first position; and Sir Julius added that an improvement in his health would imply new arrangements, while Mr. Stout denied that any understanding had been come to as to what should happen in that event. There was no repetition of the "precedence" that had been accorded to Sir Julius Vogel previously, and which had caused much doubt and amusement.

The feeling of those who were not partisans was that, though the new Cabinet was not by any means the best outcome that might have been hoped for from four weeks of rabid Ministry-making and marring, still it was a very considerable improvement on the first Stout-Vogel Government; that at any rate it was a change from the five-year-old Government of which all but its more ardent friends were tired; and, though it was not the best change, that after so much chaos only an absolute certainty of attaining that best would justify interference with the new Ministry till they had been given ample opportunity of proving themselves. The Atkinson party recognised that after so long an innings it would conduce to their interests in the future to show a readiness to take a spell in Opposition, so they let it be understood that they would give the new team the fullest opportunity of developing their policy, and that they strongly hoped it would be of such a nature as not to compel them to make a hostile stand on any particular part of it. As an impression had been fostered that Sir Julius Vogel would do something of a magnificent nature if he only got an opportunity of making a Financial Statement, the Atkinsonians particularly desired not to incur the reproach of the country for preventing that Statement being made and the wonderful things shown; and as there is a general feeling that no one really understands the country's finances but Sir Julius and Major Atkinson, it was agreed that a statement of them by the former would have the merit of novelty and of enabling us to regard our affairs from a new point of view. So it was tacitly resolved to wait for the Statement, which took a fortnight in preparation, and which it was known Sir Julius was doing his utmost to frame, so as to realise the sanguine expectations of his friends and confound his enemies.

The Statement was delivered on the 16th instant, and being worded with much of Sir Julius' old skill, it was heard with mingled feelings. But, as read afterwards in cold print, it was found to be of anything but a startling nature. There was a lot of manifest "padding," of not the best class, and the author had made many occasions, unprecedented in a carefully-prepared written document, of going out of his way to taunt, sneer at, and assume a lofty superiority in finance over Major Atkinson. There was even the assertion that his opponents, after hearing the Statement, would be inclined to imitate Poe's raven, in saying "Never More," as to their prospect of returning to office. Apparently recognising that the Government's tenure of office depended, on account of their own radically different views, and the strength of their opponents, on a policy of negation in regard to several important questions, Sir Julius stated that none of those questions would be dealt with this year, and, therefore, his main proposals were—To endeavour, by further conversion of loans to inscribed stock to abolish the necessity of paying sinking fund (which now absorbs £244,000 a year), to borrow £1,500,000 beyond the £2,000,000 already authorised but not raised, and to reduce the property-tax from ⅝d. in the £ to ½d. Sir Julius assumed that, as he would be able to save the £244,000 of sinking fund this year, he would have whatever amount the supplementary estimates totalled less than £60,000; but as his assumption has been shown to be wholly unwarranted, and as the supplementary estimates are always over £100,000, a way of making both ends meet this year has yet to be found. Probably, the property-tax will not be reduced, and then there will be still a considerable deficiency to make up. The statement proposed annual exhibitions for the encouragement of local industries, and among a lot of generalities and "padding" on that subject were suggestions that frozen mutton and woollen goods (the manufacture of which has been made possible with 20 per cent. protection) should be exported "to India and to the islands teeming with population in the Indian Ocean and Arafura Sea," to whom "New Zealand mutton would be an infinite luxury." Infinite ridicule has of course followed the proposal to send frozen mutton and woollens to naked savages in tropical islands. Subject to what has been previously stated, the estimates for the year are:—Receipts: Customs, £1,875,000; stamps, £527,500; property tax, £275,000; beer duty, £55,000; railways, £1,120,000; telegraphic, £94,000; registration and other fees, £37,000; marine, £16,000; miscellaneous, £35,000; depasturing licenses, rents, &c., £188,000: total, £3,722,500. Expenditure: Civil list, £29,750; interest and sinking fund, £1,559,115; under special Acts of the Legislature, £53,724; Legislative, £67,518; Colonial Secretary, £238,435; Colonial Treasurer, £51,643; Minister of Justice, £117,265; post and telegraph office, £259,322; customs, £79,081; stamps, £27,491; education, £328,102; native, £18,311; mines, £21,308; public works, £740,660; defence, £183,427: total, £3,775,152.

During an able financial debate, which lasted three days, Sir Julius Vogel accused Major Atkinson of "dishonouring" some bills for £20,000 held by the Public Trustee, with whom the Major had arranged that the bonds should be held at interest for a further period, instead of being paid at date; and Sir Julius added that he had not mentioned this in the statement lest I should discredit the colony abroad. The Major has also been accused of not leaving in the offices a draft of a Civil Service Bill he had prepared, so that his successors might take it up. He made an ample defence to both charges. Perhaps the best "hit" during the debate was Mr. Wakefield's allusion to Sir Julius's probable short stay in the colony, in comparing him to Paul Pry saying "Hope I don't intrude—just popped in—off again to-morrow." And in reply to the accusation of Major Atkinson re the £20,000, Mr. Wakefield made a veiled reference to an article just reprinted from a London paper, Money containing an expose of the actions of the directors (of whom Sir J. Vogel was one) of a telephone company, in which it was stated that, though applications for nearly 700,000 shares were refused, Sir J. Vogel allotted himself 15,000 shares when he had only applied for 1000; that two other directors did likewise; that two 10 per cent. dividends were paid in rapid succession: that the £1 shares went up to £2 10s.; that Sir Julius and the two others sold out down to 625 shares each, and that the shares then fell to half-a-crown. The reprint of this article (which was based on the report of a committee of investigation appointed by the shareholders) caused an unpleasant sensation here. Sir Julius wrote a short letter in defence, which his friends agreed would have been better left unwritten. The general feeling is that more is to be heard of the matter, to which friends and opponents look forward with mingled feelings.

The prevalent belief now is that as the Opposition is strong enough to prevent anything risky in the actions of the new Government, and as it has adopted a programme which is principally negative, it will hold office, that it will bring the session to a speedy end, and will devote the recess to preparing measures on which agreement is possible among themselves, and which would be calculated to ensure a majority of supporters. Anything like Vogelism, as formerly understood, is now absolutely impossible, and therefore Sir Julius is not the power he once was here. It has been remarked that in a variety of matters he has adopted a course not in accordance with his former reputation, and which he would in old times have carefully avoided. There is one vacant seat in the Cabinet, which is likely to be allotted to an Auckland man. The proposal to create an eighth Ministerial office, and to appoint a goldfields member to represent mining interests in the Cabinet, is not favourably received, and will probably not be carried out.

There are few topics outside of politics to mention. The disaster to the Lastingham, and the loss of 1[illegible] lives, created the most painful sensation the colony has experienced since the terrible Tararua catastrophe. It seems agreed to have been purely an accident, for which no one was in any way blameworthy.

The Governor can allow himself no rest on the question of the defenceless state of the colony against external attack, and he is once more going to urge the subject on public attention by reading a paper before the Philosophical Institute on Monday. His strenuous and most disinterested efforts deserve the success they do not seem likely soon to command: cause, want of funds, and apathy.

An octogenarian Legislative Councillor, who committed a technical breach of the Corrupt Practices Act, and lost his electoral rights, has been fined £100 for voting at the last election. Through an oversight in the Act he is disqualified from everything but retaining his seat in the Council.

CO-OPERATION OF FARMERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Referring to your sub-leader of this morning regarding the co-operation of the farmers in the Hunter River district for the better sale and distribution of their produce, it is to be hoped that the matter will not be allowed to drop into oblivion as so many have done, that promised when first mooted quite as good a chance of success.

It is only about 18 months ago that the farmers in the western districts held a similar meeting, at which a large amount of enthusiasm was shown, a provisional secretary appointed, prospectuses arranged, and an appeal made for support to all farmers, not only in Bathurst but at Picton, Camden, Windsor, &c.; yet after some six months the promoters came to the conclusion that the promises of support did not warrant their commencing operations.

To make a company of this sort successful, inducements must be held out that will cause all senders of produce to sell their goods through the company, by making the charges less than those usually incurred with the regular agents; and if the usual 5 per cent. commission is deducted as ordinarily, at the end of the year a bonus should be given to each sender, whether a shareholder or not, on the amount of produce sent, after paying a fair interest on the original subscribed capital.

The South Coast and West Camden Company have undoubtedly achieved a success, and paid large dividends; but the whole of the profit has gone to shareholders, some of whom have never sent a pound of produce during the three years the company has been in existence. That they do well is unquestionable; but could they not do a great deal better by allowing a certain amount of profit to each sender instead of keeping it all for the original shareholders, and give more general satisfaction?

Many supporters of this company grumble that the charges now are just as heavy as when sent to ordinary agents; and that, in this respect at any rate, there is no inducement to sell their goods through this company, while others assert that the business is carried on solely for the benefit of a few capitalists, who would be ordinary agents in every sense of the word if they were not kept in check by competition.

It may be argued that farmers should take shares, and thus reap all advantages; but many reasons may prevent this being done at first. But if, by a fair percentage on the capital invested and less charges it is proved that the co-operative principle is of benefit, it is fair to suppose that an increased capital can at any time be obtained from the constituents of such company.

Undoubtedly, at first capital must come from outsiders as well as the farmers; but there ought to be a guarantee of a certain amount of interest on all money obtained from outsiders, the balance to be divided on the same principle as an insurance company, who return a certain share of the profits to each insurer.

You say correctly that a large capital will be required, and the great fault of many companies has been the supposition that a small amount of money would suffice, for any company must expect to meet with a large opposition from those who have an interest in keeping the business to themselves; and the purchase of an established business is not a bad idea, so long as they buy it worth the money, and are quite agreed that such purchase will be of as much benefit to themselves as the seller. They should also, before purchasing any particular business, ascertain whether they could not have a choice; as many agents, if once assured that the affair would prove successful, might be glad to offer very advantageous terms.

With good management and large capital the affair must prove a success, so long as they study the interests, in a fairly proportional form, of all supporters.

GENERAL GORDON'S LETTERS.—Major Kitchener, who is now at Dabbeh, states that he has seen letters from the Mahdi to the Mudir of Dongola and to Osman Digna, and also General Gordon's second letter, the signature of which he has verified. The text of that letter which, dated Khartoum, July 20, and written in Arabic, has been telegraphed to Cairo by the Mudir of Dongola, is as follows:—"Khartoum well. Soldiers and all others well. Necessary to hear news from you." Then in English: "Khartoum all right." The letter was duly signed and sealed. General Gordon's first letter, posted by the Mudir, should have reached Cairo five days ago. This delay is unaccountable. The Mudir of Dongola has received five letters from Gordon addressed to people in Cairo.

HOW TO REMOVE A TORMENT.—Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap (the great skin cures) externally, which entirely cured me, so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever. THE PROJECTED NILE EXPEDITION.

By ARCHIBALD FORBES.

LONDON, Aug. 21.

All through the summer Mr. Gladstone's Government have refrained from any decisive action in connection with the problem of the relief of General Gordon. Their non-committal attitude was not unreasonable. There was no unlikely chance that Gordon would relieve himself, and orders had been sent to him—it is doubtful whether they ever have reached him—to come away from Khartoum if the retreat from that point were physically possible. Nothing, at all events, could be done during the blazing summer heat, and if the problem had not somewhat solved itself before the season should arrive when operations should become possible, then it would be time enough to confront the situation. Meanwhile, however, some contingent preparations were gone about. Professional opinion supported the merits of a line of advance on Khartoum from the sea at Suakim, along the caravan route to Berber, on the Nile, some 200 miles below Khartoum. Before Graham's expeditionary force had been withdrawn from the scene of its hard-won victories in the Eastern Soudan, Herbert Stewart had been eager to take his cavalry brigade along this line, and since his return to England he has personally assured me of his full belief in the practicability of the operation. But his offer was declined; and although that line remained in favour with the experts, it was held that the advance on it must be accompanied by the construction of a light railway of the metre gauge. A Souakim-Berber railway had been a favourite project of the ex-Khedive Ismail, and the surveys for it were extant. Steamer after steamer was despatched to Suakim freighted with rails and other railway construction properties, and preparations for the commencement of the work were in languid progress at the Suakim base.

Just before Parliament rose Mr. Gladstone took a vote of £800,000 to meet the charges of a Gordon relief expedition, if the necessity for it should become manifest—a contingency which he declined, however, to own had yet arisen. It was, however, at once apparent that the petty amount for which the vote was taken indicated the abandonment of the project of an advance by the Suakim-Berber route. There remained the alternative of an expedition up the Nile from an advanced base at Wadi Halfa; and in the course of a few days it became apparent that the Government had decided, if not conclusively, on sending forward an expedition by this water way, at least of vigorously pushing forward such preparations as would occasion no delay in beginning active operations as soon as the season would make these possible, and they, for their part, should have made up their minds to act. Economy may have had away with them in inclining to the Nile line of advance, but yet more probably the better prospect it seemed to offer of avoiding such collisions with hostile natives as might aggravate an expedition into a campaign, and entail military complication, whose issue and whose cost could not be foreseen. Major Kitchener, a gallant and adventurous officer, who in Arab dress has gone up the Nile Valley from Wadi Halfa to Dongola, and yet beyond as far as Debbah, where he still remains, has been forwarding reports that encourage a belief in the practicability of a Nile expedition, carried in a flotilla of row-boats. In principle, at least, such an expedition would be no leap in the dark. Lord Wolseley, now in high position at the War Office, gained his earliest prestige by his successful conduct of the Red River expedition, and he has about him still several of the officers who, by their attention to its details, contributed so much to its success. Redvers Buller went through that transatlantic experience with the chief whose capable lieutenant he has so often later proved himself; and with, besides his Ashantee training, his further conversance with the irregular warfare in South Africa, and his more recent close acquaintance with Arab enemies at El Teb and Tamasi, he will be the right man in the right place as chief of the staff to Major-General Earle, now commanding a brigade of the British force in occupation of Egypt, who has been selected for the command of the projected expedition. The officer whose special knowledge of boat work in a country that first was made familiar to us by his book, which bore the title of "The Great Lone Land," Wolseley acknowledged with gratitude in his "Red River Expedition despatches," will be attached to General Earle's command on staff duty. "Lone Land Butler," the name by which Colonel W. F. Butler is universally known, has a double reputation as a soldier and as an author, and is the husband of a lady who is better known by her maiden name, Miss Elizabeth Thompson,—the painter of the "Roll Call," "Quatre Bras," and the "Balaclava Charge."

Curiously, little in detail is known of the Nile from Wadi Halfa up to Berber. Its course is obstructed by cataracts and rapids, surmountable only in the flood seasons, and even then the passage of the smallest craft is precarious and difficult. There is no habitual current of through navigation either way above Wadi Halfa. That vessels can make good the ascent when fortune favours is proved by its accomplishment by Baker's flotilla in 1861; but his craft spent 15 months in the voyage from Cairo to Khartoum. The first of the known Nile cataracts is at Assouan, whence the tourists mostly turn back; the second is at Wadi Halfa; the third, a hundred miles further on at Hannek; the fourth and fifth in the great bend between Dongola and Berber; and the sixth, between Shendy and Khartoum. But the stretch of a hundred miles between Wadi Halfa and Hannek is described as simply a succession of rapids and swirls, closely approximating in the more formidable places to a regular Nile cataract, which is not a waterfall of anything like sheer descent, but a swift rush of pent-up river over rock worn to a slant. Neither steamers nor barges, it is believed, can be utilised in this stretch of tortured water. But it is expected that row boats can be brought through it when the river is high—and its flooded state lasts on in most years till about the new year. In the calmer stretches the boats can be rowed; at the more difficult parts, warping or hauling will have to be resorted to; and at the worst places "portaging" will be necessary. Portage work is tedious and laborious. The boats have to be hauled ashore, unloaded, and carried or dragged on land round the difficulty; the contents, of course, have to be distributed and carried separately. The "portage" passed, the boats are re-loaded, and rowing, sailing, or hauling is the order of the day till the next "portage" is reached. In the course of the Red River Expedition, from Thunder Bay to Fort Garry, there were no fewer than 47 "portages" to be tackled, and the distance traversed in those portages was nearly 50 miles, or about a ninth part of the whole distance. It is calculated—but the data are not to be depended on—that there need not be nearly so much portage work in the ascent of the Nile, at least on that section of it from Wadi Halfa up to Debbah, beyond Dongola, or even 40 miles further to Ambrikol, the respective points of departure on a march across the Bayuda peninsula to Khartoum or Shendy.

The expeditionary force will probably consist of from 4000 to 5000 men, exclusively British troops. No Egyptians are to be allowed to impair the chances of what fighting the expedition may have to encounter; nor, contrary to the opinion of many experts, are any regiments of our native Indian army to be brought across the "black water" to share its fortunes. The regiments employed will be for the most part drawn from the army of occupation, and four battalions of this force are already either on the way from Cairo to Wadi Halfa by water, or under orders for that destination, and waiting only for transport. Two battalions of British infantry will be brought from Bombay to Egypt, not necessarily to participate in the expedition—although their seasoned condition would fit them for that purpose—but in the alternative to take the places in garrison in Lower Egypt of battalions moved up to form part of the expeditionary force. Another battalion is going on to Egypt from Gibraltar, and a strong detachment of marines will be drawn from the Mediterranean fleet and the existing garrison of Souakim. It is not yet certain whether one of the light cavalry regiments now in Egypt will form part of the expedition, but that useful force, the mounted infantry, it is intended to raise to a strength of 700 men, and it will be commanded by officers selected for their experience and dash. In part, at least, the mounted infantry will ride camels instead of horses, and their duty will be to flank, on the banks of the river, the advance of the flotilla along its course. Already depots of material and stores are in course of formation—one at Assouan, above the first cataract; another at Wadi Halfa, at the foot of the second cataract; and a third at Sannah, about half-way between Wadi Halfa and Hannek. Sir Evelyn Wood, as I write, is on his way up the Nile to inspect and urge forward the preparations in Upper Egypt.

The boats which are to be used in the expedition are being built at home, and Colonel Butler undertakes the supervision of their construction. That officer has just inspected and approved of a pattern boat built by a Portsmouth firm. The desiderata are roominess, lightness, strength, and low draught of water. The Portsmouth boat which satisfied Colonel Butler's requirements is 30 feet long, with a beam of 6½ feet, a depth of 2½ feet, and its weight is half a ton. It is of fir painted white, with twelve oars, and carries two masts, each fitted with a fair-sized sail. An awning will protect the crew from the heat of the sun. Stowed with a full complement of stores for one hundred days, which it is estimated the voyage up and down will occupy—stores, including biscuits, preserved meats, vegetables, groceries, limejuice, and 350 rounds of ammunition per man—there was ample space for the twelve soldiers who are to constitute the crew. The stores in place, twelve stout seamen, quite as heavy as the average soldiers, got into the boat, and her draught was then only 1 foot 8 inches, being 4 inches less than Colonel Butler's outside limit. Two blue jackets will be in each boat to navigate her, and to direct her soldier crew in rowing. Some of the boats of the flotilla will be of smaller size; but some 400 craft of the pattern just described are in urgent order for the Government in the yards of the principal boatbuilders of the Kingdom. As they are delivered, cargoes of them will be at once despatched by chartered steamers to Alexandria, whence they will be towed up the Nile to Upper Egypt, and Assouan will probably be the place of general embarkation.

The estimate is that the voyage, with its vicissitudes from Wadi Halfa to Dongola, will occupy about 25 days, the distance, reckoned roughly, being about 250 miles. The Mudir of Dongola has promised Major Kitchener to supply a number of boats, and send over a 1000 men to assist the soldiers in hauling their craft through the rapids and up the cataracts. Advantage will be taken of a stretch of railway line beginning at Wadi Halfa, below the third cataract, and extending a yet undefined distance up the river bank. This lucky waif represents a pretty penny of British bondholders' money. It is all that there is to show for Khedive Ismael's grand scheme of a Soudan railway. There is said to be six miles of it actually finished, and for twenty-two miles further, as far as Sarras, all that has to be done is to lay down the permanent way, for which the rails are at hand. A company of engineers are under orders for Wadi Halfa to put this section of railroad into working order, and thirty miles or thereabouts of tramway will be found a valuable help, even if engine power is not available. If there be wheels and axles on the ground, as there probably are, rolling-stock of a sort can easily be improvised.

The expedition will meet with exceptional good fortune if it finds itself at Dongola in time to eat its Christmas dinner. But from Dongola it will yet be a "far cry" to Khartoum. To follow the course of the river round the gigantic bend it makes between Berber and Dongola would be to more than double the distance to be traversed, to say nothing of the rapids and cataracts to be encountered on this all but unknown loop. A land march will be a virtual necessity, across the neck of the Bayuda peninsula. Two routes are available, one from Debbah, about 40 miles from Dongola, to Khartoum direct, a distance of about 270 miles. It is not a promising line of march for a force, although not formidable to a caravan. There is on it one stretch of 120 miles quite waterless, and another of 60 miles. The alternative route is from Ambukol on the Nile, about forty miles above Debbah, to Shendy on the Nile again, half way between Khartoum and Berber. For one thing, the distance to be traversed by land march is not more than 180 miles, and the route is comparatively well watered and grassed. There are at least six sure wells on it, and the longest waterless stretch, 60 miles, is not between well and well, but between the Nile and the first well, whence camels and water receptacles would start well supplied. The report gains credence that Gordon has now recovered full control of the river between Berber and Khartoum, and at all events his steamers might be relied on to greet the eyes of the expeditionary force as it reapproached the great river at Matammah, the hamlet on its left bank opposite Shendy. The march to Khartoum would be a light thing, with the river on the flank, and Gordon's steamers carrying the halt and the lame. But the land march, even should it meet with no opposition, will be an undertaking necessitating an immense amount of preparation, and since a reverse would have the most serious consequences, those preparations must take cognisance of the contingencies of having to encounter an enemy in force, and of the delay that fighting would probably involve. For artillery-ammunition, as well as food and water supplies, transport will have to be organised either at Dongola or at the point of departure from the Nile. Major Kitchener reports highly of the Mudir of Dongola, Mustapha Bey Yower, a Circassian, who was one of Gordon's officers on the Blue Nile when the latter was Satrap of the Soudan. Mustapha Bey Yower is clearly a man of no small strength of character. When he was superseded by the people at Cairo and his successor sent up, he simply declined to give up his office, or to allow the Cairo nominee to land, and he conquered. Later, he was ordered to evacuate Dongola, and fall back on Upper Egypt, a command which he utterly disregarded, and justified his declinature by making good his position at Dongola against the attacks of enemies, against whom he has even assumed the defensive, and defeated several times in fair fight. If he be honestly true to us, and exerts himself to co-operate with the British force, it may be that the 20,000 camels which will be requisite for the use of the expedition in the land march across the Bayuda peninsula can be collected. But 20,000 camels are a large order. As for what may happen when the expedition shall have attained touch of Gordon, and delivered to him the despatches which General Earle will carry for that grand but eccentric soldier, he would be a rash man who would attempt a prediction. One thing is certain, that the commander of the expedition will have the most stringent instructions to avoid any offensive operations, and will have it prescribed to him as his duty to make the best of his way to where communication can be opened with General Gordon, and to withdraw with all the promptitude the situation will allow. As I finish news is telegraphed from Egypt that the Nile is falling rapidly, and that even the first cataract (at Assouan) is for the time impracticable for steamers. It seems there are apprehensions at Cairo lest it be necessary to retransfer the base to Suakim, and fall back on the original plan of an advance by Berber. But this temporary subsidence of flood water is no uncommon thing; and the rise in the White Nile, which with the longer course has a larger volume than the Blue Nile, is always later in coming down than that of the other branch. The growth of the sudd about the junction of the Bahr el Jebel and the Bahr Gazal, owing to the suspension of navigation, is probably the main cause of the lateness in the White Nile's rise; but it must come, and the later it is of coming the longer will the high water serve.

A POISONED RIVER.—Much public excitement, mingled with indignation, has been aroused at Guilford by the fouling of the River Wey and the poisoning of the whole of the fish for miles along its course. The mischief is supposed to have been caused by the refuse from some manufactories on the banks of the river having been allowed to enter the stream. The river for days past has been of the colour of black ink, with a white froth floating on the surface. The fish have perished literally by the ton, and, having become putrid in the water, the stench emitted has been sickening. The river Wey runs through one of the loveliest districts in the south of England, and has also for years been one of the best appreciated resorts of the angler, stocked as it was with bream, jack, and trout of lordly size. But the angler's enjoyment is now gone, and it would have driven old Izaak Walton well nigh mad to see the heaps of dead fish which have been floating along the river day after day recently or been lodged in the weeds putrefying beneath the fierce August sun. No one now thinks of walking along the river bank for the sake of health or to enjoy the beautiful landscape, so great is the stench emitted by the poisoned stream. The Guilford Town Council has discussed the matter, but appears to be doubtful how far it can exercise its power to stop the pollution of the stream. In the meantime the inhabitants are arousing themselves, and a petition to the Local Government Board is in course of signature, asking that authority to step in and remedy the existing disgraceful and dangerous state of things.

GEORGE BENTHAM, C.M.G., F.R.S., &c.

The distinguished botanist who has recently passed away in the 84th year of his age, was long known to the scientific world by the solidity of his acquirements and the extent of his labours. He was originally intended for the legal profession, and for a while took up botany merely as an amusement. On the death of his relative, Jeremy Bentham, however (who also numbered 84 years, and was one of the most remarkable thinkers and writers of his day), becoming possessed, of independent means, he abandoned the study of law, and henceforth gave up all his energies to the pursuit of botany. The life of a literary and scientific man is seldom characterised by incident, and therefore we find that for more than half a century Mr. Bentham pursued the even tenor of his way in preparing works on descriptive or systematic botany, and in furthering the interests of the Linnean Society and other similar institutions, giving himself wholly to such labours, with the exception of an occasional trip to the Continent of Europe. Following in the steps of the eminent Robert Brown, who, in the early part of the century, had been led by the study of Australian plants to adopt the natural system of Jussieu in substitution for that of the Linnean method, Mr. Bentham contributed materially to improve the arrangement of the natural orders, and to assist the discoveries of science by furnishing clear and detailed descriptions of new plants. In these labours of love the great systematic botanist enjoyed the cordial friendship and co-operation of Sir Joseph Hooker, and for many years they worked together in the Kew Herbarium, until at length, finding that there was need of some general work to supersede the obsolete methods of previous botanists, they commenced, in 1862, the publication of their "Genera Plantarum." In referring to this elaborate work, which, notwithstanding the advancing years of Mr. Betham, was brought to a satisfactory completion, he observes in a paper read before the Linnean Society, April 18, 1883:—"Some six or seven and twenty years ago, when my botanical workshop had become firmly established in the Kew Herbarium, and my intercourse with Sir Joseph (then Dr.) Hooker, always very intimate, had become more constant, we both felt the inconvenience of the want of a genera plantarum founded on actual observation to replace the already antiquated ones of Endlicher and Meissner, both of which, especially the latter, had been in a great measure mere compilations, and each of us had formed the project of endeavouring to supply the deficiency; but it appeared almost too vast an undertaking to be carried out by a single hand: and Hooker proposed, as the best chance of seeing the work brought to a successful issue, that we should join our forces. Notwithstanding my normal aversion to partnership botany, I saw that here there was nothing to fear from collision, and but little from any permanent separation. . . . I therefore readily agreed to his proposal; and, after much deliberation and consultation with botanical friends in whose judgment we had great confidence, we matured our plans, to which we have adhered during the quarter of a century which the elaboration of our 'Genera Plantarum' has required." Whilst this important undertaking was in progress a proposal was made under the sanction of the Imperial and Colonial Governments to bring out a general flora of Australia; and as Baron F. von Mueller had been collecting material for that purpose during the course of many years, it was naturally supposed that he would be entrusted with the preparation of the same. There was certainly no one better qualified for the work: but as the late W. S. Macleay, F.L.S., and other naturalists considered that the examination of European herbaria, where the published types were deposited, was one indispensable step, the Baron, with that unselfishness which characterises him, gave up his claim in favour of Mr. Bentham, who, from his wonderful knowledge of plants in general and his opportunities of consulting all the Australian specimens which had accumulated since the days of Brown, was regarded as the most competent person to prepare the "Flora Australiensis." Mr. Bentham, in alluding to this matter in the preface to the first volume in 1863, remarks:—"It is a signal proof of the generosity of his (Mueller's) disposition and the absence of all selfishness, that when it was proposed to him that the preparation of the flora should be confided to me, on account of the facilities which my position here gave me for the examination of the Australian collections, he not only gave up his long cherished projects in my favour, but promised to do all in his power to assist me, a promise which he has fulfilled with the most perfect faith." It is gratifying to find that these great men laboured harmoniously together in the publication of our flora, and that after the lapse of nearly 16 years Mr. Bentham expresses himself in the concluding preface of volume 7 as follows:—"It is now my pleasing duty gratefully to acknowledge the handsome manner in which Baron von Mueller has fulfilled his promise of affording me every assistance in the prosecution of the arduous task I had undertaken. He has regularly transmitted to me, arranged for each volume, the vast stores of Australian specimens collected by his own exertions, as well as by the able collectors he has employed, and the numerous residents and other correspondents whom he had inspired with a love for the science." The "Flora Australiensis" must ever associate the name of Bentham with the Australian colonies; and although that work is not by any means complete, seeing that some hundreds of plants have been discovered since the printing of the respective volumes, yet it will be regarded as a monument of his genius, and a satisfactory basis for all future floras of Australia. Though many advantages resulted from the publication of the flora in London, Mr. Bentham felt great difficulties in dealing with those species which could not be thoroughly understood without a knowledge of the living plants. This was especially the case with the genus eucalyptus and the order of the orchids. In writing to Dr. Wools in 1865 he observed: "I am now at eucalyptus, the most dreadful of all genera for the monograph, but I had at the outset begged Dr. Mueller to do it entirely himself, but he had not time; so that all I can now do is to verify the old species, which will be all named in his herbarium, and to give in my flora such a rough account of the genus as is within my power, trusting that he will then give us an elaborate monograph with plates, which from him would be most valuable." It is satisfactory to remark that the Baron has carried out the wish here expressed, and that in his "Forest Resources of Western Australia," and in his nine decades of "Eucalyptographia," he has done more than all preceding botanists to clear up the difficulties which surround the genus; whilst Mr. R. D. Fitzgerald, F.L.S., Deputy Surveyor-General, is now engaged in describing and delineating from living specimens some of the orchids which are so difficult to study from dried plants. The last allusion which Mr. Bentham made in his published papers to the "Flora Australiensis," was in that paper already mentioned (April, 1883), in which, after stating that he looked upon the work as entirely and exclusively his own, he adds: "The extreme liberality with which Baron von Mueller gave up in my favour his own projects for a general flora of Australia, and the great value for my purposes of the very numerous specimens of each species which he had collected into the Melbourne herbarium, the whole of which he unreservedly lent to me, seemed to me to demand a special recognition in the title page of the flora. Mr. Bentham continued his labours for a short time after he had written this paper, and in the November of the same year addressed his last letter to Baron Mueller, giving a short memoir of his life and relating his kindly sentiments towards the Baron. The letter, as quoted by Mr. C. S. Wilkinson, F.G.S., F.L.S., in his address to the Linnean Society, January, 1884, is as follows:—

"November, 1883.—My principal object in now writing to you is to say that this is, I fear, the last letter you can receive from me. For the last six months I have been quite disabled from continuing my botanical pursuits and correspondence, and I now see that I can never hope to resume them. I first began collecting and forming my herbarium in 1818; my first botanical work of any importance was my 'Catalogue des plantes des Pyrenees et du Bas Languedoc,' published in 1826; but I had already written on other subjects, and from 1823 to 1828 I published more on classification, on logic, law, etc., than on botany. From 1828 to 1833 I endeavoured to keep up botany as well as law, which I had adopted as a profession. In 1833 I finally gave up law, and devoted myself thenceforward exclusively to botany. In 1854 I gave over my botanical library and herbarium to Kew, and for the the next 28 years went daily down there (from London) to work, devoting to it six or eight hours a day, five or six days in the week, steadily and continuously, with the sole interruption of an occasional summer vacation of a few weeks. After, however, the tedious winter of 1882-1883 I broke down in my 83rd year, and have done nothing since May last. I had, however, finished my share of the 'Genera Plantarum,' of which you will have received the latest part from Sir Joseph Hooker; and I have now only, in taking leave of you, to thank you for all the pleasure I have had in my correspondence with you. Ever yours sincerely (signed), GEORGE BENTHAM."

It would be impossible in a short notice to give a full account of the numerous works which proceeded from the pen of the venerable George Bentham, or to convey a correct estimate of the services which, during a long life, he rendered to the cause of science. These matters will be fully discussed in the "Journal of the Linnean Society" of London, over which he presided for so many years, and to whose periodicals he contributed so largely. In the meantime it is due from us as colonists to express our grateful acknowledgment of the valuable service which he did for Australia by the preparation of its flora. Since the publication of "Brown's Prodromus" no work has done so much to make known the peculiarities and beauties of our native plants, or to bring together in a systematic form the labours of those who have devoted their energies to the collection and description of the same. In the "Flora Australiensis" Mr. Bentham has done justice to Allan Cunningham and all others who bore the burden and heat of the day in the botanical field of Australia; whilst, in taking leave of his indefatigable coadjutor, Baron Mueller, he seemed sensible to the last of the high respect which was due to one whom the late Sir William Hooker designated "The Prince of Australian Botanists."

REVIEW.

The Mutiny in the Bounty; and Story of the Pitcairn Islanders. By ALFRED M'FARLAND. J. J. Moore, Sydney.

The subjects of this book have always been regarded as the most romantic in Australian history. They supply the place, in part, of the legends found in the early times of the nations of the old world. And their charm still remains, because the Pitcairn Islanders are still a people, though few; and some of them, for the love they bore to their old home, have been carried back from Norfolk to Pitcairn Island. This story deserves to be separately told, as it is in these pages, and to be well told. Indeed, it is one of those events which do not need the adornment that a powerful imagination might lend: it stands best in its own simplicity, and it hardly needs the judicial handling which the author of this book has sometimes given it. Different persons will always take different views of the mutiny. Judge M'Farland appears to think that it was justified by the conduct of Bligh; at least, he goes in that direction. It was provoked by his conduct, but it remains an open question how much ill-usage will at any time justify such an outrage. Many persons have essayed a story of the mutiny, and of life at Pitcairn Island; the author of this book has collected the material necessary. The following are some of the bones out of which the author has framed a history, and of events that will be read for ages:—

The Bounty was a vessel of 215 tons, fitted and manned for a voyage to the South Seas to take bread-fruit tree plants from there to the West Indies. Lieutenant William Bligh was in charge, and the vessel left England in 1787. About October in the next year the ship arrived at Otaheite, where was a good supply of these plants. In April, 1789, she set sail, and in a short time reached some of the islands in the Friendly Island Group. On the morning of April 28, 1789, a mutiny broke out, headed by Fletcher Christian. Bligh and 18 others were placed in a boat and sent adrift; Christian and 24 others remained on the Bounty. Bligh's narrative of the mutiny must be read as the story of its chief victim. He was not likely to know anything about the plot. All he could vouch for was the way in which it was carried out; but he could, and did, add his suspicions of its causes. He alleged that his men wanted to return to Otaheite. He should have known that such a desire might have led them to desert when at Otaheite, but was hardly likely to lead them to mutiny after they had left and when they were 1500 miles from the place. The fact that the leader of the mutiny afterwards sought a lone island where he might never be found, may be named in proof that it was not a desire for genial clime and fond women of Otaheite that prompted the outrage. The mutineers themselves said that it was Bligh's overbearing conduct, an allegation which received abundant collateral proof from Bligh's after life. And the fear that they might not gain redress if they returned to England with their complaint, was well grounded; for the court-martial held on the mutineers afterwards taken to England proved that such courts were as incapable of administering justice as individual members of the service were unfit to command men. The idiotic cruelty of Edwards who took the mutineers to England showed that he was too brutal to be placed in charge of swine.

The interest of the narrative gathers around the Pitcairners. On September 23, 1789, the Bounty having on board Fletcher Christian, eight of the mutineers, three Toubouaians, three Otaheitan men, 13 women, and one child, stood out from Malavai Bay. Eventually she made Pitcairn Island. Here all disembarked, carrying on shore everything likely to be useful. Afterwards the Bounty was burnt to the water's edge and sunk. The little community soon shaped itself into a rude republic, but it was not a peaceful one. In course of time all the white members of the settlement perished, save the man known as John Adams, and perhaps Christian, about whose death or escape there is an uncertainty. When 19 years after the founding of this unique colony it was discovered by an American trading vessel, the inhabitants numbered 35 in all, Adams being the only white man. Their discovery gives a romantic colouring to their existence, and the story must be read in full to be appreciated. Six years afterwards two English frigates sailed that way, and communication was again held with these interesting islanders. Their manner of life, character, and personal appearance were Arcadian, and stories of them were told and read in England with the zest of a real Arabian night's dream. Hereafter they received due recognition, and further assistance was sent to them to make their home more useful, though apparently it was hardly possible to make their life happier. The author has put together in admirable connection the original narratives of life at Pitcairn Island. It is a genuine Robinson Crusoe narrative; and one would be glad to see this beautifully prepared book in every Australian home.

Shortly before 1850 it became evident that the little community must be broken up, and soon after that it became urgent, and had to be done. Norfolk Island, which had once been the abode of another class of outcasts, was selected. The removal took place in 1856; 40 men, 47 women, 54 boys, and 53 girls in all, sailed away from the island. It took 31 days to reach their new home. Pitcairn Island had been thus curiously occupied for 67 years. In the new home the old life has been continued, and is being continued now. Quite lately a chapter of accidents has happened to its people and the government of Norfolk Island. A recent visit of Lord Augustus Loftus to the place might be named to show that the Pitcairners might be a little better cared for, and that with all their native simplicity they need more care.

In 1858 some of the families returned to their early home at Pitcairn, and others again in 1863. Every now and again intelligence comes to hand showing the simple life which they continue to lead. It has lost its romance, but not its interest. The final disposal of these settlers has yet to be made. Those at Norfolk Island may eventually outgrow the limits of their home, and those at Pitcairn Island are certain to do so. The resources of both together will not carry the people likely to arise from natural increase, and even now they sometimes have a hard time of it. They are not the less happy for being poor, but there is some probability of their losing stamina and energy. An eye should be kept upon them, and efforts will have to be made to prevent them from sinking down into the attenuated physical condition of many Polynesians. The author of this book suggests that England should annex Pitcairn Island. No other nation is likely to do it, and if England did it, her protection might not be worth much more than it is now. Still, for the sake of the people, few as they are, rather than for the sake of the little island, a formal recognition having some authority ought to be given. They deserve even more than the "kindly memory" which the author asks for them; and his book should win more. The book of itself deserves a note. It is admirably got up by J. J. Moore, publisher, of George-street. In paper, binding, printing, and careful editing, the whole thing is a credit to those who have done the work. The book should have a large sale, and be prized as containing a fairly full and impartial story of the mutiny and of the Pitcairn colony.

DEPUTATIONS.

PLATFORM FOR HORNSBY.

A deputation of residents of Hornsby, accompanied by Messrs. B. O. Holtermann and M'Culloch, Ms.L.A., and M. M'Mahon, J.P., waited upon the Minister for Works (Hon. F. A. Wright) yesterday, to urge the desirableness of constructing a platform on the Homebush-Waratah railway at a spot about one and a-quarter mile beyond the junction of the railway with the line to North Shore. It was mentioned that the Haymarket Permanent Building Society would forego any claim for compensation for the land required for a platform. Mr. Wright said he had received applications for the erection of about six platforms within a distance of a mile. Of course it was absurd to suppose that the Government could provide six platforms within that distance. He had gone over the line, which was very sinuous, and the grades of which were heavy; in fact, the line wriggled in and out like a snake. The spot he had decided upon as the most suitable for the erection of a platform was about half a mile beyond the junction. However, the residents of Hornsby might rest assured that no injustice would be done to them. It was not probable that any platform would be erected within the next two years; in fact, they might consider themselves lucky if they got it in three years. He would either go over the line again or send an officer to report upon the particular spot where the deputation desired a platform should be erected.

THE SUPPLY OF WATER TO COUNTRY TOWNS.

A deputation consisting of Messrs. F. B. Suttor, Lloyd, Loughnan, Brunker, Lyne, Teece, Day, Combes, T. R. Smith, Barbour, Levin, and S. Smith Ms.L.A., waited upon the Minister for Works (Hon. F. A. Wright) yesterday, to represent the desirableness of the reticulation of towns (for which works for the supply of water are in course of construction) being proceeded with without delay. A deputation had last week waited upon the Minister with a similar object in view. Their representations had been submitted to the Cabinet, and the following letter had been sent to the members of the deputation:—"Department of Public Works, Sydney, 30th September, 1884.—Sir,—Referring to the interview of the gentlemen forming the deputation which waited upon the Honorable the Secretary for Public Works on the 26th instant in reference to the water supply to country towns, particularly Goulburn and Bathurst, I am directed to inform you that the subject having been duly considered by the Government, the Cabinet have decided that the matter may stand over pending the legislation on the Local Government Bill.—I have the honour, &c., JOHN RAE." It was urged by Mr. Suttor that the people of the towns for which waterworks were now being constructed, were led to expect that the Government would complete those works by carrying out the reticulation of the several towns, and consequently they had taken no action themselves in that respect. Mr. Wright had himself, to a deputation who waited upon him, expressed it as his conviction that the Government should complete the works before handing them over to the municipalities. The inhabitants of the places affected felt that they were in a sorry plight, and that a considerable amount of time must necessarily elapse before the Local Government Bill became law. It would be a most unfortunate thing if the works were not completed, as the corporations would receive no benefit whatever from them. So far as Bathurst was concerned, it was believed that the works would be completed within the next six months. If they were allowed to remain idle and exposed to the weather they would suffer great injury. As no one would get the benefit of the expenditure, it would become a question as to who should pay the interest on the money for the time the works were not in use. Mr. Day said that the whole of the valuable security the municipalities had to offer they had given to the Government, and no one would now lend them money on the security they had to offer—that was the municipal rates. Therefore they were completely at the mercy of the Government. A large sum of money had been expended, and if the Government did not complete the works it would be like actually bringing the water up to a man's lips—he might be dry and thirsty and not able to quench his thirst—and yet the Government might say, there is the water up to your noses. He supposed that £30,000 would complete the works. Mr. Teece said that the letter had caused a considerable amount of commotion amongst all the people affected by that question. Fully £160,000 had been expended, and if those works were to stand idle pending legislation on the Local Government Bill, they might stand over for an indefinite period. Any action which seriously embarrassed the people of those towns, was not likely to lead the people to a favourable conclusion with regard to the Local Government Bill. Mr. Loughnan, speaking on behalf of the people of Wagga Wagga, said he had been told that if the reticulation scheme were not carried out it would mean absolute ruin to the municipality. Mr. Combes urged that an order should be given for the necessary pipes at once, as it would take a considerable time to execute it.

Mr. WRIGHT said he must take exception to the statement that the original intention of the Government when submitting a scheme for the supply of water to those towns, was to undertake the reticulation. That was not a fact. He did not think that if the Government did not cause the reticulation of the towns to be effected, such awful suffering would ensue, or that such a fearful difficulty would be encountered in getting the water into the towns. He happened to know that Bathurst, Albury, and Wagga were all on the banks of streams of permanent fresh water, so that if the worst came to the worst the people would not famish for want of water. A smaller town (Hay) than any they were dealing with, having a much smaller population, not only got their water supply, but effected the reticulation of the town without the intervention of the Government, and in a spirit which might be emulated by other places. He had previously stated that he thought that the Government having undertaken the works, they should complete the reticulation, and he was still of that opinion. So the deputation would see he sympathised with the object they had in view. He had taken the earliest opportunity of submitting that matter to the Cabinet, and the result was known to the deputation. He would again bring it before his colleagues. As the Ministry was, however, constituted, he was only one of nine, and had to submit to the majority. If they got the same answer again, they would understand it was not from any want of effort on his part.

RECREATION-GROUND AT MUSWELLBROOK.

A deputation, consisting of Messrs. M'Laughlin, Fremlin, Brunker, and Abigail, M.'sL.A., and Messrs. Clendining and Russell, waited upon the Colonial Secretary yesterday morning in reference to the recreation-ground at Muswellbrook. The object of the deputation was to protest against the handing over to the Messrs. A. and E. Bowman of any portion of the additional reserve situated on the east bank of Muscle Creek as part payment for land resumed for a public park. Mr. M'Laughlin, who introduced the deputation, explained to the Minister that there had been some misapprehension regarding the land in question, as it was not an ordinary reserve, but had already been dedicated for recreation purposes. In those circumstances he thought the Government scarcely had the power to do with it what was proposed. A mistake had been made in the recommendation to the Government; such recommendation was impracticable, and even if it was possible to carry it out, it would be found unwise to do so.

In reply to the deputation, Mr. STUART said it was quite clear that some mistake had been made in connection with the representations made to the Government, and consequently the matter fell through. Another piece of ground, however, had been asked for, and the Government would be willing to resume it if the residents were willing to pay for it. The deputation then withdrew.

REQUIREMENTS OF GRANVILLE.

A deputation, introduced by Mr. M'Culloch, M.L.A., and consisting of Messrs. Noble, Wright, Houison, and Thackeray, waited upon the Colonial Secretary yesterday and asked that the former decision arrived at in reference to including in the boundaries of the projected corporation of Granville some land bordering on the boundaries of the municipality of Parramatta be reconsidered. In reply, Mr. Stuart stated that he would have the matter inquired into, and on receipt of a report in reference to it would give his decision.

WANTS OF NEWCASTLE.

Mr. Fletcher, M.L.A., introduced to the Minister for Public Instruction yesterday a deputation which came to ask for several things on behalf of Newcastle. It consisted of Messrs. Ellis and Luscombe, Ms.L.A., Creer, Callaghan, Britton, Weir, Price, H. Jones, Norton, Ross, Hogue and Riley.

The deputation asked the Minister, on behalf of 12 schools of arts in the Northern district, for a share of the vote granted for the purposes of technical education. They also asked for a grant of £2000 towards the erection of a school of arts at Newcastle, which they would be quite willing in return to allow to be used, free of charge, for education purposes. The building would cost technical £7000, and they already had £800 towards it.

Mr. TRICKETT said that as far as lay in his power he would see that the sum voted for technical education was spread all over the colony, and that the lecturers went through the colony, and he would see that there were some means of ascertaining whether the pupils benefited by the lectures. With regard to the second application, he desired the deputation to forward their request in writing, and it would receive his best consideration.

Mr. Hamilton then drew attention to the insufficient school accommodation at Hamilton.

Mr. TRICKETT replied that the Government were taking steps to provide more accommodation almost immediately.

FREETHOUGHT IN STATE SCHOOLS.

A deputation from the Freethought Conference waited upon the Hon. the Minister for Public Instruction, to lay before him certain of their views as to religious teaching in the Public schools. It was composed as follows:—Melbourne, Messrs. Joseph Symes, P. M'Intyre, and J. S. Robertson; Newcastle, Robert Peters; Goulburn, Fred. Lemmen; Auckland, Charles Bright; Sydney, T. Walker, F. Jones, J. Finch, E. Skinner, and W. Burnes.

Mr. WALKER, in introducing the deputation, said that it represented the views, not only of the Secularists, but of the Freethinkers throughout the Australian colonies, and that Mr. Symes had been deputed to place their views before the Minister.

Mr. SYMES said that he would like to call Mr. Trickett's attention to the 17th clause of the Public Instruction Act of 1880, which permitted the clergy to enter the Public schools and impart religious education to the children. This was a grievance that they thought they had a right to complain of, because the clergy were thus given a right to use State property, which was in effect giving State aid to religion. The next clause he wished to call attention to was the 7th, which provided for purely secular education. They had to complain that religious dogmas were taught in these schools under what they could not but consider false pretences. He had brought with him the Third Book of Lessons made use of in schools, and published by Collins and Co., of Glasgow. On page 22 and 23, the lines,—"No more with worms shall we compare; this is the robe that angels wear," seemed to them to promulgate a dogma. Then on page 32 the enemies of Christianity were likened to "wolves in sheep's clothing," which was teaching children that those who differed from them were hypocritical. By pages 41 and 42 children were taught to believe in the existence of a devil, who was said to go about "like a roaring lion, seeking whom he might devour," and they thought that was very objectionable. To say that Jesus Christ was the lion of the tribe of Judah to overthrow His enemies was objectionable to them as enemies of Christianity. On pages 120 to 123 the children were told that it was two she bears that tare 42 little children who insolently and perversely mocked Elisha the Prophet. They thought that these stories should not be used otherwise than "Jack the Giant-killer" or fairy stories, as a mode of amusement, and they objected to them as religious instruction very much. Then there was the story of David pleading to go against the giant with a stone and sling, and saying that he had slain a lion and a bear; and on the 142nd page a most invidious distinction was drawn between Christian nations and those who were not Christians. It depreciated other nations at the expense of Christianity. Then there was Bishop Heber's hymn commencing "Shall we whose souls are lighted, with wisdom from on high; shall we to men benighted, the Lamp of Life deny?"—which was pure propagandism of the principles of Christianity. They especially objected to this on the ground of what they could not help characterising as false pretences or appearances. This book should teach secular education, yet the permanent dogmas of Christianity were brought forward in it just as prominently as they were in the Catechism. They thought that if religious dogmas were to be taught in State schools, they, as well as others, should have a say in the choice of that which was to be taught; and they also claimed that if religious dogmas were continuously taught in the State schools, they should have the right to carry into these schools the antidote, of teaching true independence and the right of the children to investigate every dogma that was presented to them.

Mr. CHARLES BRIGHT said that all they objected to was this dogmatic Christian teaching with funds supplied by themselves. They said they were precisely in the same condition as the Nonconformists were in the old country centuries ago, and should not be taxed to support a form of religion they did not believe in. It was wonderful to him how the Christian congregations could uphold here what they fought against in the old country in times past.

Mr. TRICKETT replied, that with regard to their present interview with him, it seemed to him very much what in legal phraseology they termed moving for a new trial. He had the honour of receiving a deputation from the Secularists' Association some time ago, and thought that the views he then submitted would have closed the discussion. With regard to the 17th section of the Public Instruction Act, which the Secularists seemed to object to, that was beyond his power to alter. It was one of the rights and privileges given in the Public Instruction Act that clergymen should have the right to attend Public schools and give religious instruction. He had already given his opinion that the doctrine taught by the Secularists did not come within his views of what religion was, but was merely a code of morals; and he could refer to the debate which took place when that reply of his was read. The words of one of the principal speakers then were that it was of no use tiddlewinking or pretending to want to get into the Public schools to give religious teaching, because they were not a religious body. He did not think that anything fresh had been advanced at the conference. They seemed to be pegging away in the old way, and he could not see that the conference or the deputation had advanced anything new. He had merely to interpret the Act to the best of his lights and the best of his ability, and he had no doubt that the views of the Secularists differed from the accepted term of what religion was. He thought, also, that underlying our Public Instruction Act there were no doubt the elements of what, in the ordinary acceptation of the words, was the Christian religion. With regard to those books which Mr. Symes referred to, he had picked out parts suited to the views of their body; but these books were selected by people of each of the religious persuasions to be read in schools. He could not give the deputation any more encouragement than he did on the former occasion, when they waited upon him. He must be guided by the Act, and the way in which he interpreted it, and there was no disposition on the part of the public to alter it in any way. They must allow that they were in a large minority, and they must submit, though they might think it hard, to the will of the majority, and take the Act as it was, however they might object to the ordinary religious instruction provided by clause 17, or the Scriptural instruction referred to by clause 7.

The deputation then withdrew.

THE CAMDEN TRAMWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Attention having been drawn to the unremunerative character of the above work, it is perhaps just as well that a few facts should be known about it. There never has been a public work in this colony—except perhaps some of the bungles at various places along the coast—which has been so terribly bungled as this. To begin with, Mr. Whitton repudiated it, and the engineering was left to somebody or other in the tramway department, who, to save cost, chose about the most costly and difficult route he could find—that over Kenny Hill, following the Camden-road. The consequence has been that the gradients have been so stiff as almost effectually to stop the broken-down motors and donkey engines employed. Three truck-loads have been about as much as any of them could manage single-handed. An almost level route could have been obtained through Ellerslie, and that fact was made known to the department.

The line was made and constructed in a fashion needlessly expensive. The money voted was £20,000, but the contract price was under that sum. How it has mounted up to over £40,000, and what there is to show for it, I am at a loss to discover. It has been worked in a suicidal and perfectly absurd way.

The charge for goods was at first more than carriers had levied between Campbelltown and Camden. I believe it has been reduced, but still teams may be seen taking in produce to the former place, and if induced to go there at all they would naturally take back goods to Camden at almost any price than return empty.

More trams have been run per day than were necessary, or could possibly pay. Can anything be more absurd than this?—The last tram to Camden, instead of remaining there that night and starting as the 9 o'clock tram to Campbelltown next morning, was sent back to that place—meeting no train, accommodating nobody. It returned from Campbelltown about 5 o'clock next morning, when nobody wanted it; started from Camden at 6.15, when comparatively very few cared to avail themselves of it; came back to Camden, and left again at 9 o'clock. Here are four unnecessary trips each day. I could write much more as to the expenses frittered away upon this unfortunate little railway—which has simply been "nobody's child" ever since it was born, but which would, I believe, under proper care, pay well enough, maugré the blunder in its construction—but I refrain. I am, &c., RUSTICUS.

PARLIAMENT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

In our issue of yesterday we were compelled, in order to go to press, to close our report at half-past 2 o'clock a.m., when the House adjourned for half an hour for refreshments. We then stated briefly that Mr. Speaker ruled against all the objections that had been raised by Mr. A. G. Taylor. We now give Mr. Speaker's ruling at greater length, together with a report of the subsequent proceedings.

Mr. SPEAKER, in giving his decision, said he could not look upon the statute referred to by the hon. member for Burrowa as the foundation of these privileges, but the Act of 1861 seemed to him to be the foundation of the land Legislation of this colony, as it vested the power in the legislature of the colony. But wherever the power originated, he held that it maintained the position which he had taken up the other night. Referring to the objections taken to this bill, he would say that as to the doctrine which had been put forward in reference to the privileges of this House—take away the word privileges, call it power or what they liked—there seemed, to his mind, to be considerable confusion on the part of some members with reference to the construction which should be put upon the Constitution Act, and he thought that arose for want of a proper distinction between the power given to the Legislature in relation to united action, and the power each House could exercise inter se. The application of the first section, or of the 54th section, referred to legislation not merely of irregularity, but of illegality, and it was a question for lawyers to decide whether that was implied by the 53rd section. The amended bylaws seemed to him to have very little to do with the exercises of the powers under the Constitution Act, for the power of the other House could not affect the action of this House. The spirit of this Act was to give this House the power to originate measures by message, and not to the other House, and this Act certainly said that this House had always the power to deal with moneyed bills; that it should have the control of the revenue of the country; and if the other House makes an amendment on a bill contrary to such a principle, then this House wisely and loyally takes its stand, and he thought that in laying down that principle he had fulfilled a duty which he owed to the people. He was prepared to say that Standing Order No. 1 gave sufficient power to deal with the amendment. They had been asked to consider that standing order independently of the Constitution Act, but if the Constitution Act made no provision for this matter, if it were silent on the point, it was never intended that this House should drift about in matters of that kind like a rudderless ship. That never could have been the intention of those who gave the power, and he thought that in matters of that kind he should always be doing right to advise this House to look for light and leading to the best authority in the world. With regard to the first objection he should rule that the question could now be put. With regard to the amendment in the last clause interfering with the operation of the bill, it was almost too immaterial for the House to take into consideration, and it seemed to him that what he read the other night applied to this also:—"Those rules, with respect to the passing or amending of bills, are clear, distinct, and easy to be understood and applied in all the cases which may occur. It has been sometimes attempted to extend this claim, on the part of the Commons, still farther; or rather so to construe the claim as to tend very much to embarrass the proceedings of the House of Lords upon bills sent from the Commons. This has never appeared to me a prudent measure. I think the House of Commons may rest satisfied with the observance of these rules, which they can maintain upon the ground of ancient practice and admitted precedents." He thought the House would do well not to regard this objection. As to the objection that the bill went beyond the order of leave, he thought it was quite clear that it came too late. The objection that the bill compounded debts without the authority of any message from the Crown, he had some doubt about; but on the whole he thought he could not sustain that objection. He ruled against the objections taken by the hon. member.

Mr. SPEAKER proceeded to put the question that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole to consider the Council's amendments in the bill.

Mr. M'LAUGHLIN then moved, as an amendment, that Mr. Speaker leave the Chair, and the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole that day three months. He said his object was, and he would make no secret of it, to prevent the bill from passing into law.

At this stage the Speaker left the Chair for half-an-hour for refreshment. On returning—

Mr. SPEAKER said he had been considering the matter, and consulting the authorities, and he found it his duty to rule that the amendment moved by Mr. M'Laughlin could not be put.

Mr. SUTTOR then raised another point of order. He contended that roads were not Crown lands. The Council had made an amendment in clause 67 for the resumption of unnecessary roads in certain cases, in order that they might become the property of the conditional purchaser. Roads not being Crown lands the amendment went beyond the scope of the bill and the leave given, which was to deal with Crown lands solely. Therefore, in his view, the bill having been so amended was improperly before them, and must be laid aside.

Mr. FARNELL said that the roads the hon. member referred to were occupation roads, and were therefore Crown lands which were not dedicated.

Mr. A. G. TAYLOR said that he thought there was a great deal in the point.

Mr. COPELAND said that most undoubtedly these roads were waste lands.

Mr. SPEAKER said that the amendment was perfectly relevant to the clause admitting of the closing of any unnecessary roads. That power was given in the case of the proprietors in fee simple of land adjoining these roads, and the amendment proposed to extend it to conditional purchasers of land adjoining unnecessary roads. He took it that the conditional purchaser was a proprietor in fee simple, and that therefore the amendment tried to make the law clearer as regarded a certain class of proprietors. These objections should have been taken before the bill was read the second time, and he could not think that this amendment could be objected to. (Hear, hear.)

The motion that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole was agreed to.

The question that the Committee agree to the Legislative Council's amendment in clause 1, line 7, was put.

Mr. FARNELL moved that the Chairman do now leave the Chair and report progress.

The House resumed, progress was reported, and leave given to sit again on Tuesday next.

GUNPOWDER AND EXPLOSIVES RATES BILL.

The House then resolved itself into Committee of the Whole to consider the expediency of bringing in a bill to amend the Gunpowder and Explosives Consolidation Act of 1876.

Mr. DIBBS moved the necessary resolution.

The resolution was agreed to, the House resumed, the resolution was received and adopted, and the bill was brought in and read the first time.

At five minutes to 4 o'clock a.m. the House adjourned until 4 p.m. on Tuesday next.

With reference to the division on Sir Henry Parkes's amendment, that the bill be laid aside, we have been requested to mention the following pair—For the amendment, Mr. Combes; against, Mr. See.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

An inquest was held on Thursday afternoon, at the White Hart Hotel, by Mr. H. Shiell, City Coroner, on the body of Bridget Macpherson, who was found dead in her bedroom, at 41, Day-street, off Erskine-street, the previous evening. From the evidence it appeared that deceased, who was generally of intemperate habits, had been drinking for some time past. She was a widow, was 57 years of age, and resided in the house with her son, a boiler-maker. She was last seen alive shortly after 2 p.m. on Wednesday. At 9 p.m. that night two women, Emma Hardy and Annie Donnelly, went to the house for the purpose of engaging a room there. Finding the front door open and no one to respond to the call, Hardy walked in, and proceeding upstairs found the house in darkness. After calling upon Mrs. Macpherson twice, Hardy struck a match, and soon after found the body of deceased lying on the floor and to all appearances dead. The floor was covered with blood. The alarm was given to the woman Donnelly, who was waiting downstairs, who went off to the police station at Erskine-street with the news. Sergeant Powell, who came in answer to the summons, deposed to finding a knife almost underneath the right side of the body of deceased. The knife was covered with blood and looked as if recently used. Dr. Marsden, who was called in, deposed to the extent of the injuries inflicted; an extensive cut across the throat, which had severed the jugular vein, causing death within a short time. The jury returned a verdict of death from a self-inflicted wound.

THE PUBLIC HOLIDAY NUISANCE IN THE COUNTRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It seems now to be settled law for the Government, on the application of any few residents in a town, to proclaim any number of days in the week as public holidays. Two or three publicans in a town will meet and arrange for horse races; one of their number will request the Government to proclaim a holiday or holidays, which is done without any inquiry. All the Government offices are gladly closed; the unfortunate business men must close. The publicans who apply for the holiday of course do not close, and the holiday-keepers are, perforce, turned into customers of the publican. I trust someone will look into the matter.

I am, &c., JOCKEY.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3.

Banco Court.—(Before his Honor the CHIEF JUSTICE and a jury of four.)

MASON AND ANOTHER V. WATSON AND ANOTHER (PART HEARD).

Mr. Pilcher, Mr. Want, and Mr. E. Barton, instructed by Messrs. Stephen, Laurence and Jaques, for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Salomons, Q.C., Mr. Owen, Q.C., Mr. G. B. Simpson, and Dr. Sly, instructed by Mr. G. R. Sly, for defendants.

This was a suit arising out of a question submitted to the Primary Judge in Equity in June last year, as to the liability or otherwise of Messrs. Mason and Elkington, upon three promissory notes for £2000 each given in 1874 to Messrs. Watson and Ewan in connection with a contract undertaken by Messrs. Mason and Elkington in that year for the construction of the Western Railway from Bathurst to Orange. The evidence on both sides was reported during the Equity proceedings in June, 1883, and the issues to be tried in the present case, as directed by the Primary Judge, were whether it was agreed that the promissory notes were to be paid out of the profits of the contract, if any, or absolutely without regard to profits resulting, and whether the letter of the 1st August, 1874, from Messrs. Mason and Elkington to Messrs. Watson and Ewan correctly represented the agreement between the parties. The evidence in the case was concluded yesterday, and counsel to-day addressed the jury.

Mr. Salomons, in addressing the jury, said that although the matter in dispute was in itself important, there was a matter of still greater importance, and that was the administration of justice. The matter between the parties concerned them alone, but the administration of justice concerned everybody in the community, and the jury were sworn to try the case according to law. They were not sitting there as arbitrators, to say what they took to be the contract between the parties. Why he drew their attention to it was this. His learned friend Mr. Pilcher in his opening address indulged, as they would see now, mostly in pure imagination, and referred most imprudently to the fact that the defendants were reputed to be wealthy men, whereas Mr. Elkington was only a clerk and Mr. Mason an engineer; and as for Mr. Strickland, he said that he had nothing to do with it. They must agree with him that they had nothing whatever to do with the point whether defendants were rich and the plaintiffs poor; and the reason why he drew their attention more strongly to this point than he otherwise would was this, that in one of the papers published in this city there appeared a full account of Mr. Pilcher's speech, a speech which was based upon imagination without, as they saw now, one word of evidence to support it. He begged them to go upon nothing outside this Court. Mr. Watson having been for many years a member of the Legislative Assembly, and also for a time holding the distinguished position of Treasurer of the colony, could not avoid making enemies. They could see, further, that no men like these, who had by their own industry and integrity gained the position they now occupied, could carry on a large business for a great number of years without creating numerous enemies, and therefore it was that Mr. Pilcher appealed to them in the way he was now referring to, that defendants were reputed to be wealthy, whereas the plaintiffs were not. How could they possibly, any more than his Honor could, try the case in any other way than by the evidence? He asked them not to go by him, but by the documents and his Honor's view of the case, and he impressed upon them that it was far more important that justice should be administered without fear, favour, or affection, than that either party should gain a victory. Mr. Watson was not applying to the Court for this money. There was a dearer thing to him than the amount in question, and that was his position and reputation. If the jury were going on the mere unsupported testimony of Mr. Elkington, nine years after the occurrence, that this written contract was a sham, and that Mr. Watson had done this wrong thing, where would any member of the jury or the community generally be, and what transactions could they enter into if it were possible that a man could come into a court of justice and swear that a written contract did not properly represent the transaction? The evidence showed clearly that Mr. Elkington took the agreement away with him, retained it from early in August until the 17th October, made two alterations in it; and yet he pretended that because Mr. Watson was a member of Parliament he could not take a share in the profits, and that therefore the contract was drawn in the way it was. Did they not know that the only connection between Mr. Watson and Mr. Elkington was on matters of business? Did they think that Mr. Watson, a man holding a high and responsible position, would place himself in the hands of Mr. Elkington? Although this was merely a civil action, yet it was a matter involving a serious imputation by Mr. Elkington upon Mr. Watson, supported by no one. If what Mr. Elkington said was true, why did he not insist upon having the promissory notes back when the contract was completed? Why did he not, when he was threatened with a writ, write to Mr. Watson and say, "What do you mean by demanding this money? Do you not remember that you were to be paid out of profits, and that the word was left out because you were a member of Parliament, and that the bills were merely given to you to use in your business?" Did they not see that if Mr. Watson had done anything wrong that he would dare to go into a court of law, especially when it was considered that Mr. Elkington was a man who would not be easily able to pay the amount? The very fact of his bringing the action showed that the character of the transactions between the parties was as Mr. Watson stated, and as the letter of contract proved it to be. He also wished to point out that if the defendants and plaintiffs were partners in the transaction, why did not Mr. Elkington, upon the completion of the contract, go to defendants and say, "We have sustained a heavy loss, and you ought to give us something to meet it"? Instead of that they offer the defendants £200. There was also evidence that Mr. Watson did not interfere in any way with the action brought by Messrs. Mason, Elkington, and Co. against the Government to recover £10,000 on the contract, and he asked them, would not Mr. Watson have interfered in it if the relation between the parties was as Mr. Elkington represented? After referring to other portions of the evidence he again urged the jury to lay aside the consideration whether plaintiffs were poor men and defendants rich men, and ask themselves whether or not the plaintiffs agreed to pay the £6000 absolutely. His Honor the Primary Judge in Equity wished two questions to be answered, and he submitted that they must be answered in favour of the defendants.

Mr. Want said his learned friend had thought fit to take up a considerable amount of time in parading some supposed unpopularity of his clients, and the difference between their financial position and that of the gentlemen he (Mr. Want) was acting for. The only occasion upon which Mr. Pilcher alluded to the financial position of the plaintiffs was to point out the absurdity of Messrs. Watson and Ewan lending £10,000 to people who were only paupers and men of straw. The learned counsel (Mr. Pilcher) drew their attention to the matter only for that purpose, and with no intention to insult the jury by asking them to give a verdict for his clients because they were poor. And he could not help thinking that the frequency with which Mr. Salomons had alluded to this question was an insult to the jury, who he had no doubt would give a verdict without reference to the financial prospects of the parties either in the past or in the future. It was simply a matter of credibility between the parties, and he did not intend to say one word about the financial position of Mr. Watson or anyone else; but he would simply draw their attention to the facts, and show why they should believe the story told by Mr. Elkington. The learned counsel had asked them why Mr. Watson had come into the Court if he had not a good and just claim. He would show them why. If the contract had simply been one to pay this £6000 as commission alone Mr. Elkington would have known that he was bound to pay it, and that if the story told by Mr. Watson and Mr. Ewan were true he knew that both in law and morally he was bound to pay this money. Therefore, before they gave a verdict for Messrs. Watson and Ewan they must come to the conclusion that Mr. Elkington was inventing this story, supported by Mr. Mason, and with Mr. Strickland backing them up in it, and that they had come there in the face of this document of the 1st August, 1874. But, on the contrary, their conduct bore the brand of truth, because unless they were thoroughly convinced that this was an attempt on the part of Messrs. Watson and Ewan to get money out of them, they would never have dared to come here and trump up a case. Referring to the question of whether Mr. Strickland was a partner, he pointed out that all the circumstances pointed to the fact that he was not. That question was not at issue in this case, but it had become important in order to see which side was telling the truth. A great deal of importance was attached by Messrs. Watson and Ewan to the bills, and they tried to make out that they represented the money which they were to be paid upon the termination of the contract. But they must remember that the contract was not to be completed for three years, and yet defendants made out the bills at 12, 18, and 24 months. Why did they do that, unless it was that they knew that they could lodge them in the bank, and draw against them? That was why Mr. Watson said to Mr. Elkington, "I want them." These bills were renewed from time to time, and they made them at four months' currency because they knew that they could meet them more easily. But directly it became transparent that there was to be no profit from the contract they stopped the renewals, knowing that it was useless to bother about them any more. Subsequently, finding that Mr. Mason had got into a better position, and thinking that they could bring in Mr. Strickland as a partner, they issued a writ and tried to drag Mr. Strickland in. The evidence showed that having got these people into their clutches by securing the promissory notes, they thought they would try to screw something out of them, and in order to do this they went at Mr. Strickland on the eve of his departure for England, so that they could compel him to pay something. He reminded them that they had nothing whatever to do with the other trial, but he had a perfect right to ask Mr. Watson whether he did not give his evidence in the former trial in exactly the same way, and the jury did not disbelieve him and come to the conclusion that he was not a witness of truth. That verdict might have been entirely wrong, but that had nothing to do with the jury in the present case, and they had nothing to do with the fact that the Judge granted a new trial on the ground that the verdict was against evidence. It might be, seeing that it was a matter in which great public interest was involved, and that Messrs. Watson and Ewan were the head of a large mercantile business, and moving in high circles, that his Honor thought it advisable that another jury should have an opportunity of endorsing or rejecting the verdict which the other jury came to. That had nothing to do with them; but what he submitted to them had something to do with it, and it was this—that Mr. Watson, backed up by his wealth, and by Mr. M'Ewan and Mr. Rouse, could not induce the other jury to believe his version of the transaction, namely, that any man in the world would have paid £6000 simply for the loan of another person's name for £10,000 on the understanding that he was to pay this money, come good come bad. If the jury could not make up their minds to believe the evidence on either side, then they must look at the probabilities of the case, and say whether this was an ordinary mercantile transaction, or did it bear a suspicious appearance, which would take it out of the category of an ordinary transaction? Was it an ordinary transaction, or was it a case of a person going in to get a share of the proceeds of a contract and getting a very much higher rate of interest than he otherwise would have got? He thought the transaction was one of the latter class, and for that reason he submitted that the verdict ought to be for his clients.

His HONOR, in summing up, said there had unfortunately been a great conflict of evidence in this case. They had had men occupying influential positions deliberately contradicting one another, and saying that the statements made on the other side were entirely untrue, utterly false, and without foundation. It was an unpleasant thing for any man to decide authoritatively which side was telling the truth in a case such as this, either distinctly or by necessary implication. The jury, however, had to discharge that duty, because they could not get rid of the two questions submitted to them by simply finding for the defendant, as in an ordinary case, as had been erroneously suggested. They would have to come to a conclusion as to which side the balance of evidence inclined. The jury might think that where there was a written document which made out the case for the defendants the burden would lie upon the plaintiffs to show that that written contract did not truly represent what the agreement was. Where there was a written contract, that, generally speaking, was the best evidence. Two centuries ago the Statute of Frauds was passed, in order to prevent perjuries and frauds, which were so numerous that the Legislature had to interfere and declare that a vast number of contracts which were made in everyday life could not be enforced unless they were in writing. In the contract in question there was nothing about profits, nor was there anything to the effect that in the event of profits not being made the defendants were not to receive any remuneration. The plaintiffs, however, said that this contract did not truly represent the agreement, therefore the burden of proof lay upon them to make that out. Mr. Elkington's version was that he asked Mr. Watson to back them. That word "back" did not mean an invitation to join them in the transaction, but rather something different. In order to show some reason why the true nature of the arrangement was not what the document showed it to be, reference had been made to the 28th section, Constitution Act of the colony, which renders among other persons disqualified from holding seats in Parliament any one who shall directly or indirectly undertake, execute, hold, or enjoy, in the whole or in part, any contract or agreement for or on account of the public service. He saw nothing whatever in this statement of Mr. Elkington's to show that Mr. Watson or Mr. Ewan, or both of them, undertook, executed, held, or enjoyed any work of this kind. He did not understand it to be contended on behalf of the plaintiffs that Messrs. Watson and Ewan became partners in the transaction, and that was the only way in which they could become contractors to the Government for this work. They had not joined in the tender or in the bond which was required by the Government. As far as the merits of the case went it was of no importance whether they were partners or not. Supposing it was agreed by Mr. Watson, in so many words, that he was to receive a fixed sum, that would not have brought him within the Constitution Act at all. If a man agreed to receive a fixed sum out of the profits, that did not make him a partner; it was only a mode of payment. Mr. Watson might have let it appear before the world that he had made a stipulation of this kind without violating the Constitution Act. It was suggested that he might have thought that he would incur the disqualification and penalties referred to under the Constitution Act, and that that was the reason why what was really agreed upon did not appear. This, however, was only a matter of surmise. On one side they had Mr. Watson's oath, supported by the document, and on the other Mr. Elkington's oath supported by this suggestion. They would have to consider the probabilities of the case. The liability was a large one, for £10,000 was a considerable sum even to wealthy people, and it was incurred to enable the firm to carry out a railway contract which involved a probable expenditure of nearly £200,000. As men of the world they would perhaps have no difficulty in thinking that contracts of this kind were liable to different results. Labour might be more plentiful at one time than at another, and provisions might increase in price. The wages might be considered too little by the persons by whose hands alone work of this kind could be done, and they might strike. Thus a contractor might be called upon to pay a higher sum than he estimated, or have to submit to the penalties for loss of time. Then there were other contingencies to be kept in view which arose from the physical conditions of the country, such as the cutting down of hills and mountains, excavations in places, and the formation of bridges. All these might prove to be more difficult than was at first anticipated. So far from making a profit, there was a chance in everything of this sort of a considerable loss. To a certain extent a work of this kind was a lottery. It was said that defendants would be more likely to enter into this matter if they were to be paid out of the profits than absolutely. If they were only to get a fixed sum of £6000 it was for the jury to say which was the more likely. He did not think he was going beyond his province when he said that it was obviously better for the defendants to get a fixed sum absolutely than be only entitled to get it if there was a profit. The case for the plaintiffs was that the probabilities were in favour of their view. He could see no advantage in having the agreement drawn up in that way rather than absolutely. Then it was suggested that the amount was so large that the plaintiffs would not have made an agreement of that kind unless it was to come out of the profits. As to this being a large sum they would have to consider, bearing in mind the suggestion he had already thrown out as to the uncertain character of contracts of this description, whether the liability being so large was one which a careful prudent person would not require to be well remunerated for. It was not an ordinary case of a business man asking another for a guarantee at the bank. The commission charged for a guarantee of that kind was not very large—he believed 2½ per cent.—but here the plaintiffs wanted a guarantee of £10,000 to enable them to enter upon a work of magnitude the issue of which was to some extent uncertain. Was it likely that a person giving a guarantee in such a case would not require to be well paid? However, whether it was large or otherwise was not the question, because if people choose to make contracts of this kind they must abide by them. Then it was said that the amount was so large that it raised a probability in favour of plaintiffs' story, but the answer to that was that there was the written contract. Still, there was this suggestion of the amount being a large one, and it might be that the jury would think it sufficient to outweigh what was agreed between the parties. After referring to the surrounding circumstances, his Honor went on to say that it was for the jury to say whether the fact of defendants allowing plaintiffs to draw £5000 without security of any kind made the story about the remuneration coming out of profits, and not absolutely, more reliable than it otherwise would be. The defendants paid £5000 on the faith of the honesty and integrity of the persons whom they were to guarantee. No doubt they must have had great trust in the persons to whom they gave the credit to induce them to allow them to draw £5000 without security. And even after the bond was signed no agreement was signed until some time afterwards. It was signed on the 17th October, and therefore until that date they had nothing to show any security. That showed that they had extreme confidence in these two persons, for they had no hold upon them until the agreement was drawn up and signed. It might be asked, where was the necessity for this agreement when the promissory notes would suffice? but he thought if there was an agreement of this kind it seemed reasonable that the whole thing should be committed to writing. If it were not so, and the defendants merely had these promissory notes which were renewed from time to time, it would be difficult to prove consideration, and therefore it was important that the plaintiffs, as well as the defendants, should know what the terms were. There were stipulations on both sides, and the suggestion did not go for much, that there was no necessity to sign the contract, as the promissory notes would suffice. If there was an agreement, it was proper that it should be put into writing. It was said on behalf of plaintiffs that the notes were kept a long time without any attempt to enforce them. According to the agreement they could not enforce them until the contract was completed, and they were kept for a long time afterwards. They had heard that on this contract there was a loss of £10,000. Messrs. Mason, Elkington, and Co. lost their plant and materials from the previous contract, worth about £6000. They bought some additional plant, and altogether it cost £10,000. They lost that, and they had only £150 remaining, which was not out of profits. That was their position, and the jury would have to take that into account in saying whether there was anything peculiar in the position of defendants in holding over these notes until the Statute of Limitations had nearly run out. It might be that plaintiffs having made a loss upon the contract the defendants did not see their way to enforce payment, and that they would wait. However, that was mere surmise, and a part of the circumstances of the case which the jury would take into account, and attach such weight to it as they might think fit. Then it was said that there was no occasion for plaintiffs to have paid this exorbitant amount, as one of the parties was worth between £3000 and £4000 and another £10,000. These estimates, however, were too vague to be relied upon; but even supposing that they were worth these sums, it was not likely that a bank would accept the guarantee of a person worth only £10,000 for a bond of £10,000. They would want considerably more than that sum. After all it came to this, whether the jury believed that plaintiffs expected to make a profit of £30,000, and whether defendants would rather have a payment of £6000 certain, or a possible one-third of a larger sum. Mr. Ewan and Mr. Watson said that the contract was for £6000 certain, and that was a question which the jury would have to consider. They would have to answer the questions whether the amount was to be paid absolutely or out of profits; and, secondly, whether the written agreement truly set forth what the parties meant. It was stated on behalf of plaintiffs that although Mr. Elkington signed the contract, there was an agreement of a different character: in other words, that there was a verbal statement which outweighed the written agreement, and the jury would have to consider the evidence upon that point. There were a great number of collateral facts which had no bearing upon this case, and in regard to Mr. Strickland it was perfectly immaterial whether or not he was a member of this firm, except in so far as it might affect the evidence of Mr. John Watson, who certainly swore with curious exactitude to a conversation occurring many years ago. If they considered that the evidence of Mr. James Watson, borne out by the letter signed by plaintiffs, was outweighed by a surmise to which he had called their attention, then they would have to consider whether the evidence of Mr. John Watson should be taken into account. If they thought the suggestion thrown out, that the money was to be paid out of profits, did militate against the contracts, then they would have to consider the evidence of Mr. John Watson as corroborating his brother James. Of course, the jury would be guided by the evidence, and not by anything which might be said by counsel before the facts were placed before them. They must bear in mind the importance of putting contracts in writing, and that the burden of proof lay upon the persons who signed the contract to show it to be other than that which was agreed to.

The jury retired at a quarter past 3 o'clock, and at 10 minutes past past 4 o'clock, found that the £6000 was to be paid absolutely, and not out of the profits, and that the letter of the 1st August, 1874, correctly represented the agreement between the parties.

The Court then adjourned till Tuesday.

In the report of the evidence published yesterday the date of the letter of agreement is incorrectly stated. It should be August 1st, 1874. The "John Fraser and Co." mentioned in Mr. Elkington's evidence should be "John Frazer and Co.;" and the signature book referred to by Mr. Neill, manager of the City Bank, was one of 1874, not 1884.

Jury Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice FAUCETT and a jury of four.)

JESSON V. GORNALL (PART HEARD).

Mr. M. H. Stephen, Q.C., and Mr. Heydon, instructed by Mr. T. M. Williamson, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Rogers and Mr. Reid, instructed by Mr. G. R. Sly, for the defendant.

This was an action brought by Charles Jesson, Mayor of the Borough of Alexandria, against Peter Gornall, publisher of the Redfern and Suburban Times, for libel and slander appearing in an article published in defendant's paper of the 14th June of the present year, under the heading "A Drooping Borough," in which plaintiff was described as being so weak and vacillating as not only to obstruct progress, but apparently undo the good that had been done. He was also referred to as dogmatic and churlish as chairman, setting his foot on those who did not give way to or agree with him, and that so slight was the confidence of the aldermen in him that his rulings were frequently challenged. A paragraph in the same issue was included in the declaration as referring in libellous terms to plaintiff's conduct on one occasion in the Redfern Police Court. £500 damages were claimed.

A large number of witnesses were called on behalf of the plaintiff, and gave evidence as to the estimation in which he was held, and denied the correctness of the articles complained of.

Evidence for the defence was being called when the Court adjourned.

In Chambers.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice FAUCETT.)

ALLEN V. THE BOROUGH OF ST. LEONARDS.

Mr. E. P. Field, instructed by Mr. C. B. Pitt, moved for a rule nisi in this District Court appeal. The plaintiff had brought an action for trespass in consequence of the defendants having pulled down a fence which it was admitted encroached one foot upon Ridge-street. The Judge, in nonsuiting the plaintiff, held that the defendants had power to remove the fence under their common-law right to abate a nuisance. The grounds upon which the application was made were that the council had no right to remove that fence apart from those conferred upon them by the statute, and that the 136th section of the Municipalities Act also provided for a course of procedure before the right of entry arose, which course had not been taken in the present case.

His HONOR granted the rule, and made it returnable on the first Friday in term.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

FRIDAY.

The Metropolitan Quarter Sessions were resumed at Darlinghurst, this morning. The bench was occupied by Mr. District Court Judge Forbes. Mr. Irving prosecuted for the Crown.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Mary Ann Tanner pleaded guilty to having attempted to commit suicide. She appeared to have suffered much mental distress in consequence of domestic anxiety. Evidence of her previous good character was produced, and as she expressed regret for her action she was released upon a bond to be of good behaviour in future.

LARCENY.

John Spencer, a young man, was charged with having on May 11 stolen two finger-rings, three shirt-studs, two sleeve-links, and £16 in money, the property of C. G. J. H. Steinheiner. Prosecutor's statement was to the effect that he was licensee of the Prince of Wales Hotel, Raglan-street. On the day in question the goods and money were stolen from his premises, and on that occasion prisoner was staying there. It was proved that prisoner had taken one of the rings to a jeweller's shop that it might be altered, and this was the principal evidence against him. John Mauser found the other ring, and Alfred Matthews two studs and another article, under some logs in Prince Alfred Park. Prisoner was found guilty. He produced evidence of previous good character, and it was proved that he had not passed through the hands of the police before. The Judge sentenced him to be imprisoned for 12 months.

OBSTRUCTING THE POLICE.

Edward Rowland, Percy Barker, James Duffy, and Alfred Barker were charged with having on September 8 unlawfully obstructed Constable John R. Gorman in the execution of his duty, also with having assaulted the police. Mr. Davies, instructed by Mr. Richards, defended the prisoners. It appeared that on the night in question prosecutor was in a public-house at the corner of Yurong and Stanley streets, where he had gone to arrest a man named Arthur Curran, who is charged with having assaulted a woman. A crowd gathered in the vicinity, and when they saw Curran in custody they apparently made up their mind to effect a rescue, and they commenced operations by stoning the hotel to which they did damage to the extent of £15 or £20. Prosecutor and another constable named Charles left the hotel with Curran in their charge, and they no sooner made an appearance in the street than the crowd commenced jostling and throwing stones at them. Eventually the three men were forced down Chapel-lane, and here Gorman was knocked senseless with a stone, and Charles also was assaulted. Curran effected his escape and was not recaptured. Gorman was conveyed to the Infirmary, and was laid up for three weeks in consequence of the injury inflicted upon him. In court all the prisoners were identified as having been amongst those who had assaulted him as well as Charles. Several witnesses were called with a view to prove that prisoners by being elsewhere could not have participated in the riot. The jury, however, found all of them guilty, but they recommended Alfred Barker to mercy on account of his youth. Duffy declared in the most solemn manner that he was innocent of the charge. He admitted, however, that he had a bad character, which he hoped would not weigh against him now; also that drink had got him into trouble. He had served three months for using obscene language, seven for stealing and obscene language, six for stealing, six for assault and obscene language, eight for assaulting the police, and two years for robbery with violence. The other prisoners had nothing to urge against the judgment of the Court being passed upon them. Rowland had served one month for indecent language, nine months on two charges of vagrancy, and three months for assault and riotous conduct. Percy Barker had served two months for assaulting a constable. The prisoners, with the exception of Alfred Barker, also had several convictions against them for minor offences. The Judge thought the verdict had been based upon the clearest evidence, and he sentenced Alfred Barker to two months' and Percy Barker to 12 months' imprisonment in Windsor gaol, and Rowland to 18 months' and Duffy to two years' imprisonment in Darlinghurst gaol.

The following is a list of the cases for trial on Monday:—Elizabeth Roche, larceny; Francis Joseph Cox, embezzlement; J. Francis M'Carthy, feloniously wounding; Lewis Miller, attempt to stab; John Sheridan and another, assault and robbery.

From our report of the case against the man Eichols, charged with stealing from the person, the inference might be drawn that prosecutor became ill through taking drink at the Bulletin Hotel. The evidence, however, showed that all he had to take in the hotel named was a bottle of sodawater, and that he was ill when he went there.

WATER POLICE COURT.

A well-dressed young man named Thomas Frolich was committed for trial on a charge of stealing two diamond studs, a gold stud, two gold scarfpins, total value £30, the property of Mr. John Henry Want, the well-known barrister. Lewis Samuels, John Forbes, and Charlotte Sly, pawnbrokers, deposed to the pledging of most of the articles by prisoner. Mr. Want stated that the prisoner had been in his employ as a servant, whose duty it was to take care of jewellery and other valuables. Early in the week he had ordered him to bring him some studs, but instead of doing so he left the house. Upon going to look for the studs Mr. Want found that they and other jewellery had also disappeared. Detective Grieves said that when the prisoner was arrested he admitted having taken one gold pin and three studs, but said he knew nothing of the rest of the valuables.

EMBEZZLEMENT BY A GIRL.

At the Water Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Leopold Yates, S.M., Ada Hobbleman, or Hunt, was charged on remand with obtaining 29 yards of lace trimming, 2 pairs of black kid gloves, and other articles, value £6 14s. 9d., by means of false pretences from Messrs Stonier and Monk, with intent to defraud. This case was heard for the first time on Wednesday last, when the following evidence was taken:—Detective Williams said that about 3 p.m. the previous afternoon he had arrested the prisoner at 193, Victoria-street; witness said that she would have to come with him to the station; she said, "For God's sake don't take me, I was going to take the goods back;" found the goods produced on a sofa in a room where prisoner was; prisoner said, "It is all my mother's fault, she turned me out;" witness took her to the central station; in reply to the charge at the station, prisoner said, "What do you think they will do with me?" the articles had since been identified. Hepper Gascoyne, clerk, in the employ of Messrs. Stonier and Monk, 86, King-street, said that on the Friday previously between 7 and 8 in the evening prisoner came to the shop and said, "Let me have some goods;" witness showed them, and she purchased some, stating that her name was Hunt and she was staying with her aunt, Mrs. Stone, in Phillip-street, and that she would pay for the goods; she then asked if the porter could come with her with the goods and he would be paid on delivery; the porter accordingly went, but returned without the money; it was on her representation that the goods were sent; witness identified goods produced. William Mortimer, the porter, said that he had accompanied prisoner to Phillip-street; she told witness that her name was Hunt, and gave her address as 100, Phillip-street; witness went into a court off Phillip-street with prisoner, and she said to witness, "Give me the parcel, it is just up here;" witness did so, and followed prisoner, who went into a house there; after a few moments she came out with the parcel in her hand, and said, "My aunt has taken down a cheque;" witness said that he did not know what to do; she said that the parcel would be all right, and that she wanted to go on making the dress; witness, on his return, found that no cheque had been sent. The evidence taken yesterday was as follows:—Robert Eiland Hunt, a magistrate of the territory, said he resided at 100, Phillip-street; had known prisoner seven or eight years ago; had not authorised her to go to Messrs. Stonier and Monk, of King-street, to get goods on his behalf; prisoner did not reside at 100, Phillip-street; up to the present time he knew nothing against her, and was sorry to see her there. Bridget O'Brien, widow, residing at Goold's-buildings, Phillip-street, said she had known defendant when she was a child; saw her three months ago, and again about three months previously; one night last week she came to witness with a parcel. (Here some one in the court, who was stated to be a doctor from Newcastle, attempted to speak to the prisoner, and was promptly removed.) Witness, continuing, said that prisoner asked witness to allow her to leave a parcel there while she went to Mr. Hunt's to cash a cheque; witness refused to allow the parcel to be left there, and prisoner took it away; was no relation of prisoner's, and did not send a cheque on her account to Stonier and Monk's. At this stage a respectably-dressed woman, who was stated to be prisoner's mother, was removed from the court, as she was sobbing audibly. Mr. Herbert Trower, a member of the firm of Meyerfield and Co., said that prisoner had always borne a very good character, and had been in witness' employ for six months; she was now staying at witness' residence; his wife, together with some other ladies, were willing to take charge of the girl. Mr Hills, in the course of a lengthy speech for the defence, pointed out that the case should be dismissed, as prisoner had, according to Gascoigne's evidence, simply promised to pay for the goods on delivery; and to constitute false pretences it must be shown that such pretence must be either past or present on the part of the prisoner. Messrs. Stonier and Monk had stated that they had no wish to press the charge; and the prisoner would be well looked after by the ladies whose names had been mentioned. Prisoner then pleaded not guilty, and elected to be dealt with summarily. Mr. Yates said that he had listened to Mr. Hills with considerable attention. He could not uphold the objection that had been raised. He was very sorry to see that the sympathy manifested on the prisoner's account had come too late, as under clause 438 he should not now have the power to dispose of the matter as he might possibly have done. In any case, however, the case could not have been withdrawn under the section under which the information was laid. It was with considerable pain that he saw one so young brought upon a charge which he thought had been clearly proved. He could not understand why girls for the simple sake of a love of finery and extravagant tastes place themselves in such a humiliating position. Having regard to the circumstances of the case, he should sentence prisoner to one week's imprisonment. Mr. Hills gave notice of appeal, and bail was allowed in £20 and two sureties of £10 each. Prisoner, who had been crying during the greater part of the hearing of the case, was then removed.

ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

The usual monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Zoological Society of New South Wales was held in the society's room at Moore Park yesterday afternoon. The chair was occupied by Dr. George Bennett, and there were present Messrs. G. Wall, C. Moore, J. Hill, A. T. Holroyd, W. Bradley, S. M. Frankland, J. Inglis, and W. Beaumont. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The banker's passbook was produced, and showed a debit balance of £1509 10s. 6d.

The following report was read by the secretary, Mr. Catlett:—"The secretary reports that the lion, which Captain Ghest, of the M.S.S. Australia, had kindly undertaken to purchase for the Zoological Society, from Woodward's Gardens, San Francisco, arrived here on the 26th September, in fair but weak condition. The purchase and freight of the animal amounted to £123 14s. 11d. Captain Ghest also brought two rattlesnakes from San Francisco, which he presented to the society; but one unfortunately died on Sunday last, although it appeared the more active of the two on the previous day, having killed two young rats and a sparrow, but made no attempt to gorge them. On the following day the remaining snake drank some milk, and it appears now pretty lively, although it has eaten nothing since it left California. The sound of the rattle is most peculiar, being a kind of half rattle half whistling hiss. Captain J. M'Farlane, of the steamer Australia, gave a donation to the society, on the 25th September, of two young heifers and a bull calf, of the West Highland cattle breed, but, in consequence of the quarantine laws now in force, these animals could not be landed. Mr. Walter Bradley and the secretary at once waited upon the Hon. the Minister for Mines, in hopes that he would have been able to give a permit for the animals being landed and quarantined at the society's grounds, Moore Park; but this, unfortunately, he could not do, in consequence of an agreement having been entered into with the Governments of the other Australian colonies that no imported cattle should be allowed to land. The Minister, however, suggested that a representation of the matter should be made to him by the society; and he kindly promised to telegraph to the Premiers of the other Australian Governments to ascertain if they would consent to the law being relaxed so far as to allow the animals to be landed for the Zoological Gardens. Mr. James Inglis, in reply to letters he kindly sent to his friends in India and Ceylon, asking on behalf of the society an exchange of animals and birds, has received a letter from Mr. Francis L. Daniel, of Colombo, offering him for the New South Wales Zoological Society—Ceylon hyenas, parrots, monkeys, &c., snakes, boa constrictors, &c., a tame turtle, &c. in exchange for Australian birds and animals, leaving it to the society to send what they like in return after they receive what he sends them. Arrangements have been made by the executive committee with Mr. Quong Tart to undertake the entire management of the refreshment rooms so soon as certain necessary alterations and additions are made to the present building. The gas will also have to be laid on. An application to the gas company has been sent in. Captain Stevens, who very kindly for many months past has been endeavouring to get tigers, panthers, and bears for the society from China and Japan, in exchange for Australian marsupials and birds, has recently received a letter from Mr. S. Machida, the acting-Consul for Japan, informing him that the Zoological Bureau of Agricultural and Commercial Department of Tokio had procured two young bears for him from Yeso on Hokkaido last year, but unfortunately they were not healthy, and died. Since then the bureau has obtained two other strong ones, to be forwarded, and is now ready to deliver them to Captain Stevens, at Tokio, and requesting Captain Stevens to instruct his agent at Tokio to receive them, or give him such instructions as to the forwarding of the animals to Sydney. Mr. S. Machida further adds that the Zoological Bureau do not require the Australian animals at present, but would ask for them when wanted. The executive committee, at their last meeting, decided that the officers of her Majesty's ships in Sydney should be admitted free to the Zoological Gardens, Moore Park, on production of their cards to the gatekeeper; and that the sailors and marines should be admitted free by a written order to that effect from their commanding officer. The following donations have been received since the last meeting:—Two doves, presented by Mrs. Grace, 56, Botany-street; one kangaroo, presented by Mr. H. S. Badgery, Summer Hill; one bandicoot, presented by Mr. J. E. M. Russell, 111, Stanley-street; one thrush, presented by Mr. C. Read, Darlinghurst Gaol; one crocodile, presented by Mr. Robert Prendergast; a collection of 120 ornamental trees and shrubs, presented by Messrs. Ferguson and Son, nurserymen, Double Bay; two opossums, presented by Messrs. Arthur and Harold Grace, 36, Botany-street; one dingo, presented by Mr. R. F. Sarsedge, West Maitland; one wallaby, presented by Mr. W. R. Blackman, of Hay; two 'Livera' parrots, presented by Mr. John Hoggan, 422, Crown-street; one bandicoot, presented by Mr. R. M'Cabe, Dowling-street; two Angora goats (females), presented by Miss Sinclair, William-street, Neutral Bay; one echidna, presented by Mr. C. W. Weekes, of Gundagai; one young eagle, presented by Mr. David Sutton, Bolton-street, Newcastle; half-ton of sugar-cane, presented by the Australian Sugar Company; one eagle-hawk, presented by Mr. Andrew Carson, of Namoi River; a collection of Aegavis, Yuccas, ornamental trees, and flowering shrubs, presented by Mr. W. H. Catlett, of Burwood; a collection of fuchsia and other cuttings, presented by Mr. John Wilson, of Coogee; two opossums and two wallabys, presented by the New South Wales Government; seven white rats, presented by Mr. H. Godden, 40, Chelsea-street Redfern. The following animals have been acquired by purchase, viz.:—One lion, one brown snake, one carpet snake, one python."

A good deal of correspondence was read.

It was resolved, on the motion of Mr. BRADLEY, seconded by Mr. MOORE,—"That the thanks of the society should be given to Messrs. G. R. Stevens and Co., for the trouble they had taken in procuring animals for the garden;" and it was decided that they should be requested to procure some bears which had been offered to the society.

A letter was received from Captain A. G. Bridge, R.N., thanking the members of the executive committee for their courteous decision in permitting the officers of the ship under his command to visit the gardens on the production of a card or order from the commanding officer.

It was resolved, on the motion of Mr. BRADLEY,—"That Messrs. Sands and Co. should have the right of publishing the catalogue of the exhibits of the society for 12 months, on the condition that a proof of the catalogue would be submitted to the council of the society for revision and approval before publication."

It was agreed on the motion of Mr. HOLROYD, seconded by Mr. BEAUMONT, that the secretary should have the power to issue 6d. tickets for admission into the gardens.

Mr. INGLIS read a letter which he had received from the Hon. T. M. Gibbon, from India, in which that gentleman expressed his willingness to send animals of various kinds to any agent in Calcutta appointed by the society as its forwarding agent. Mr. Inglis also read a letter received from Mr. D. J. Jayetilake, at Ratnapura, Ceylon, stating that he could deliver in Colombo for shipment elk, deer, buffaloes, and various kinds of birds for the society, and offered to do so in exchange for a pair of Australian ponies.

Mr. MOORE reported that he had succeeded in breeding a number of black swans.

It was resolved that the Sugar Company should be asked to place the society in communication with their agents in Batavia, for the purpose of procuring the introduction of animals from that place.

A resolution was carried to the effect that the executive committee should take into consideration the amount of salary to be paid to a managing director, and the cost of the erection of a residence for a managing director, with the view of bringing up a report at a special meeting to be held on Friday next.

This concluded the business, and the meeting adjourned.

Two important events have just occurred in connection with the Zoological Gardens at Moore Park. The first is the reception yesterday at the grounds of an enormous land tortoise, supposed to be one of the largest, if not the largest, in the world. It is sent by Mr. Alexander Macdonald, of Potts Point, a member of the firm of Messrs. Macdonald, Smith, and Co., of Hunter-street, to whom it was presented 20 years ago by King George of Tonga, when its age was estimated, in Tonga, at upwards of 200 years. It weighs 6cwt. 2qr. 26lb.; length from nose to tail, 6 feet 2 inches; girth, 8 feet 3 inches. There has been a larger specimen of tortoise known, one weighing 870lb.; but that is now enshrined among the other stuffed natural wonders in the British Museum. Visitors to the Sydney International Exhibition may remember Mr. Macdonald's tortoise as having been exhibited there, and which at one period of its somewhat prolonged existence was utilised by an American patent medicine agent as an advertising medium. Without consulting the owner of the reptile, a shield was painted on its back and the advertisement was inscribed thereon. The other event mentioned is the premature decease of the alligator which was received only a few days ago from Northern Queensland, and which peacefully expired on Thursday. It was thought that the climate was too chilly for it, and besides there had been no adequate arrangements made for its reception and accommodation at the grounds. It is probable, however, that profiting by experience the directors will be more successful in their next attempt to acclimatise alligators in Sydney.

THE FRENCH REVISION LEAGUE.—M. Clemenceau's Revision League has issued an address expressing dissatisfaction at the results of the recent Congress. It complains of the rejection of the idea of a Constituent Assembly, of the maintenance of "restricted suffrage"—that is to say, universal suffrage of two degrees in senatorial elections—of the retention of the right of dissolution, of the non-settlement of the Budget conflict between the two Houses, and of the ratification by Republicans of a Constitution framed in 1875 by Royalists. The League denounces all this as an affront to the spirit of the Revolution, calls on the democracy to rescue France from the hands of the Opportunists, and urges revision as a watchword in all parliamentary, departmental, and municipal elections. The league is to continue its efforts, seeing that there has been no real revision, and is to agitate for a Republican Constitution framed by a Constituent Assembly. The league, as hitherto, takes good care (the Paris correspondent of the Times says) not to say what kind of revision it wants; for it could not do this without failing to please from intestine dissensions, some of its members desiring to have a President of the Republic and a Senate, others objecting to both. This reticence, if a condition of the existence of the league, renders that body a nullity; and after its empty protest it is likely to be as quiet as during the last eighteen months. The very word revision, moreover, is nauseating after the recent scandals at Versailles.

BOARD OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

The prizes won by the students of the Sydney Technical College at the last yearly examination of the classes were presented in the large hall of the School of Arts on Thursday night by the Hon. W. J. Trickett, Minister for Public Instruction. The hall was filled with ladies and gentlemen, and the seats near the stage were occupied by the prize-winners. On the stage were Mr. E. Combes, C.M.G., M.L.A., president of the Board of Technical Education of New South Wales; Mr. Jas. Barnet, Dr. Belgrave, Mr. W. H. Edmunds, Mr. E. L. Murray, M.L.A.; Mr. J. Garrard, M.L.A.; Mr. W. G. Murray, Mr. H. C. Russell, and Mr. C. S. Wilkinson, members of the board; Mr. E. Dowling, secretary; Mr. J. M. Purves, M.L.A.; Mr. G. H. Reid; Messrs. F. J. Thomas and Jas. Dalgarno, of the committee of the School of Arts; and several of the instructors in various classes. Before the prizes were distributed, the president delivered the annual address.

Mr. COMBES said,—Ladies and gentlemen, you have been invited here this evening, to be present at the distribution of prizes to the students in the science and art classes, which, until October of last year belonged to the Technical College in connection with the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts. This distribution has been delayed until the report from the South Kensington examiners had been received, so that the whole of the prizes could be presented on the same occasion. It must be highly gratifying to all of us to find that some of the students have distinguished themselves in the annual examinations in the science and art department at South Kensington. It may not have been generally known that arrangements were made some time ago by the Government of New South Wales which permitted the work of our students to be examined at South Kensington. The committee of the Sydney School of Arts applied to her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, requesting assistance in this matter, and setting forth that if the examiners of South Kensington would judge the work of our students it would be a great encouragement to those students, and also a powerful incentive to unremitting work. The South Kensington authorities expressed their willingness, and Colonel Donnelly, [illegible] secretary to the Science and Art Department, notified the decision of the Lords of the Committee of the Council of Education, expressive of their willingness to authorise the examiners of the department to examine and classify such drawings and other work of art as may be submitted to them. [illegible]

...sults of the annual examinations, certificates and prizes are granted, which are beginning to be regarded as diplomas of proficiency, and are said to enable operatives to obtain better employment and higher remuneration. These evening classes have already become, and are likely in future to become still more, the nuclei of technical colleges, mainly supported by the towns in which they are situated, but connected with, and affiliated, to the City and Guilds of London Institute, by means of its examinations and superintending influence. Technological examinations are held in 31 subjects, and were originally established by the Society of Arts, but were subsequently taken over, and considerably modified and developed, by the City and Guilds of London Institute. In 1883 [illegible] candidates presented themselves for examination from different parts of the United Kingdom. The City and Guilds of London Institute comprises the Central Institution, in the Exhibition-road; the Finsbury Technical College, in Tabernacle-road, Finsbury; and the South London Technical Art School, situated in the Kennington Park-road, besides the subventions and assistance above alluded to. The organisation of the Central Institution will be very complete, and will give to the British metropolis a first-class college, in which technical teachers for the provincial schools may be educated, and in which those who are to be engaged in the superintendence of great industrial works may receive their preliminary training. The establishment of this Central Institution has for its object to render unnecessary the recourse to foreign countries, where similar institutions already exist for the technical instruction of managers of works, engineers, and industrial chemists, and will be welcomed by manufacturers who feel the want in London of some such institution, in which their sons who are to succeed them can obtain as good an education as at Paris, Zurich, Munich, or Berlin. Just as the Ecole Centrale, at Paris, is about to be removed to the immediate neighbourhood of the Conservatoire des Arts et Métiers, in order that the students may be near to the collections of machinery and other industrial objects which the Conservatoire contains, so the Central Institution of London is built near to the science schools and national museums of South Kensington. Besides giving to the metropolis a technical high school or technical university for advanced instruction in the application of science and of art to industrial operations, the Central Institution, as a training school for teachers, as a focus for uniting the different technical schools now in existence, and as a centre for the dissemination of technical knowledge, is expected to be the means of increasing the efficiency of every department of the Institute's work. This institution, now completely finished, has cost over £100,000. Its foundation-stone was laid by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who is the president of the institute, on the 18th of July, 1881, and the building was finished in and handed to the Health Exhibition Commission for several months, until its complete organisation has been detailed and effected. The Finsbury Technical College gives technical instruction, both day and evening, of a character suited to the requirements of artisans and others, with practical laboratory work in the subjects taught. A complete course of instruction has been drawn up for the day students and [illegible]

EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL.—The power of alcohol to cause either temporary or permanent insanity is well known to all of us. [illegible] During four years, up to 1870, the amount spent in the United Kingdom upon intoxicating liquors amounted to £[illegible], a sum within £[illegible] of the total of our export trade with the whole world during three years! And judging from the number of workmen in proportion to the money value of the various liquors sent out at the large Caledonian Distillery in Edinburgh, the drink money spent in this country would, if more productively applied, employ nearly 2,000,000 instead of 250,000 of our population.—Science Monthly.

MISCELLANEOUS.

In the Import markets to-day trade showed signs of improvement, though so far as we have heard there were but few transactions of importance. Buyers still continue to operate cautiously. Stocks of nearly all descriptions of goods are maintained of dimensions which leave no anxiety as to the ability to renew supplies as purchases are worked off. In such a condition of the market, of course speculative business is reduced to a minimum; and as there seems to be no indication of a lack of enterprise in importing, but, on the contrary, a tendency for others to press into the business, the course of trade on the same steady basis seems to be assured. In breadstuffs, bakers are buying but a few tons at a time at the most, the day's quotations being—New South Wales, £9 to £9 10s.; Victorian, £8 10s. to £9 5s.; Adelaide, £9 15s. to £10; South Australian, country, £8 15s. to £9 5s.; roller-made flour selling at £10 5s. In the tea trade the feature of the day was the offer of about 1800 packages of old season's teas at auction. There was a good attendance and brisk competition. About 550 half-chests sold at 8½s. to 8½s. 6d., and 270 boxes at 7s. 9d., full prices having regard to quality. About 1000 boxes Canton congous were placed at 10s. 5d., the result of the sale indicating a firm market for these descriptions of tea; the Melbourne market exhibits an equally strong tone for low qualities. Privately we do not hear of very much business, buyers awaiting the Menmuir's shipment, expected on Monday. The sugar market is without much change; stocks are very full of most descriptions. About 10 tons of light sorts sold publicly at £27; good rations may be quoted at £20 to £22; yellow, from £23 to £26; white, from £27 to £33; brewers' crystals are very scarce. The trade in coffee continues to be of a very unimportant character; and whilst ordinary trade lines of No. 1 Ceylon Plantation sell at 8½d., business in assorted shipments has been done at lower rates, stocks being ample. Chicory is dull of sale; Barry's at 8d., with a very full market. Cocoa worth 1s. 5½d. and 1s. 4½d. for Epps's and Taylor's respectively. In dried fruits, currants of prime quality maintain their value, to 5½d. being quoted in cases. New season's fruit has already been delivered in the Melbourne market. Elemes sold at 5½d.; Moir's marmalade, 9s. 10½d. For rice there is only a very moderate trade demand, which is supplied at £13 10s. to £15 10s. for the lower grades, and £17 10s. to £18 10s. for fine table sorts, with no immediate prospect of a change. Sago and tapioca of the various grades command 1½d. to 1½d. per lb. Pepper since the recent additions to stock has exhibited an easier tone, and 10d. and 1s. 2d. for black and white respectively. Coarse salt is moving off at 70s. from ship's side, up to 77s. 6d. required for Black Horse; fine ranges in value from 80s. to 82s. 6d. Stocks of rock are concentrated, and 80s. is required; 75s. paid for lots near at hand, and a lower price accepted for shipments further off. The demand for candles is less active; 8½d. to 9d. quoted, according to brand. In fish, the trade is quiet. Business in salmon for Melbourne has been done at a somewhat reduced price; tin, 8d. to 8s. 9d. quoted by leading holders. Sardines of good brands are held for 8s. and 5s., halves and quarters respectively; and unless better news is received of the fisheries, stocks are not likely to be replenished at much lower figures, though inferior fish may be worked off at a reduction on these quotations. Fresh herrings done at 8s. 5d.; red, 52s. In brewers' goods an improving demand is noted, sales of Tasmanian hops making at 1s. 8d. to 1s. 8½d. English malt from the ship is moving at 7s., and 7s. 3d. is paid for ordinary trade lines. In liquors, we note some inquiry for bottled beer of good brands, quotations showing no change. Sales of Dagger stout are mentioned for export at agents' prices, and for other brands of stout there is a good demand at well-maintained rates. Hennessy's brandy is depressed in value, 34s. 6d. and 45s. 6d. being the quotation for single and three star respectively; small sales of second-class brandy are noted at current rates. Lowndes' rum is selling slowly at 8s. 8d., at which the market is firm; other brands from 3s. 2d. to 3s. 6d. Geneva is still depressed; business has been done at 12s. 6d., but [illegible] generally require 16s. [illegible] 12s. Walker's and other [illegible] of whisky receive a fair amount [illegible]. The slackness in the spirit trade noticed for the past three months is fully shown by the reduction in the Customs duties to the extent of £10,000, as compared with the amount received in the corresponding quarter of last year. The heavy withdrawals of spirits from bond, giving an increase of £51,000 in the duties received in the second quarter of the year, had to be worked off, with the natural result of lessening the withdrawals in the third, and they may possibly affect even the duties for the last quarter of the year, as it is thought all the spirits of low strengths and small contents have not yet been disposed of. In metals, there is only a quiet trade; one holder, at least, is seeking to force off stock of sheet lead at £16, a lower price than is asked by others. Galvanised iron is selling at £20 to £23 10s. A better trade continues to be done in fencing wire: £11 for No. 6, £11 10s. to £12 for No. 8, and £13 to £13 10s. for No. 10 are the quotations. Tin plates unaltered. Wire nails, 15s. 6d. Muntz metal is rather dearer, 7d. quoted to-day. In oils, there is still a scarcity of kerosene; castor, on the spot, is worth 3s. 6d. to 5s. 6d.; to arrive, 2s. 1d. in full value; China, 3s. 7d.; raw and boiled, 3s. to 3s. 2d. in drums. In drugs, there is still a good demand for cream of tartar at 1s. 4½d., in kegs; for to arrive lots 1s. 4d. was paid; tartaric acid selling at 1s. 9½d., in kegs; carbonate of soda on the spot sold at £10 15s., and to arrive at £10 15s.; caustic soda in fair request, 60 per cent. selling at £14 10s. There is not much doing in jute goods, woolpacks moving off at 2s. 3d. to 2s. 4d. for full weights; cornsacks nominally quoted at 5s. 0d. The produce markets were unusually well supplied to-day. Hay was rather lower in price. Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, Hill, Clark, and Co., F. L. Barker, John Bridge, Brunker and Wolfe, and Mort and Co., Limited, held their weekly sales of tallow and hides to-day. Owing to the withdrawal of the competition of shippers, the market was weaker for all descriptions, not much more than a third of the catalogues being sold. Best beef quoted at £29 to £29 10s.; prime mutton, £29 to £30. For hides there was again very brisk competition, and last week's rates were maintained, up to 4½d. being paid for a few extra heavy hides; other descriptions from 3d.

The R.M.S. Cathay arrived to-day from London, via Southern ports, with a general cargo.

The R.M.S. Shannon sailed to-day for London, via ports, with 322 bales wool, 168 cases, 20 tierces meat, 4 cases wine, 28 cases pearlshell, 13,499 ingots 687 slabs tin, 29,154 ingots copper, 5 boxes gold coin (£25,000), 5 boxes bar silver, 2 cases electroplate, 2 cases jewellery and watches, 2 cases saddlery and grindery, 5 casks, 81 bales skins, 9 cases drapery, 4 casks bismuth ore, 1 box gum, 2 cases parcels, and 6 cases.

The following were the Customs receipts for to-day:—

In breadstuffs to-day the market was without animation, and the sales were of a limited character. Flour sold up to £7 17s. 6d. In regard to wheat the millers who are the only buyers, do not seem to be too anxious to purchase any more, and the prices therefore were a shade easier. A GOOD WORD FOR WALTHAM WATCHES.
(From the Jewellers' Journal, August, 1884.)
"Mr. E. L. May, of Greely, Iowa, writes that he has just had a Waltham watch to clean, numbered 1068, made by the American Watch Company, Waltham, Mass., in either 1857 or 1858. This watch, having been in constant use for over twenty-six years, shows well the durability of Waltham Watches; for Mr. May adds that it was worn so little that it needed no repairing except cleaning. We also learn that Mr. G. C. Ridgeway, of Mansfield, Ohio, has a customer who has a Waltham watch, No. 121, made in 1857, that still keeps good time, although it is carried in a four mill."

PRINCIPLE NOVÆ.
1. All creation is embraced within its two primary facts: Matter and Life.
2. All matter originated in its elements, without Form or Motion.
3. Light is the manifestation of Life in the Material Universe; is a vital force, and has no visible existence separate from matter. The Sun is not its source, but its primary organ of change. Where there is no matter there is no light.
4. All Form and Motion are begotten naturally, by the force of life operating in matter.
5. Heat, and all kindred phenomena, have no absolute existence; but are also begotten by the force of Life operating in Matter, their measures of intensity being ruled by the measure of vital energy which begets them.
6. The Form, Motion, and corporate relationship of the members of the solar system were successive stages in their monetary [illegible], begotten by the force of life operating in them.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1884.

About half-past 2 o'clock yesterday morning the Legislative Assembly adjourned for refreshment. When Mr. Speaker resumed the chair he ruled that the amendment which Mr. M'Laughlin had previously moved, to the effect that the Speaker leave the chair, report progress, and ask leave to sit again that day three months, was out of order and could not be put.

Mr. Suttor then raised another point of order. He contended that roads were not Crown lands. The Council had made an amendment in clause 67 for the resumption of unnecessary roads in certain cases, in order that they might become the property of the conditional purchaser. Roads not being Crown lands the amendment went beyond the scope of the bill and the leave given, which was to deal with Crown lands solely. Therefore, in his view, the bill having been so amended was improperly before them, and must be laid aside.

Mr. Farnell said these roads were merely occupation roads, which had never been dedicated, and therefore were in every sense Crown lands, so that they were perfectly within the scope of the bill.

Mr. Speaker, with some hesitation, ruled against the point of order raised by Mr. Suttor.

At about a quarter to 4 o'clock the House went into Committee of the Whole, for the purpose of considering the amendments made by the Legislative Council.

The question was put from the Chair, that the Council's amendment in clause 1 be agreed to.

Mr. Farnell said at that late hour he did not propose to go on with the bill any further. He, therefore, moved that the Chairman leave the chair, report progress, and ask leave to sit again on Tuesday.

The motion was agreed to, and leave was given to sit again on Tuesday.

On the motion of Mr. Dibbs, the House again resolved itself into Committee of the Whole, and a resolution was agreed to that it was expedient to bring in a bill to amend the Gunpowder and Explosives Act Amendment Bill. The bill was then brought in, and read the first time.

The House adjourned at five minutes to 4 o'clock a.m., until 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon next.

By a formal resolution the Secular Conference has emphatically protested against the teaching of religion by the State. In other words, so far as the teaching of religion is concerned, the Secularists would like to dictate the policy of the country. It may be remarked that, although the Secularists object to the State teaching religion in any form, they ask to be allowed to go into the State schools for the purpose of teaching their own religion, or, perhaps, what would better be called their substitute for it. The objection, therefore, can hardly be said to be one of principle. With one breath the Secularists ask the State to teach what they hold to be the essence of religion, and with another they protest against its teaching religion in any form. This is not exactly a consistent proceeding, and the Secularists themselves would not contend that it is. What they mean they tell us is that the schools should be protected from religious teachers of every kind, but if they are opened to other people they should be opened to them. If Christianity be taught in the schools, Secularism should be taught also. That is the demand, and although it might not have very much furthered the purpose of the Secularists, it would have aided discussion if the grounds on which such a demand is made had been explained.

The State has not yet acknowledged that it is no part of its duty to teach religion in any form. Hardly any civilised State has consented to take so narrow a view of its functions. Countries that do not recognise religion in one way continue to recognise it in another. A little more than twenty years ago our Parliament abolished grants to churches; but the Act that separated the Church from the State in no way committed the latter to eschew religion. In a variety of ways the State still recognises religion, and by religion it usually means Christianity. For State purposes the two words are held to be synonymous, and a vast majority of the people of this country would contend that they ought to be so regarded. The State is another word for the great body of the people, and the religion of more than nine-tenths of the people of this country is Christianity. At the census of 1881 about 97 per cent. of the inhabitants of New South Wales were declared to be Christians. Less than one per cent. is given under the head of "other persuasions and unspecified persuasions," and to that category Secularists may be supposed to belong. The important fact, however, is that of every hundred people in New South Wales about ninety-seven are declared to be Christians. More than one per cent. of the remainder consisted of Pagans, and besides these there were the Hebrews. According to this, the Secularists are not only in the minority, they are in a very small minority indeed.

If the minority were smaller than it is, it would have a right to assert its freedom. The parent who holds that the Scripture lessons which are taught in the Public schools would be an injury to his child, ought not to have those lessons thrust upon him. Any religion that is taught in a common school should be taught with a conscience clause. As a matter of fact, religion is taught in the Public schools on no other condition. The parent that does not like religion need not have it. The minority is entitled to its liberty, but it is not entitled to more than that. The majority has its rights as well as the minority. The smallness of the number of the Secularists forms no reason why they should suffer injustice, but it does form a reason why they should not dictate the policy of the country. In a democratic country a majority of 96 or 97 in a hundred should go for something. The Secularists contend that they have as much right to teach Secularism in the schools as other people have to teach Christianity; but that is equivalent to saying that the majority has no right to rule. If every fraction of a community were to be allowed to take its nostrums into the Public schools, anything in the shape of a common school system would become unworkable. The notion of some of the Secularist orators is that, although Christianity is still the religion of the priests, it is no longer the religion of the people. But that is a pure assumption. Thousands who adhere loosely to Christianity as a ritual hold to it firmly as an ideal. Men who do not frequent churches will declare their reverence for the system which churches are supposed to uphold. The Secularists may become the majority by-and-bye. Whether they will or not remains to be seen, but at present they are a minority; and when they talk of forcing their hands on the Public schools, unless other people's hands are taken off, they might remember that as yet they are an exceedingly small minority.

If they were a much larger minority than they are, the Government would probably hesitate to graft their teachings on that of the Public schools. The Secularist orators are in the habit of talking a great deal about liberty, courtesy, kindness, and self-denial. Their object, they say, is to destroy the domination of custom, to make men practical, to promote happiness, and to improve mankind in every possible way. This is a programme that is worth having. What people will fail to see is that it is in any distinctive sense a Secularist programme. Those who read the speeches we reported a day or two ago probably deemed that they were more remarkable for unmannerliness than for courtesy, for hatred than for kindness, for self-sufficiency than for self-denial. The things that the Secularists seem to desire to cultivate most are a hatred of priests and bishops, and a contempt for all that they and others held to be sacred. Somebody else had said beware of dogs, but the chairman of the secular meeting "would say, beware of bishops, they were a sort of captive balloon in the air, showing big, but pull them down and it would be seen what they were." Nor does the chairman stop at bishops. Here and there men who have discarded the creature cling to the Creator; but we are told that the gentlemen who have been meeting in the Masonic Hall "had no God to look up to, and they did not want one—they could walk on their own feet." As for the Bible, we are assured that no rational God and no rational man could have written it; that it had a corrupting influence, and was unfit to be read—at least in schools. Not only priests and bishop, but poets and philosophers of very high repute, have held that, inspired or uninspired, of all books in the world the Bible is the brightest and best. By a very common consent, such portions of the Bible as the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount, are worthy both of study and of admiration. But it would seem that that is quite a mistake. If the world is to be enlightened and saved, the Bible and God must go. The secular orators are very clear about that, but they do not seem to be so clear as to what they would put in their places. Their principal desire, it will seem to most people, is to "show their enemies that they were not such noodles" to "give them the opportunity of meeting them in the press or on the platform," to take their little babes from the "fiendish clutches" of the priests, and so forth. But all such talk as this is exceedingly silly. It is easy enough to vilify bishops and to scream at the Bible. Anybody can do that. The difficulty is to improve upon the latter, and to find good substitutes for the former. We are bound to say the Secularists do not appear to have done either, and until they do they will have to wait. The country is hardly ready for a religion that is built chiefly on the negation not only of bishops and priests, but of God and the Bible.

During the next few weeks those who are interested in what is going on in Egypt will turn their attention from the squabbles at Cairo to the expedition to Khartoum. The expedition has at last been decided on, and all the arrangements for it are being pushed forward with great energy and determination. The last contingent is to leave Cairo on the 1st of next month, and the force is to reach Dongola in about a month from that date. A telegram which we published yesterday announced that General Lord Wolseley had reached Assouan, and it is stated that he is pushing towards the front with the least possible delay. At first it was supposed that if the expedition were undertaken at all, the route adopted would be the one from Suakim, via Berber. That is by far the shortest route, and in some respects it is the one that would be accompanied with the least difficulties. The distance from Suakim to Berber is only 450 miles, and by Australians at least that would not be deemed a very formidable journey. On the Berber route, however, there is no water, and the country is not only dry but unhealthy. It is also probable that on this route an expedition would have to fight a considerable part of its way to Khartoum, and the authorities want the expedition to do as little fighting as possible. If Suakim had been made the starting-point, a railway would have had to be constructed, and this was an enterprise which the Imperial authorities were anxious to avoid. As well as the route from Suakim, there was the one from Kassala, which is also in the vicinity of the Red Sea, and not far from Abyssinia. This route is about three times the length of the one from Suakim, but it is considerably shorter than the Nile route. But most of the objections that apply to the route from Suakim apply to the one from Kassala, and the route adopted is the one along the valley of the Nile. Even the Nile route may be considerably shortened by making the journey partly by land and partly by water. By going across country from Korosko to Berber some hundreds of miles might be saved. The expedition, however, is to follow the Nile all the way from Cairo to Khartoum. The distance is about 1600 miles. To Assouan, on the first cataract, which Lord Wolseley has now reached, the distance is about 550 miles. As far as Wady Halfa, or the second cataract, there are few difficulties to be encountered. Not only is there a railway over the greater part of the country between Alexandria and the second cataract, an old railway which may be utilised extends some fifty miles beyond that point. By means of this rapids of nearly twenty miles in length may be avoided. There is no railway between Assouan and Wady Halfa, but between these places the river is navigable by dahabeahs or large Nile boats. But the dahabeahs cannot go beyond Wady Halfa, which is between six and seven hundred miles, and is to be made the chief base of operations.

Beyond that point the expedition will have to trust themselves to nuggers, or boats which are large enough to carry twelve men, and, it is said, three tons of munitions and stores. It is calculated that about 500 nuggers will be required, and the whole will have to be towed against the stream by steam launches. For the steam launches some ten thousand tons of coal will be required, and for this and other purposes a vast number of camels and horses will be necessary. The expedition will consist of not far from ten thousand men, and should the Mahdi or some of his lieutenants turn up on the road, a much larger one might become necessary. By way of preparing for such a contingency, while the nuggers are navigating the river mounted infantry will protect its banks. As well as the force that will line the river banks for the purpose of keeping the road open, and for that of preventing a possible advance of the Mahdi, a number of outposts will be established along the line of march. A force of some 3000 men will be stationed at Assouan, a second force will be stationed at Korosko, and a third at Wady Halfa. Between that point and Berber the expedition will have the assistance of the Emir of Dongola, who, in spite of every temptation, has remained faithful to the British, who, according to his own account, has given great trouble to the Mahdi, and who is ready to receive the relief force with great enthusiasm. As the British commander is likely to receive aid from friendly natives, and as the Mahdi himself is reported to be in the province of Kordofan, and to be badly off for supplies, the military difficulties of the march may not be considerable. Difficulties of other kinds, however, may turn out to be very serious indeed. Between Wady Halfa and Khartoum—a distance of about 1000 miles—there are six large cataracts to be passed and about twelve small ones, nearly twenty altogether. Whether some of these can be passed at all entirely depends upon the state of the Nile. At low Nile a number of them are quite impassable, and the Nile has a habit of falling out of season as well as in season. A month or two ago there was a report that a fall had set in, and it was feared that all the plans of the British authorities would be upset, and that the expedition would have to go by the Suakim route or be abandoned altogether. Towards the end of the year the Nile will fall under any circumstances, and what the expedition does therefore, it must do quickly. An accident that caused a short delay might lead to very serious consequences.

Even if there be no mishap, the task of conveying not far from ten thousand men in small boats up such a river as the Nile in so short a time will prove a Herculean one. That the task will be accomplished there can be very little doubt. But that such an expedition has been undertaken at all, and that it has been undertaken for the purpose of relieving a General who, according to the majority of the reports we have received, is perfectly well able to hold his own, and who, according to experts, can effect his retreat with perfect safety, will be looked upon as one of the most remarkable facts of modern times. It may be questioned whether any other Government in the world would have entertained a serious thought of such an expedition. When the expedition gets to Khartoum and offers General Gordon his relief, the General may refuse to accept it on the terms the Government offer. The instructions of the commander of the expedition are to relieve and to retire. There is to be no crusade against the Mahdi, and no attempt to set up at Khartoum an authority which will undertake such a crusade on our behalf or on that of General Gordon. Lord Wolseley has authority to treat with the Mahdi, or with anybody else. When the expedition has relieved Khartoum it will return, and the understanding, no doubt, is that when the expedition returns General Gordon will return. But if it be a matter of no consequence to the British Government what becomes of Khartoum, it will be matter of some consequence to General Gordon. There is no evidence that the relieve-and-retire policy will commend itself to that hero. General Gordon has never admitted that evacuation means abandonment. So far as General Gordon and his trusty followers are concerned, when the British Government has relieved Khartoum its difficulties may begin. But whatever may happen at Khartoum or elsewhere, as General Gordon has asked for a relief force the British Government is bound to supply one. That Government is responsible, not only for sending Gordon to Khartoum, but for keeping him there. When the General arrived at Khartoum he proposed that for the purpose of interviewing the Mahdi he should be allowed to go single-handed from Khartoum to Kordofan, but the British Government would not consent. He next asked that Zebehr, the slave-hunting Pasha, might be made Governor-General of the Soudan, and of this Lord Granville would not hear. The next request was for Indian and Turkish troops and for an English and American volunteer force, and that was not complied with. The British Government has placed the General in his present difficulties, and it is bound to get him out of them. The Khartoum expedition was put off as long as possible, but it was at last found to be inevitable.

The appointment of a Statist, whose duty it shall be to compile a Statistical Year Book for the colony, suggested by Sir Henry Parkes and approved by Mr. Stuart, has thus the sanction of leaders on both sides of the House. What is wanted for the purpose is a competent man, and the colony will then be shown to the world with all the favourable notice that a judicious presentation of statistics will admit of. There is no doubt that the publication of the ordinary official statistics, nearly a year old, does not do justice to the service which a Statist should render to the colony. Much that is interesting and valuable can be given in a handier form in anticipation of the ordinary official tables, and salient features brought into notice that will be of world-wide value. Mr. Hayter has done much to illustrate the growth and importance of Victoria; and may, in fact, be said to have acquired a European reputation as the only Australasian statist. But, as he has himself pointed out that this colony is growing much more rapidly than Victoria, and that, at the present rate of progression, the two will be equal in numbers about the middle of 1886, it may well be conceded that the importance of a colony which is destined to be at the head of the Australasian group should not be left to the description of a writer who is in the employment of another which in some senses is a rival. No one would accuse Mr. Hayter of a desire to use figures unfairly; but it is natural that in a comparison any feature which is strikingly in favour of the colony in which any writer is interested, will have prominence given to it, whilst those in which it may not compare so favourably will be passed over. We have only to instance Mr. Hayter's comments on the respective measures of criminality of Victoria and New South Wales and the replies of critics on this side of the Murray to furnish proof of this. It is, in fact, the duty of Mr. Hayter to present Victoria as favourably as possible before the world. If the full value of statistics is to be obtained, a competent statist is the pinnacle of the whole thing, and New South Wales should not be without one. The compilation of a Year Book, however, is not the only question to be considered. What we want is a well-organised Statistical Department, with a thoroughly competent head, whose attention would not be liable to be distracted by the pressure of other engagements.

Perhaps there is a mistake about the special cablegram from Mr. Murray Smith urging Mr. Service to bring the united pressure of the colonies to bear upon New South Wales. The zeal of Mr. Service we know, but whence this glowing ardour of the Agent-General? The Victorian Premier is in the very thick of the fight; he is within hand's-reach of the prizes of annexations and protectorates; but Mr. Murray Smith is far away, in the cool regions of diplomacy. And yet the action, or rather inaction, of Sir S. Samuel so blocks his way and so excites his choler that he cries to Mr. Service, and asks him to cry to all his neighbours. Does Mr. Murray Smith quite understand his position? There is reason to suppose that he does not. As an Agent-General, it is hardly his business to dictate to his chief, and still less so to urge an intercolonial agitation. Under any other circumstances he might be severely rebuked for his pains; but, as it is, Mr. Service may pat him on the back and simply tell him to be steady. Being at a distance, Mr. Murray Smith is not familiar with the latest aspects of the situation. He means well, but does not know that at this moment the colonies are not fully agreed on the points to be urged upon the attention of the Imperial Government. It is not a question of unwillingness on the part of New South Wales to do what has been agreed upon; the dispute here is over the subjects as to which the Convention agreed to approach the Government at home. Mr. Service says one thing, Mr. Stuart says another, and their differences will have to be dealt with before they can go in company to Lord Derby. But, even then, what has Mr. Murray Smith to do with it? That he should suggest the course named might be cited in proof that he knows very little indeed. And the idea thrown out by him is only a little less absurd than the proposal of Mr. Service to badger the Secretary for the Colonies. When it is shown that proposals for federation, annexation, and collateral matters, are fair and feasible, there will be no need for intercolonial pressure—none for united Australian pressure; and if there should be, it will hardly be exercised at the instance of Mr. Murray Smith.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The tension between France and China continues, and there seems at present but small probability of its being relaxed. France, it is said, has applied to America to mediate between her and China as to the basis of an indemnity. It is not long since we were told that France had rejected all offers of mediation. China still scornfully refuses to pay any indemnity. In regard to Soudan affairs, our telegraphic messages inform us that General Lord Wolseley left Assouan yesterday on his way to Khartoum, and that Lord Northbrook, the British High Commissioner, will start for Upper Egypt on Monday. By the death of Sir Erasmus Wilson, the eminent surgeon, the Royal College of Surgeons has been enriched by his bequests to the extent of £200,000.

When we had to close our Parliamentary report in yesterday's issue, in order to go to press, the House had adjourned for half an hour for refreshments. It was some time past 3 o'clock when Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and ruled against the amendment then before the House. Some other points of order were raised and decided against by the Speaker, and at length, about a quarter to 4 o'clock, the motion to go into committee to consider the Legislative Council's amendments in the Land Bill was agreed to, and the House went into committee pro forma. Mr. Dibbs, having obtained leave, brought in a bill to amend the Gunpowder and Explosives Act, and it was read the first time, after which, shortly before 4 o'clock, the House adjourned until Tuesday.

The course the Government intend to take in committee with regard to the amendments made by the Legislative Council in the Crown Lands Bill is, we understand, to propose the acceptance of all the ordinary amendments, and to agree to others being discussed, and, if it should be thought advisable, rejected on their merits. There is a disposition manifest among the supporters of the Government to continue the sitting on Tuesday, when the consideration of the amendments will be resumed, until the whole of the amendments have been dealt with, and the bill is ready to be returned to the Upper House.

An official visit was made yesterday by the Hon. Alexander Stuart, Colonial Secretary, to the French warship Brust, and the German man-of-war Elizabeth.

It will be remembered that at the Postal Conference held in Sydney in May last year, it was agreed that telegraph rates between this colony and Victoria should be reduced to 1s., with an extra charge of 2d. for every word beyond the first 10. The bringing of this reduction into operation was necessarily delayed in order to erect additional wires for the purpose of working a second quadruplex system. It is gratifying to learn that although the distance from Sydney to the River Murray at Albury (389 miles) exceeds that from Melbourne to the Murray (189 miles) by no less than 200 miles, the Superintendent of Telegraphs, Mr. Cracknell, has been able to complete the whole of the extra work required to be done in this colony, although the Victorian work is not expected to be completed for several weeks from the present time. It would be impossible, with present appliances, to get through the large increase of business which will result from the proposed reduction in rates; and it is therefore impossible to allow the public the benefit of the reduced charges until the whole work in each colony has been completed.

The Royal Commission on the conservation of water met yesterday. The president, Mr. W. J. Lyne, M.L.A., occupied the chair, and the following members were also present—Mr. R. Barton, M.L.A., Mr. F. A. Franklin, C.E., Mr. F. B. Gipps, C.E., Mr. R. L. Murray, M.L.A., and Mr. D. M'Mordie, C.E. A letter was handed in by the president from Mr. C. D. Pierce, of the Pierce Well Excavator Company of New York, accompanied by pamphlets, &c., and estimates of the cost of successful boring apparatus to bore to a depth of 3000 feet. Mr. Franklin submitted a letter from Mr. A. S. Russell, of the Public Works Department of Madras, who was lately on a visit to this colony, and who is now collecting a large amount of information with which to supply the commission. Mr. Arthur Pepys Wood, of the Roads and Bridges Department, was examined, and gave some interesting information respecting the works now being carried on by the Department in procuring water for the use of stock along routes. The president submitted papers in connection with the proposed deepening of the cutting at the entrance to the Yanko Creek from the Murrumbidgee, which had been transmitted to the commission from the Colonial Secretary's Department. The discussion which ensued showed a feeling strongly in favour of diverting a portion of the water of the Murrumbidgee, either by the Government defraying part of the cost or creating a Water Trust, through which the money advanced should be repaid. Before making any recommendation it was determined that the commission, or some of the members thereof, should visit the locality. It was decided that the president should have power to employ such assistance as he may require to carry out the work of the commission.

Mr. James Fletcher, M.L.A., has been informed by the Hon. the Minister for Works that the railway employees and the men at work on the dredges will not have their wages stopped on the occasion of the forthcoming Eight Hours' Demonstration. Mr. Benjamin Douglas, the chairman of the Melbourne Trades Council, arrived in Sydney yesterday to attend the Eight Hours Demonstration. In the evening the members of the Trades and Labour Council met in full force at M'Master's Hotel, George-street, to receive him. The Hon. John Sutherland was voted to the chair, and Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan, in a speech eulogistic of the services rendered to the cause of labour by Mr. Douglas, proposed a hearty welcome to him. Mr. Douglas replied in a speech of some length, and the proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman. Mr. Douglas was also welcomed by the Eight Hours Committee, and spoke at the anti-Chinese meeting and the unfurling of the Engineers' banner. The demonstration and picnic of the Eight-hour Societies will be held at Parramatta Park on Monday next. The various societies will rendezvous and form in procession at Cook Park at 8 a.m., the procession starting at 8.30 by way of College-street, Macquarie-street, Bridge-street, and George-street, to the railway station, Redfern. Thence they will go by train to Parramatta, where the procession will re-form and march to Parramatta Park.

On the occasion of the deputation that recently waited upon the Premier regarding a public park for Petersham, the observations attributed to Mr. Alderman Gelding do not clearly express his meaning. He contended that Wentworth paddock ought to be chosen as a site for the park, because the land was low and unsuitable for building purposes, and would, if it were covered with dwellings, be likely to become insanitary. He therefore advised that the Premier should visit the locality and judge for himself.

The lending branch of the Free Public Library is one of the institutions of the city to which we can refer with considerable satisfaction. Originated as an experiment by the trustees, it has been found to meet a want in the community, and its steady progress is shown by the fact that although started some seven years since with only 1900 volumes, it has had an average annual increase of nearly 2,000, and now possesses 15,084 volumes of carefully selected English literature, besides 4,037 volumes of English letters patent, the total being 19,121. Since January 1, 3868 borrowers' tickets have been granted, and 62,854 books issued to September 30, the classification of subjects showing that a work of solid educational character is read for every one of lighter literature, which is a feature deserving of special notice. Considering, however, the population of our city and suburbs, it is somewhat remarkable that the benefits of the library are not more largely availed of. A glance through its catalogue reveals a bill of fare for an intellectual feast of no mean order, in which solid mental pabulum requiring calm digestion is relieved by side-dishes of poetry, humour, and miscellanea of attractive titles. There is something to please the tastes of all, and much to elevate the minds and advance the social status of those who are studiously inclined. It was specially inaugurated as a free institution to meet the requirements of the working class, but with slight exception they are not the people who take advantage of its provisions. Why is it that with such short hours of labour as are the rule among our artisans and handicraftsmen, so little attention is given to mental improvement, as the returns of this library show? The benefits are open to all, and the regulations simply require that books borrowed shall be kept in good order and returned within 14 days. We regret to learn that even these liberal regulations are not conformed to by a small section of borrowers, who occasion at times much annoyance to the librarian and their fellow-readers by unduly detaining the books, and even in some few cases rendering themselves liable to heavy penalties by inconsiderate or malicious damage to them. Detention beyond the authorised time is an offence which may be followed with criminal prosecution at the discretion of the trustees. But for writing in the books the law has made special provision; and one offender found to his dismay last week that he had placed himself in jeopardy to the extent of three years' imprisonment and one or more private whippings. Several persons have had to pay heavily for their love of scribbling—in one case to the extent of £1 5s. 1d. The librarian states that it is not difficult to detect the culprits, and that in future offenders will be stringently dealt with. To those who want books, and will make good use of them, we recommend an early visit to the Library, where all details can be readily learnt.

An excellent description of the forces comprising the expedition for the relief of General Gordon at Khartoum, under the command of Lord Wolseley, is given by Mr. Archibald Forbes, whose paper appears in another column.

A telegram has been received at the Department of Mines from Mr. Harrie Wood, Under-Secretary for Mines, intimating that he has reached Silverton, to which place he has gone on a special mission.

The suit Mason and Elkington v. Watson and Ewan was resumed in the Banco Court yesterday, when Mr. Salomons, Q.C., addressed the jury for the defendants at considerable length. He was followed by Mr. Want for the plaintiff; and his Honor the Chief Justice then summed up, stating the law upon the matter, and placing the facts clearly before the jury, who, after about an hour's consideration, found that the £6000 was to be paid absolutely, and not out of profits, and that the letter of the 1st August, 1874, correctly represented the agreement between the parties. The Court then adjourned till Tuesday. In the Jury Court, the libel action Jesson v. Gornall was continued, but not concluded. We have been requested to state that, with the exception of the jurors engaged in the above case, jurors summoned for the Jury Court on Monday need not attend till 1.30 p.m.

It will be gratifying to the residents of the eastern suburbs, as well as to many other persons, to learn that the work of paving William-street, Woolloomooloo, with wood is now complete, and that there is a prospect of traffic being again conducted as of old. It was at a meeting of the Municipal Council, on the 28th of March last, that the initiatory steps were taken in this work, on a motion by Mr. Alderman Beare. The Council voted £12,000 for the purpose, it being then agreed that the upper part of the street, the "stiff" hill which rises from Dowling-street, should be covered with tarred metal, and the gradient reduced considerably, and that the rest of the street, between Dowling and Yurong streets, should be paved with wood. A contract for the tarred metal work was accepted, the amount being £1100, the contractor finding all materials. In the case of the wood-paving, it was decided to pay the contractor £4150 for labour, and that the Council should supply the material. The time allowed for the performance of the wood-paving was 45 working days. The contractor has kept well within that time, having two days to spare. The work seems to have been thoroughly well done, and it is thought the entire cost will not exceed the sum voted by the Council.

A general meeting of the New South Wales Branch of the British Medical Association was held last evening, Dr. Quaife, president, in the chair. Dr. Foreman read a paper for Dr. Cosby Morgan, of Newcastle, on a case of osseous formation of dura mater. Dr. David Collingwood was elected a member of the branch. Dr. J. Foreman exhibited two pathological specimens.

The monthly meeting of the Animals' Protection Society was held on Wednesday, Mr. E. Fosbery in the chair. Present—Messrs. W. Bradley, C. H. Myles, J. Tait, W. W. Stephen, W. Beaumont, J. H. Hunt (secretary), J. Sidney, and Inspector G. Webber. After the ordinary routine business the draft of the eleventh annual report was read by the chairman and approved. Summary of inspector's report for September:—Prosecutions 8, convictions 6, two cases dismissed, cautions 30, complaints 4, cases investigated 4.

The regular monthly meeting of the committee of the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts was held on Thursday evening; Mr. Vice-president Teece in the chair. The members present were Messrs. Dalgarno, N. Dowling, Gray, Jones, Neitenstein, Scott, Taylor, and Thomas. Apologies were received for the absence of Messrs. Collie and Holdsworth. After the transaction of routine business, the treasurer presented his report, which showed receipts during the previous month amounting to £589 16s. 6d., including the Government subsidy for the first half-year. The credit balance at the bank was £225 0s. 7d., against which cheques were required amounting to £321 0s. 9d. The report of the preliminary meeting recommended, amongst other things, an application through the resident German Consul for a copy of a valuable work on the antiquities of Egypt, recently published by the German Government; also the acceptance of a tender for painting by Mr. Ayton. On the motion of Mr. Scott, the following resolutions were passed:—For the appointment of a sub-committee to consult with Mr. Elphinstone upon the erection of galleries in the library. The prohibition of smoking in the institution until a smoking-room can be provided; and the appointment of a sub-committee to inquire into the withdrawal of books from the library. The following lecture arrangements have been made for the present month:—Mr. W. C. Simon, on character reading; Mr. P. J. Holdsworth, on Ireland; and Mr. M. J. M'Laughlin, on Bret Harte.

A meeting of the committee of the Drapers' Association of New South Wales was held on Wednesday evening last, at the London Tavern, Albion and Elizabeth streets, the president, Mr. W. Mason, in the chair. The minutes of the previous committee meeting having been read and confirmed, several new members were elected and nominated in the usual manner. The general secretary reported that, in connection with the dramatic entertainment to be held in the New Masonic Hall on Tuesday evening next, the 7th instant, all arrangements had been completed, and that, in addition to the programme of "Partners for Life" and "A Rough Diamond," provided by the Commercial Dramatic Club, a splendid orchestra, under the direction of Mr. A. C. Lombe, and led by Mr. Camphin, had generously offered their services, and had provided an excellent programme of music. About 1000 tickets had been issued, and were reported to be selling well, consequently there was every probability of a most enjoyable evening being spent by a large number of supporters and friends of the Drapers' Association. Several appointments as ushers, check-takers, &c., were made, and the general secretary was instructed to call the committee together at 7 o'clock, at the New Masonic Hall on Tuesday evening next. A notice of motion was handed in, "That any surplus accruing from the next annual picnic shall be devoted to the purchase of trades hall debentures." It was then reported that funds were available for the affiliation with the Trades and Labour Council, and the general secretary was instructed to take all necessary steps for its completion. The meeting then terminated.

The first annual meeting of the Paddington Branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held on Thursday night, in the Wesleyan Church. The chair was occupied by the Rev. Z. Barry, LL.D., the president, who, after devotional exercises, delivered an effective speech on the obligations of all to the Bible Society, and the reasonableness of Bible teachings in contrast to those presented in opposition. The secretary (the Rev. Kirton Corner) then read the report, which showed that the Branch had now attained working order; it had raised over £20, and expected to raise £40 per annum, and if they could only secure a few more collectors would raise much more. Rev. Richard T. Hills, district secretary, congratulated the Branch on its successful start, and gave a concise account of the society's work and success during the past year. The Rev. W. Wyatt Gill, B.A., remarked that some had had spoken of the Bible as a bad book. He wished to tell them what he had himself seen effected by this book. Through the islands of the Pacific 73 years ago ignorance, idolatry, infanticide, murder, and cannibalis prevailed. Now 300 of those islands were nominally Christian, and the evils referred to had ceased in them. The inhabitants were no longer savages without commercial wants, but were civilised, with a trade of £3,000,000 per annum. Let those who rejected the Bible show equal elevating results to those of this "bad book," which he had witnessed developing during 35 years' labour in the Pacific. A resolution according thanks to the committee and lady collectors, and appointing officers and committee for the year, was passed, a collection taken, and the meeting closed with the doxology and benediction.

The half-yearly meeting of the Sacred Heart Literary and Debating Society was held on Thursday evening, in Darlinghurst Hall, the president in the chair. After the reading and adoption of the reports the election of officers and committee for the ensuing half-year took place and resulted as follows:—President Mr. M. Quinlan; chairman of committees, Mr. A. Ormond Butler; vice-presidents, Messrs. Thomas Stapleton and P. J. Farrell; hon. secretary, Mr. R. D. Meagher; hon. treasurer, Mr. H. Gilmour; librarian, Mr. J. Flynn; committee, Messrs. Bourke, Dillon, Quinn, and Dorahy. The President called upon Mr. Crick to form a new ministry, consequent upon the resignation of the old one. Mr. Crick accepted the position, and formed the following ministry:—Messrs. Crick (premier), P. Quinn, P. Bourke, and A. O. Butler. The question for discussion on next Thursday night is, "That early marriages are advisable;" to be opened by the premier.

A meeting of old residents of the Counties of Durham and Northumberland (England) was held on Thursday evening last at Compagnoni's Café, [illegible] street. Mr. Macgregor presided. It was unanimously resolved that a club be formed. A committee and secretary were appointed to make all necessary arrangements, and report to a general meeting to be held next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, at Compagnoni's. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.

The Board of Technical Education are making strenuous efforts to disseminate knowledge amongst the people, and are utilising the various Schools of Art for lecturing purposes. On Tuesday and Wednesday next Mr. W. M. Hamlet, F.C.S., will deliver two lectures, entitled "Practical Science in Everyday Life," under the auspices of this body, at the St. Leonards' School of Arts.

The Rev. Dr. Kelynack delivered an able and instructive lecture on "The Path of Power in the Pulpit, on the Platform, in the Senate, at the Bar," at the Parramatta Town Hall on Thursday evening. There was a good audience, and the remarks of the lecturer were frequently applauded. The Mayor, Mr. F. C. Cox, J.P., presided.

The contents of the "Parsonage Work-basket" were disposed of at the parsonage, Summer Hill, on Thursday last. The sale was well patronised, and the ladies forming the work party had the satisfaction of handing to the treasurer of the church now in course of erection the handsome sum of £60 as the result of their combined efforts.

To-night the Freemasons' Bazaar at the Masonic Hall will be brought to a close, and it has been so well patronised, not only by masons and their families, but by the public generally, that a fairly large sum for the widows and orphans' fund should be realised from it. The attendance yesterday afternoon was not very good, but in the evening the hall was crowded, and many purchases were made. Instrumental music was provided by Austin and Kopff's string and brass band; Herr Gomprich played a violin solo, Mr. J. H. Rainford recited a couple of poems, and Miss Eva Thompson and Mr. Gilpin sang ballads and were each recalled. To-day the stalls will be refurnished, and the goods will be sold at the lowest possible rates. Mr. T. R. Smith, M.L.A., has given Mrs. Hunt, in aid of the fund, an acre of land near the Penrith railway station, and upon this site the Widows and Orphans' Home will probably be erected. Mr. Shorter, of the firm of Shorter, Fitzgerald, and Asher, has kindly offered to prepare the deeds, free of charge. Messrs. Ponder, Evans, and Co., of Pitt-street, have presented 200 1lb. packets of specially blended tea, and others who sympathise with the cause have sent in substantial contributions, so that visitors can buy the useful as well as the ornamental. The programme for this, the last day of the bazaar, will be found in our advertising columns.

Those interested in chess matters will no doubt be glad to learn that a match has been arranged with Melbourne for the 9th November. Practice has commenced at the Sydney Chess Club, and will be continued till the day of the match. To-night the members [illegible] the club for the purpose of arranging preliminaries and appointing selection committee. It is expected that it will be a very interesting and close contest.

Last night those portions of the Domain along the shores of Woolloomooloo Bay commanding an unobstructed view of Potts Point were thronged with spectators to witness a pyrotechnic display given at the residence of Mr. M'Quade. Every vantage-ground in the Domain was also taken up for the same purpose, and there must have been many hundreds of persons assembled. The display of fireworks was very effective and beautiful, the only drawback being the brightness of the night, for had the night been dark the display would have been more brilliant; it could scarcely have been more beautiful. Every conceivable form of fireworks was used on the occasion, and the coloured lights cast upon the surface of the harbour, or diffused overhead by the bursting of innumerable coloured rockets, and lighting up the Point, made the scene at once weird and picturesque. But the most effective display of the whole was from a boat moored off the Point from which a perfect shower of coloured lights shot up into the sky, drooping outwards and depending to the water in fountain form. Myriads of coloured lights danced and sparkled within the compass of the arc, lighting up the whole surface of the water, causing the shipping to stand out in bold relief, and lighting up Garden Island and the adjacent shores. It looked almost like fairyland. The exhibition lasted for about an hour, and was one of the finest that have been witnessed in Sydney.

The Metropolitan Quarter Sessions were resumed at Darlinghurst yesterday. The bench was occupied by Mr. District Court Judge Forbes, and Mr. Irving prosecuted for the Crown. Mary Ann Tannen, who pleaded guilty to having attempted to commit suicide, was released, upon a bond to be of good behaviour in the future. John Spencer, found guilty of larceny, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment. For obstructing Constable Gorman in the execution of his duty in such a way as to ensure the escape of a prisoner from custody, and also for being engaged in an assault upon the police, Alfred Barker was sentenced to two, Percy Barker to 12, Edward Rowland to 18 months', and James Duffy to two years', imprisonment. The Court now stands adjourned until Monday.

A SUDDEN death occurred yesterday at the residence of Mr. Ninian Melville, M.L.A., Regent-street, Newtown. It appears that at 10.45 a.m. a servant named Helen Bremner, aged 30, was found dead in bed. Deceased had been in her usual health for some time previously, and had retired the night before without complaining of anything. Medical aid was at once called, but of course to no purpose. An inquest will be held on the body at 9 o'clock this morning, at the Carlisle Castle Hotel, Newtown.

AN assistant at Messrs. S. Hoffnung and Co.'s, named Edmund Beer, was accidentally shot yesterday morning. It appears that another assistant, while showing a customer some guns, put a bullet into a small saloon rifle, which accidentally discharged. The bullet passed through a wooden partition, wounding Beer in the nose. The sufferer was at once taken to the hospital, where at a late hour last evening he was reported to be doing favourably, and out of any danger.

ABOUT midnight on Thursday a fatal accident occurred at the Newtown station. A cabman named John Cullinan, residing at Enmore-road, Marrickville, was knocked down and killed by a locomotive at the railway crossing near the Newtown platform. Deceased was seen crossing the line at the time by William Walker, a shunter, of 68, Cooper-street, Surry Hills, who called out to him that the engine was coming, but deceased did not appear to hear the warning. Walker tried to catch hold of the man, but the effort was too late. The engine struck him, breaking the right arm and right thigh, death resulting soon after the unfortunate man was extricated. The driver of the train ([illegible] Mayne), the guard (Henry Holland), and the fireman (Horace Clark) were on the engine at the time of the accident. The body was removed to the South Sydney morgue, where an inquest will be held at 2 p.m. to day by the City Coroner.

MR. ROBERT HACK, licensee of the White Horse Hotel, Parramatta, met with a very severe accident while returning to Parramatta from Mortlake in a buggy driven by Mr. M. Kinchella on Thursday evening. When in the vicinity of Auburn the occupants of the vehicle turned round to look at a horseman following them, when their horse swerved from the track and brought the buggy into collision with an alignment post. Both men were thrown out, and Mr. Hack was rendered insensible, but Mr. Kinchella escaped with a few bruises and a shaking. The horse disengaged itself from the vehicle and bolted, but was subsequently captured and taken back. Dr. Curtayne, of Granville, who happened to be passing in his buggy shortly after the occurrence, conveyed Mr. Hack to Parramatta, where his injuries were attended to, but it was not till about five hours after the accident that he regained consciousness. It was found that, although no bones were broken, he had sustained serious injury to the head, and up to a late hour last evening he was in a critical condition.

THE man John Green, who was sentenced at the Central Police Court on Thursday to receive a flogging of 15 lashes for indecently exposing himself to a girl in Hyde Park, was whipped yesterday at the Woolloomooloo lockup. The prisoner felt the punishment very keenly, and broke down at the seventh stroke; but on being brought round, he received the other eight lashes with comparative endurance.

HAD the Governments of the various English colonies (says the Pall Mall Gazette) in which the late Oriental Bank had branches acted as the authorities at Singapore have done, the failure would have been productive of wide-spread calamity all over the East. The Straits Government appears to have had a trifling sum—less than £10,000—deposited in the branch of the Oriental Bank at Singapore, and instead of setting an example of calmness and confidence to the natives under his care, the acting Governor promptly obtained a writ from the colonial courts, in virtue of which the sheriff broke into the bank, and, notwithstanding the protests of the manager, seized the whole amount alleged to be due to the Government. The principal depositors in Singapore appear to have been Chinese and Malays, and it is therefore impossible to censure too strongly the precipitate and panic-stricken step of those to whom these depositors would naturally look in such a juncture. Besides which, the legality of this proceeding is rather doubtful, and will no doubt engage the attention of the official liquidator and of Mr. Justice Chitty.

WE learn from the New Zealand Times that on the [illegible] September Mr. Macandrew gave notice of a lengthy series of motions to the effect that, whereas there are millions of acres of Crown land in this colony capable of supporting a numerous industrial population, this House is of opinion that there need be no unemployed in New Zealand; and that the Government should take steps whereby those who are able and willing to work, but who may be unable to procure employment otherwise, may obtain free-grant allotments of land upon similar terms and conditions to those provided under the Auckland homestead regulations; such allotments not to exceed ten acres for each male adult. And that, whereas there is a large area of Crown lands (about 100,000 acres) at present entirely unoccupied, between Catlin's River and Waihara, peculiarly adapted for settlement by a population such as the Highland crofters, whose avocations have always combined, to a large extent, sea fishery and cultivation of the soil. Resolved: (1.) That a special settlement of say 10,000 acres be laid off into 10-acre sections, one-third of which shall be available as free grants of one section to each family settling thereon, on terms and conditions similar to those embodied in the Auckland homestead regulations, the remaining two-thirds to be open for application by the said settlers only, at a fixed price of say 20s. an acre cash. (2.) That the Government be requested to take such action as may be deemed most expedient towards inducing as large a number as may be of the said crofters to occupy the said special settlement.

FURTHER evidence has been taken at the Bar of the Legislative Council of Victoria regarding the proposal to amalgamate the legal professions. Mr. Frank J. Stephen (says the Argus), an attorney of 39 years' standing in Victoria, gave testimony against amalgamation, remarking that those who thought it would result in the reduction of law expenses were "very green." Amalgamation would be a retrograde step. Judge Noel, of the Insolvent Court, informed the committee that the practice by which a solicitor appeared for him and conducted a case from beginning to end worked most satisfactorily, and saved the expense of retaining a barrister, and also the cost of preparing briefs, attending conferences, and advising. In this respect it benefited both creditors and insolvents. Compulsory division of legal labour caused additional expense, and he believed that many solicitors were capable of appearing before the Supreme Court as barristers. "Would not amalgamation result in the deterioration of the status of Judges?" asked Mr. Ross. "There is no danger of that," responded Judge Noel, "as those who have the selection of Judges take care to choose none but fit men," a remark that provoked one of the very few bursts of laughter indulged in by the Chamber during the sitting. Mr. John Robb, a contractor, who has had experience in law proceedings in Tasmania, South Australia, and Western Australia, where amalgamation exists, stated that it appeared to give satisfaction to the people. It was very convenient, but did not save expense.

THE Argus summarises the result of Victorian returns for the quarter ending September 30 as follows:—A net increase of £188,960 is shown for the quarter, and [illegible] for the 12 months. In the Customs the total receipts for the quarter just closed are £482,649, as against £449,509 for the September quarter of 1883, and these show a considerable increase. Spirits, on which the duty has been altered, have risen from £119,487 to £141,378—a difference of £21,891; and ad valorem duties from £124,694 to £136,470—a difference of £11,776. Wharfage rates have fallen from £6987 to £6816. The bulk of the wharfage rates goes to the Harbour Trust, which allows the Government a small percentage to defray the cost of collection, and this percentage alone is shown on the returns. Stamps yielded £28,783, as against £21,361 in 1883, while sugar and molasses were less by £4041. In excise and inland revenue one noticeable change is shown. The duties on estates of deceased persons yielded £40,129, or £37,182 more than in the corresponding quarter of 1883. The principal difference in the territorial revenue is an increase of £12,729 in the proceeds of sales by auction, the figures for the two quarters being £10,903 in 1883, and £23,632 in 1884. Public works show a heavy augmentation, nearly the whole of which has to be credited to the railways. In the September quarter of 1883 the railway income was £396,498, and in the quarter just closed £482,917; difference, £86,419. In 1883 three classes of stamps were used, now only one. The net difference in the revenue is ascertained by deducting the separate items in the 1883 returns from the single item in the returns for 1884. An increase of £12,000 is shown. The total revenue from stamps in the quarter just closed was £132,493. All the increases in all the departments amount to £320,915, and all the decreases to £181,955. The one total taken from the other gives the net increase of £138,960. The returns for the 12 months do not call for remark.

AS a noted shot—of men and other animals (exclaims the Pall Mall Gazette)—Colonel Burnaby delights in good sanguinary metaphors. "John Bull," he told the Birmingham excursionists at Malvern, "in a weak moment took Mr. Gladstone on his shoulders in the year 1880. Unhappy John had ever since been spurred, whipped, and kicked; Mr. Gladstone had made him swim through oceans of blood, and galloped him over mountains of corpses." It may be very uncharitable, but one cannot help feeling that Colonel Burnaby's indignation at these things, which is so strong for electioneering purposes, is a little inconsistent with his more than soldierly zeal in that blood-bath in the Eastern Soudan, which he, according to his detractors, regarded in the light of an agreeable shooting party. Be that as it may, Colonel Burnaby's rough experiences abroad have not impaired the native urbanity of his humour. Mr. Gladstone, he told his admiring audience, had been well compared to a shorthorn. "Shorthorns, admirable as they are for culinary purposes, are singularly devoid of courage. They will attack a lady's Egyptian greyhound, and run away at the sight of a Boer's terrier. To the cowardice of the sheep they unite the obstinacy of the pig, and can only be made to enter the Spanish ring save after their tails have been twisted by the bull-fighters." Delicate satire truly!

THE recent case of a State schoolmaster, named Wollaston (says the Age), who was fined £5 for holding divine service in his schoolroom at Campbelltown, came before the Assembly on Wednesday. Mr. Fincham asked the Minister of Education if the case as stated in the newspapers was correct, and Mr. Gillies explained the circumstances at some length. It appears that Mr. Wollaston applied to the secretary of the Education Department for permission to hold service on Sunday in his school, and on it being pointed out to him that such a course would be in direct contravention of the Act he appealed to the Minister, who returned a similar reply. Notwithstanding these prohibitions, he persisted in conducting divine service, and the Minister, on being informed of the fact, fined the schoolmaster £5 for his gross disobedience. He laid himself open to suspension, as the Act expressly prohibits a State school teacher from giving religious instruction in a State school at any time; and Mr. Gillies concluded by remarking, amidst expressions of approval, that Mr. Wollaston had brought on himself any punishment with which he had been visited.

THE Pall Mall Gazette of August 19 writes:—"Dealers of experience now contend that various stock markets have got into a precarious and doubtful state. They do not scruple to say that prices of colonial stocks have run up too fast and too far. This may not be strictly true; but it is difficult to see what chance of a further rise there is now in colonial Government stocks. The present facilities of borrowing are such that a good many of the Governments will respond to the anxiety of the settlers to provide new public works for the benefit of various colonies, and perhaps they will be right in so responding; at any rate, there is as yet no finality to colonial borrowings under circumstances like these. The land is at hand, and apparently only wants development by the aid of Government money, so that a new supply of Government stocks is tolerably certain as time goes on."

THAT ingenious custom in use in Parliament by Government officials when asked an inconvenient question upon one subject to return an answer upon another, is (says the United Service Gazette) still in vogue, and was used with brilliant success by Mr. Campbell-Bannerman, in reply to Mr. Newdegate's questions relative to the use of our mercantile marine in time of war, and whether, if the enemy had many Alabama cruisers about the country was likely to starve somewhat, and more to this effect, in which the honourable member quoted Admiral Symonds. Now, what was the ingenious reply? Why, first, that Admiral Symonds "was in the habit of writing letters;" secondly, that Admiral Symonds was one of several distinguished officers holding the rank of Admiral of the Fleet. Considering that Mr. Newdegate, who was well received by the House of Commons, said "he thought it his duty to bring the subject under the serious attention of the House," this answer was not very necessary; but no doubt it served the purpose for which it was intended, and stalled off a disagreeable subject.

WE learn from a London paper that a Mr. J. E. H. Gordon has circulated a letter from his brother in Fiji, which throws a new light upon the labour question. His brother says that the Polynesians go to other colonies because in Fiji only £3 per annum is allowed to be paid. There are, however, he continues, plenty of men willing to work in Fiji, but they are prevented from doing so by the chiefs. "They are absolutely their slaves; everything they have on which money can be raised is seized and sold by the chief; they are unwilling to work on a plantation, for their wages will be taken from them by their chief. What we want is that a native should be a free man; free to work and earn money if he wishes to; free also to spend it or keep it, when he has got it. Under the present regulations, no man may leave the district in which he was born; no matter how barren the land may be, or how scarce food, there he must stay, and live and die working for his chief and taxes, no matter what wages he can earn or how plentiful food may be in another district."

HOLDERS of invitation and members' cards for the Royal Society's conversazione, to be held in the University Hall on Wednesday evening, are requested by advertisement to present their cards on entering. Each card will admit one person only.

SERIOUS RAILWAY COLLISION AT BRISBANE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

A serious railway collision took place this evening between the 5.30 up train from Brisbane and a material train from Mitchell. The former train, which was due at Oxley five minutes before the other, should have waited to allow the down train to pass, but the stationmaster apparently forgot about the coming of the special goods train, and allowed the passenger train to proceed. The trains met in a curved cutting near Dacra, and the drivers did not see each other until too late. The goods train, drawn by an English engine, which was coming up the incline, completely smashed an American engine drawing the passenger train. The driver of the latter had his left leg almost completely cut off, and his arms badly hurt and body scalded. One passenger had his collar-bone broken, and several other passengers were severely shaken. Two or three carriages were wrecked. The injured persons were taken to the Ipswich Hospital, but the driver died before reaching the institution.

SMALLPOX IN VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The Central Board of Health have received information that there are two cases of modified smallpox at Nar Nar Goon, near Berwick. The parties are the grown-up son and daughter of Mr. Eyton, saddler, Queen-street, Melbourne, and they were sent to Nar Nar Goon about a week ago, great concealment having been practised. The house in which they are staying is situated in a very isolated place, and they are now so far well as to require no treatment. It has transpired that the man Wilson in Collingwood, who was yesterday reported to have smallpox, is a saddler, who has been working at Mr. Eyton's shop. The man Armstrong in Bourke-lane, the third of the cases reported yesterday, was removed to the Sanatorium this morning, and every precaution has been taken at his house, at Wilson's, and at the boarding-house, in Little Collins-street, where was the first of yesterday's three reported cases. Only one of the boarders at the last-mentioned place returned home last night, and the rest, eight in number, are not to be found. If they do not voluntarily return to be vaccinated and attended to otherwise, the Central Board of Health will order them to be all conveyed to the Sanatorium when found. Previous to Thursday the Sanatorium had become nearly empty.

The Central Board of Health met to-day, when the president alluded to the three fresh cases of smallpox which were mentioned in yesterday's telegram. He said that the circumstance pointed to the probability of the facts as to the disease being suppressed, and he had drawn the attention of the Chief Commissioner of Police, asking him to give orders for a searching inquiry by the plain-clothes police. It was agreed to ask the Chief Secretary not to propose any change in the law of vaccination until the report of the Intercolonial Sanitary Conference had been considered.

A fire broke out last night, at 8.30, in Mr. Esler's saddler's shop, which was totally consumed with the attached dwelling. The stock-in-trade and building were partly insured, but the furniture and other effects were uninsured. The night was calm; otherwise the adjoining premises, occupied by Mr. Farrell, manager of the Bank of Australasia, would also have gone. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Esler's wife had only left the house about three quarters of an hour before the fire was discovered, and then all was apparently safe. Mr. Esler is a heavy loser by the fire, and much sympathy is expressed for him.

It was decided to ask the Wilcannia committee to pay for the work done by the Rev. Mr. Jennings at Narandera, which was highly commended. The Rev. THE VICTORIAN TURF.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The Andes has been scratched for the Caulfield and Melbourne Cups. Bargo was firm for the Derby, finishing off at 60 to 40 taken.

Mr. D. Lawson's string of horses arrived at Flemington overland from Sydney to-day, and took up their quarters at Mitchell's Racecourse Hotel. Mr. James Monaghan also brought over his lot, and put up at the Pastoral Hotel.

THE TURF.

Last evening Hastings again came into the Caulfield Cup betting, and, after all the 1000 to 80 had been taken, left off at a shade shorter. Inquiries were made about Vergy at 100 to 4, but 100 to 5 was the best offer to money. Frying-pan moved between 100 to 6 and 7, and Yately was in more or less favour at 100 to 5, while the same figure was forthcoming about Battalious. Speculation on the events of the V. R. C. was very quiet, and the prices remained as previously quoted. It is now certain that King's Own will not be able to start for the Victorian Derby, and the fact is greatly to be regretted, for he is a very fine colt, and would have taken a deal of beating.

CRICKET.

Owing to the number of matches to be played during the season for the Junior Cup, and taking into consideration the length of time required to finish a match the committee of the Junior Cricket Association has decided to push on with the first round of the competition; with that object in view two extra wickets have been made in Moore Park. To-day three matches are to be played for the trophy, viz.:—The Oriental v. Wentworth and Our Boys v. Mercantile on the Agricultural Society's Ground, and the Kingston and Summer Hill on the Old Cup wickets on Moore Park. Players are reminded that 2.15 p.m. sharp is the time fixed for starting the matches in these contests.

This afternoon the first senior contest of the season will take place on the Association Cricket Ground, between the first elevens of the University and Carlton Clubs; and elsewhere every available piece of ground around Sydney will be alive with contesting clubs.

ROYAL SYDNEY YACHT SQUADRON.

The members of Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron will celebrate the opening of the season to-day. Yachts will assemble in Farm Cove at 1 p.m. sharp for evolutions, after which they will rendezvous at Cremorne for dinner. The steamer Prince of Wales will leave the floating jetty, Phillip-street, at 1.15 p.m., for the conveyance of visitors to Cremorne.

SYDNEY AMATEUR SAILING CLUB.

The 12th annual meeting of the Sydney Amateur Sailing Club was held last night at the Exchange Hotel. The members present were Messrs. A. J. Soutar, vice-commodore (in the chair), Scarr, Stokes, Goddard, Stafford, Gall, Grant, Underwood, Stevens, Dietrich, Gale, and Trebeck. The following new members were elected:—Messrs. Harris, Siddington, Martin, Ives, and M'Mahon, and a number of other gentlemen were proposed for election:—The secretary (Mr. Trebeck) read the annual report, which ran as follows:—"The committee have much pleasure in presenting to the members the twelfth annual report for the year ending the 30th September, 1884. During the past year Mr. G. C. Elliott has filled the office of commodore, this being his third year of office. Mr. A. J. Soutar has been vice-commodore, and the offices of hon. secretary and treasurer have been filled by Messrs. P. C. Trebeck and T. Stokes respectively, while the committee consisted of Messrs. Creagh, Dietrich, Williams, Grant, and W. Johnson. Owing to the illness of the last-named gentleman, Mr. Gall was appointed to the vacancy. The financial statement of the hon. treasurer is hereto attached, showing that the total receipts are £202 16s. 3d.; made up of subscriptions £117 8s. 6d.), donations and other sources (£85 7s. 9d.); the expenditure is £184 18s. 10d., leaving a balance at the credit of the club of £17 17s. 5d. During the year 26 new members have been elected, and the club-roll now contains 130 members. The committee have to thank Messrs. Elliott, Richardson Geddes, Newton, and M'Murtrie for their liberal donations of prizes presented during the past season, and for the coming season Messrs. Elliott, Ainsworth, and Want have already promised prizes. The committee have to report a favourable racing season, although in some few instances the entries were not so numerous as could be desired, two races falling through owing to insufficient entries. The first race of the season took place on December 1st, when Mr. J. J. Richardson's trophy was sailed for, Mr. S. M'Donnell's Lottie being the winner. On December 8, Mr. S. N. Newton's trophy was won by Mr. J. J. Richardson's Thisbe. January 20, Mr. J. H. Geddes' trophy, which brought no less than 20 boats to the starting point; won by Mr. Ainsworth's Regina; Mr. J. M'Murtrie's St. Crispin second prize; Mr. C. Goddard's Eula, third prize. February 2, Commodore Elliott's trophy, won by Mr. Mann's Bacchante. February 9, club prize, won by Mr. Ainsworth's Regina. February 9, Mr. J. J. Richardson's trophy, won by Mr. Cameron's Sophia. March 8, club prize, won by Mr. J. Newton's Petrel. March 15, club prize, won by Mr. S. N. Newton's Ianthe. March 15, club prize, won by Mr. Gall's Nereid. April 5, club prize, won by Mr. Creagh's Victor. Owing to the increasing number of half-deck boats, the committee have found it necessary to divide the boats into two classes, the 1st class consisting of boats exceeding 20 feet overall, and second class, 20 feet and under. The committee note with much pleasure the revival of the 24-feet open-boat sailing best and best, which promises to be a prominent feature in the coming season. In conclusion, the committee would say that, notwithstanding the heavy pecuniary loss of over £500 sustained by the club, owing to the resumption of the club-house by the Government, they must congratulate the members on the satisfactory position of its finances." The treasurer read the financial statement of the club's affairs. The chairman, in speaking on the substance of the report, drew attention to the satisfactory position the club had maintained, in spite of the heavy loss it had suffered by being deprived of their shed. The report was unanimously adopted. In the selection for office-bearers for the forthcoming season, Mr. Dietrich was appointed commodore, without opposition. The chairman remarked that he was glad Mr. Dietrich had been elected to the position, for ever since that gentleman had become a member of the club he had done his best to further its interests. Mr. Dietrich, in returning his thanks, assured the members he would do everything he could for the benefit of the club. He regretted that there were so few members present, considering that in the old times they would have about 70 members at the ordinary monthly meeting. Mr. J. J. Richardson was elected vice-commodore, Mr. P. C. Trebeck was re-elected secretary, and Mr. T. Stokes, who has been hon. treasurer for eight years past, was again called to the office. The committee elected were Messrs. Grant, Soutar, Williams, Stafford, and Wilson, and the auditors Messrs. Goddard and Scarr. A vote of thanks to the retiring officers brought the meeting to a close. The committee anticipate a large muster at the opening of the season on the 18th instant. There will be a short series of evolutions, and a luncheon at Cremorne.

ATHLETICS.

An athletic gathering will be held to-day and next Saturday at Kelly's new running grounds, Botany, when a couple of pedestrian events and a jumping competition will take place. For the quarter-mile handicap there are 26 entries, among whom is T. Malone (the champion), who concedes as much as 45 yards start to some of his antagonists. There are 21 entries for the seven miles walking match, J. M. O'Connor, of New Zealand, being placed at scratch. The handicaps have been nicely adjusted by Mr. Frank Wilkinson, and some exciting finishes may be expected. Special trains will run to the ground.

The final heats for the M'Snella trophy will be rowed over the Waterview course, Balmain, this day, at 3 p.m. The donor is the proprietor of the Forth and Clyde Hotel, Mort's Dock, and the trophy is a cup valued at 25 guineas, which will be presented at the hotel immediately after the contest.

CHEAP LABOUR ON VESSELS.

Last night a public meeting was held in the Masonic Hall, York-street, for the purpose of discussing the question of manning intercolonially trading vessels with Chinese crews, and although through some mistake the meeting was not advertised, there were about 400 persons present, for the most part directly interested in the question at issue. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. Wright, President of the Trades and Labour Council, and there were also present on the platform Messrs. L. F. Heydon, A. Cameron, F. Abigail, and D. O'Connor, Ms.L.A.; Mr. B. Douglas, President of the Trades' Hall Council, Melbourne, Mr. T. Symonds, Secretary of the Trades and Labour Council, Sydney, and representatives of the Seamen's Union, Shipmasters, Mates, and Engineers' Association, Coal Lumpers and Wharf Labourers' Unions, and the Cooks and Stewards' Association. The chairman read an apology for the unavoidable absence of the Mayor of Sydney, and after briefly stating the object of the meeting, introduced Mr. Douglas, of Melbourne, to make a few preliminary remarks.

Mr. DOUGLAS, who was received with much applause, intimated that he had just arrived in Sydney to attend the forthcoming eight hours' demonstration, and thus to show the sympathy the working men of Victoria felt for their fellows in New South Wales. It was therefore quite opportune that he attended that meeting to assist in the movement in progress against any attempt to supplant the British sailor by coloured labour. (Cheers.) In this matter they had a duty to perform to themselves, their families, and to posterity, and if they did not at once check the infamous system proposed, they would be unworthy the name of British subjects. (Cheers.) The threatened evil was one which affected not only New South Wales but all the colonies, and was only to be met by the power of trades' unions in each colony, and by the federated action of all. (Cheers.) In Victoria he was proud to be able to say that the trades' unions had such a power that the Legislature was pleased to make their acquaintance, and he might almost add, to do their bidding. (Hear, hear.) Holding such a powerful position as that, he desired to convey to the Sydney unions their earnest sympathy in all that was for the general welfare, and to promise their fellow organisations in New South Wales their heartiest co-operation in the present agitation. (Cheers.)

Mr. M'QUEEN moved the first resolution, as follows:—"That this meeting protests against the employment of coolie and Chinese labour in the Australian trade as being dangerous to the interests of the colonial seamen, lowering the standard of the British sailor, impairing our maritime supremacy, enabling ships so manned to drive colonial vessels from their legitimate occupation, introducing the thin end of the wedge in regard to coloured labour in all walks of life, and being dangerous to our morals, our wealth, and our civilisation." The mover said that the evil was a small one at present, but if not nipped in the bud it would soon grow to giant dimensions, and be found most difficult to deal with. Therefore he urged all interested to combine at once to banish Chinese labour from our coasts. (Cheers.)

Captain BERNARD seconded the motion, and urged all to stand shoulder to shoulder to resist the threatened invasion at the outset. Where, he would like to know, would England get the men to man her boasted navy in time of European complications if, now, her sailors were driven from the ships by mercenaries from China? In the height of her power Rome fell through passing by her own flesh and blood to trust in mercenaries, who failed her in the hour of need, and England might well take a warning from that mighty empire's fate. (Cheers.) The companies trading here with vessels manned by Chinese were of little benefit to the community compared with the local companies employing a large amount of white labour, and if the Chinese made their way at sea, around our coasts, a great deal of the unskilled labour they replaced would be driven into the country, and wives and families left to starve in Sydney. (Cheers.) The Messageries Maritimes Company was making a great show here, but nothing to what it would do yet, and he knew from his own experience that the lower class of service on these boats was paid for at the rate of 5, 10, and 12 francs a month, so that some men on them were getting 10s. a month, where to men on the intercolonial boats £9 a month was paid. This made a great difference in the rates at which freight could be carried from port to port, and seeing that in New Caledonia a foreign vessel coasting round had to pay a franc and a half a ton measurement at each port entered, he did not believe in submitting to such a system of robbery, and at the same time giving French boats all the privileges British vessels enjoyed in the Australian coast trade. (Cheers.) With regard to the Chinese, he would say again, they were useless in cases of great emergency, and the frequency of leprosy amongst them was an additional reason for keeping them away from our shores. (Cheers.)

Mr. O'CONNOR, M.L.A., supported the resolution, which he said dealt with matter affecting not merely the seamen or lumpers or wharf labourers of New South Wales, but the whole of the colonies. (Cheers.) It was a national affair, and it would not be necessary to struggle long to show that to the public, to gain the hearty support not only of the trades unions but the people and press of this country. The leaders in the present agitation had shown themselves to be both moderate and equitable; and under such circumstances, if properly supported, they must lead their followers to victory. (Cheers.) There was no need for turbulence. The Chinese had their rights as well as we, and were a great nation when England was hardly known; but still, if they had fallen from their high estate, it was not our fault. We were bound to preserve our own civilisation at as high a point as possible, and while we respected the rights of those Chinese already amongst us, it was our duty to prevent any great influx of them to these shores. He would support the resolution with pleasure, and in or out of Parliament would give the movement his support. (Cheers.)

Mr. HEYDON, M.L.A., also supported the resolution, and recognised the all importance of the subject therein treated. The purity of our race depended upon keeping the country free from the degraded Chinese, and their presence here, even in a small degree, would disturb the whole condition of labour. (Cheers.) He was sorry to find that there were capitalists amongst us who would sacrifice their poorer brethren in order to make a greater profit by employing coloured labour. Everything should be done to aid the British sailors, but for whose enterprise we should not be here to-day, and in view of the French boats now running to Australia and the suspicious movements of the German vessels in the Pacific, he considered that it was only common wisdom to foster the British seamen all along our coast. (Cheers.) The struggle between France and China had shown how inferior a race the Chinese were, and let us, therefore, keep our land for ourselves. Perpetual vigilance was the price of liberty, as had been truly said, and he trusted the traders in the present movement would succeed in maintaining the Australian continent for that race of which he was proud to be a son. (Cheers.)

The motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. E. W. O'SULLIVAN moved the second resolution, as follows:—"That this meeting earnestly calls upon all the trade organisations of Australia to unite in combating the evil of coloured labour, and urges every person who is desirous of preserving our civilisation intact, to aid in the attempt now being made to grapple decisively with the danger." To show how this danger had grown he would point out that there were now three lines of steamers manned by Chinese running round the coast from Port Darwin to Adelaide, and working at so low a rate that if the employment of the Chinese in the coastal trade was not prohibited in some way, the colonial steamship companies would have to collapse or employ Chinese themselves. The A. S. N. Company spent about £500,000 in Sydney every year, against which the companies employing Chinese expended only some £26,000 in nine years and a half, so that it was very evident which side should receive the support of the community. (Cheers.) If the colonial companies did collapse, a very large proportion of the profit they now made would go away to the Chinese merchants of Hongkong and Shanghai, who were sometimes large shareholders in the steamers coming down the coast with coloured crews on board; and this was another reason why the local companies should be supported in their employment of white labour, and the Chinese sailors should be discouraged from coming here. Some day China would realise its great power, and it would be a sorry day for Australia if the Chinese got a large footing here before that time arrived. (Cheers.) On national, moral, and civilised grounds, he objected to a Chinese invasion here, and for these reasons he heartily supported the objects of the meeting. (Cheers.)

Mr. M'KILLOP (Wharf Labourers' Union) seconded the resolution.

Mr. ANGUS CAMERON, M.L.A., supported the motion, and, while admitting the brotherhood of man, maintained that we were perfectly justified in taking steps to prevent our own labour being degraded, and our morals contaminated by Asiatic labour and vice. On these grounds legislation had already been directed against the Chinese, and if we found our labour interfered with we must make another law prohibiting these steamship companies which employed Chinese from coming here at all. (Cheers.)

Mr. ABIGAIL, M.L.A., also supported the resolution, and urged unity of action in the present agitation upon the seamen and all banded together with them for the purpose of gaining their object. When Parliament passed the poll tax he thought the Chinese question had been settled; but it seemed that such was not the case, owing to the presence in our midst of men who cared nothing for the welfare of the country, provided they could amass wealth. (Cheers.) His services might be commanded in any way by the seamen for resisting the encouragement of the Chinese in the directions indicated. (Cheers.)

The resolution was then carried unanimously.

Captain EVERILL moved the third resolution, as follows:—"That this meeting, bearing in mind the immense number of persons travelling by sea around the Australian coast, and the necessity of training a large proportion of our youth to the seafaring life, urges upon the Legislature the necessity for passing an enactment making it imperative upon vessels engaged on the Australian coast to carry European crews, officers, and apprentices, and to withhold passenger certificates from all vessels which fail to comply with such a law, as a necessary precaution for the public safety."

Mr. BRENNAN (Cooks and Stewards' Union) seconded the motion, and pointed out that at the present time the Government was subsidising the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, which carried coloured labour on board its vessels.

The motion was carried unanimously, and it was decided to incorporate it in a petition to Parliament, Mr. Doran, in moving to this effect, taking the opportunity of denying that the present agitation was fomented by the colonial steamship companies.

A vote of thanks was passed to the chair, and the meeting broke up amidst cheers.

A conference took place at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday morning between the representatives of the Chinese-manned steamship companies trading on the Australian coast, and delegates from the Vigilance Committee appointed by the various bodies interested in the question to promote the anti-cheap labour movement. Three firms were represented, namely—Messrs. Lorimer, Rome, and Co. (by Mr. Rome), Gibbs, Bright, and Co. (by Mr. Woolridge), and G. R. Stevens and Co. (by Mr. Stevens); while the Vigilance Committee were represented by Messrs. J. Wright and E. W. O'Sullivan (for the Seamen's Union), Captains Bernard and Everill (for the Ship masters, Mates, and Engineers' Association), Messrs. M'Queen and W. Smith (for the Coal Lumpers' Union; Messrs. R. M'Killop and T. Dunlop for the Wharf Labourers' Union; and Messrs. Brennan and M'Farlane for the Cooks and Stewards' Association. After an animated but conciliatory discussion, conducted conversationally on the question of the employment of Chinese and coolie labour in the intercolonial trade, the representatives of the shipping firms asked the committee to state its demands in writing, and submit them to the agents by Wednesday next, which request the delegates from the committee acceded to: and for the purpose of drawing up a statement of its side of the case, the committee will meet next Tuesday evening. Upon receipt of this document the agents promised full consideration of the subject with the least possible delay.

THE GOVERNMENT RAILWAY POLICY.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

TUMUT, FRIDAY.

A large and enthusiastic public meeting was held this afternoon, at the Oddfellows' Hall, to consider the railway policy of the Government. Mr. F. W. Vyner, police magistrate, was in the chair. It was proposed by Mr. R. A. Newman, and seconded by Mr. R. M. Shelley, J.P.—"That this meeting views with the greatest satisfaction the action of the Government in including a line from Gundagai to Tumut, via Adelong, in their railway policy." It was proposed by Mr. M. Tuohy, J.P., and seconded by Mr. J. Weeden.—"That the foregoing resolution be forwarded, through the member for the district, to the Government." It was also proposed by Mr. W. Bridle, J.P., and seconded by Mr. R. Dear,—"That a vote of thanks be recorded to our member, Mr. T. C. O'Mara, for his exertions in assisting to obtain a railway." The above resolutions were carried unanimously.

NEWCASTLE, FRIDAY.

The Northern Railway League held a meeting in the Newcastle Council-chamber this afternoon, the Mayor of Newcastle occupying the chair. West Maitland, Wickham, Wallsend, Hamilton, Waratah, and Newcastle were represented. The chairman expressed his indignation and disappointment at the railway policy of the Government, and asked the conference what should be done on the subject. Mr. Hynds, mayor of West Maitland, suggested that as letters were pouring in from the numerous leagues in the north asking for support for smaller and less important lines, the Northern League should devote its energies to the Narrabri-Walgett line and the Dubbo-Coonamble line. General indignation was expressed at the false promises previously held out by the Government, and one of the speakers said that there were evidences to prove that Mr. Wright had been in favour of the Narrabri-Walgett line till the influence of Mr. Dibbs, as locum tenens, had committed the Government to the present policy, which Mr. Wright could not now alter. Dr. Morgan said it was absurd to suppose that the country would trust the Stuart Government with the expenditure of £14,000,000, and deprecated the reckless borrowing of loans which they would have to pay interest for in the future. Mr. T. Cox (Waratah) prophesied that Sir Henry Parkes and Sir John Robertson would be in power again shortly, and that they were the proper persons to expend the money. Ultimately Alderman Brookes moved,—"That the mayors of Newcastle and the different municipalities be requested to convene public meetings of the citizens to adopt a petition to Parliament praying for the Narrabri-Walgett and Coonamble-Dubbo extensions, and that these petitions be signed by the various mayors on behalf of the people." The motion was carried. The proceedings then closed with votes of thanks to the chairman and the Maitland visitors.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

The manager of the Silver Hill Mining Company, No Liability, reports having re-commenced work by driving east from the bottom of the western shaft, so as to further explore the mineral deposit through which that shaft had been sunk, and which assayed from 4 to 12 oz. of silver per ton from the surface to where discontinued at what appeared to be the foot wall. These workings are in a direct line between the Sunny Corner Silver-mining Company's workings and those of Hemworth and Co., now the Nevada Company, which have yielded and continue to yield rich deposits of ore. It is confidently expected that the lode will be reached in a short time.

Reports received from the mining manager of the Basaltic Gold-mining Company show that for the week ending 27th September the tunnel has been driven a further distance of five feet, making a total distance of 366 feet driven to date. There is no change in the nature of the granite, which still continues very hard.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Empress of India Lodge, I. O. G. T., held a very successful social evening on Thursday last, when a goodly number of members and visitors assembled to do justice to the good things provided, and to partake in a pleasant evening's entertainment. The lodge-room had been gaily decorated for the occasion, the good old Union Jack being supported on the right by the flag of the Australian colonies, whilst the Stars and Stripes did similar duty on the left. After a few of the more important items of business had been attended to, the lodge adjourned to harmony, and after some capital songs and recitations had been excellently rendered, the closing hour was announced, and the members dispersed with hearty good wishes for the success of all future gatherings of a similar nature.

WOOL, PRODUCE, AND STOCK REPORT.

WOOL.—The opening wool sale of the season was held on Wednesday by Messrs. Mort and Co., Limited, with a preliminary catalogue of about 850 bales. There was a large attendance of buyers. The competition was fairly spirited, and where the reserves were not high most of the lots were placed, there being an evident disposition on the part of buyers to do business if possible. The wool from the Western districts does not compare altogether favourably with the fleece forward last year, being more tender in the staple, and in consequence several of the lots of this description brought lower prices than clips from the same stations last year. Where the quality of wool was on a par with what was previously received, there was very little perceptible difference in value. But it cannot yet be said that there have been sufficient test lots offered to enable a fair comparison to be made between the fleece of the two seasons. As there are many buyers here, owing to the increasing desire shown to purchase in the colonies, there is no doubt that growers will have the benefit of a larger market than in any previous season; and thus a better opportunity of ensuring full values. About 504 bales were sold on Wednesday, greasy realising to 9½d., and scoured to 20½d. Of the remaining catalogues of last season's wool, about 120 bales and bags were sold. Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, hold their clearing-up sale of bags and oddments of last season's fleece on Monday afternoon, preparatory to submitting their opening catalogue, comprising 3000 bales, on the following Monday. The fleece is now arriving pretty freely by rail and steamer. From Newcastle we learn that the ships on the berth are not filling up so quickly as had been anticipated. The increasing disposition on the part of growers to test the large colonial market in Sydney, tends to limit the direct shipment of wool from the Northern port as well as from Sydney.

SHEEPSKINS.—At the auctions of the week there was good competition, and from 1½d. for pelts to 6½d. for superior full-woolled was the range of prices obtained.

TALLOW.—At yesterday's sales, 319 packages were offered, and 121 sold. Owing to the condition of the London market, the value of shipping parcels was lower. Business was entirely confined to trade lots, which were easier. The quotations are as follows: Best mutton, £29 to £30 per ton; best beef, £28 to £29 10s.; mixed and station, £26 to £28 per ton.

HIDES.—6211 were offered, and 5331 sold, at yesterday's sales. The market was again brisk for all descriptions, especially for well-conditioned lots. Shipping and trade lots were purchased freely. Quotations:—Extra heavies, 4½d. to 4¾d.; a few exceptional heavy weights realised up to 4¾d.; heavy, 4d. to 4¼d.; medium, 3¾d. to 4¼d.; light, 3½d. to 3¾d.; dry station, 4d. to 5½d. per lb. Horsehides realised for large, 6s. to 8s. 6d.; medium to small, 2s. 6d. to 5s. each. Kangarooskins, large, 30s. to 40s.; medium, 18s. to 29s.; small, 6s. to 15s.; wallaby, 2s. to 4s.; opossum, 2s. to 6s. per dozen.

LEATHER.—At the late sale the market was very quiet for all descriptions, and competition was not so active as in the previous week. Medium dressed goods were dull, as also were saddlers' goods. Quotations:—Sole: heavy, 11d. to 12d.; medium, 8½d. to 8¾d. Kip: best, 14½d. to 16½d.; medium, 12½d. to 13½d. Cow tweed: best, 18d. to 22d.; medium, 14d. to 16d. Yearling tweed, 19d. to 25d.; calf tweed, 20d. to 27d.; waxed calf, 24d. to 30s.; harness, 10d. to 13d.; bag, 8s. to 10s.; bridle, 8s. to 11s. 6d.

BONES AND HORNS.—The market continues firm, with an active sale. There was a good supply of bones, but horns were rather scarce. The following are the quotations:—Horns, large and sound, 27s. to 38s. per 100; medium, 12s. to 26s.: small, 2s. 6d. to 11s.; bones, shank, £5 to £14 10s. per ton; hoofs, £2 to £5 per 100.

HAIR.—There was a good supply at the late sales, with a firm market, and an active demand. Quotations:—Horse tail, 14d. to 20d. per lb.; washed cow, 11d. to 15d.; horse mane, 9d. to 1s.; stumps, 4d. to 8½d. per lb.; mixed, 8d. to 11d. per lb.

STORE CATTLE.—Although the rain has done some good, there has not been sufficient to give assurance of pasturage, and in consequence there is not yet very much improvement in business in store cattle. Bullocks quoted from 60s. to 85s., cows 55s. to 60s.

STORE SHEEP.—A fair inquiry is noted for store sheep, but the demand would be greatly increased by a sufficient rainfall. Young ewes, shorn, 10s. 6d. to 12s.; wethers, 5s. 6d. to 6s. 6d.

STATIONS.—The Stony Creek station, near Young, was sold during the week, also one or two properties in Queensland, but generally the market is quiet.

PRODUCE MARKET.—FRIDAY.

The Darling Harbour sales this morning were well attended by the trade. A large supply of forage and wool was offered, being the largest markets for some time. H. C. RUSSELL, GOVERNMENT ASTRONOMER.

NOTES EXPLANATORY OF MAP.

In the list of stations the column headed W.T. gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b standing for blue sky; c, detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; m, misty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; t, thunder; u, threatening. The next column, M'x gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours. M'n the corresponding minimum temperature; r'in the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained in the centre of it. At each coast station the wind symbol is placed like a vane pointing to the direction from which the wind is coming. A clear circle with it means fine weather; a circle with bar, cloudy weather; and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour; next, a symbol showing the state of the sea; and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt, Perth; Ay, Albany; Eu, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Ro, Robe; P, Portland; M, Melbourne; W P, Wilson's Promontory; Ga, Gabo; E, Eden; Ma, Moruya; G O, Jervis Bay; Wg, Wollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; P M, Port Macquarie; C, Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R, Rockhampton; Ct, Cooktown. Inland the state of the barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions, beginning in Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them and southerly following.

PAWNING A PAIR OF TROUSERS FOR MEDICINE.

James Francis Thomas lives in Pontnewynydd near Pontypool, Monmouthshire. He is now twenty-three years of age, living with his mother, a widow. Some eleven years ago, then a mere boy, he went to work in the coal pit as a miner, in order to assist his mother in rearing her family of little children. Soon, however, the little fellow broke down in health; but the necessities of the family seemed to require it, and he continued to toil in the mines, suffering all the time from the effects of indigestion, an agonising symptom being asthma, in such a troublesome form that the boy was unable to lie in bed. Working through the day, and resting as best he could in an armchair during the night, naturally undermined his constitution. Year by year his health grew worse and worse, until at last rheumatism came with all its dreadful agony. One joint after another became swollen and inflamed, so that he was obliged to stop work. In this sad plight the now young man was confined to the house for two long years, suffering all that mortal could endure. One physician after another was called upon to treat his complaint, but with no benefit, for the poor fellow continued to grow worse and worse. Hoping to find some means of relief, a consultation of doctors was held, when it was decided that an organic disease of the heart existed in an incurable form, and that medical aid could not afford relief. He was given up to die. These years of expensive medical treatment had exhausted the little savings of the mother, and they had no money to buy even the necessaries of life. But a fond mother never gives up in despair. There was one spark of hope left. Someone had told her of a remedy that had cured so many cases—even when as hopeless as this one seemed to be—and the mother's love went out for her dear boy. But how to get the medicine was the question. Their money was entirely gone. The boy had a new pair of trousers that he had been too ill to wear, and the mother reasoned within herself, "If the boy is to die he will not need them, so I may as well pledge them for medicine with an effort to save his life." Strange as it may appear, the bottles of medicine procured at the chemist's shop in Pontypool with the money obtained from the pawnbroker effected a cure in this hopeless case, which had been pronounced as incurable. But it is only just to say that, if the chemist had known of the wants of the family, the medicine could have been obtained without a visit to the pawnbroker. It is now nearly two years since this took place, and young James Francis Thomas has been working in the coal pit underground ever since, earning extra pay for overwork, which he is able to perform. Of course he never had organic disease of the heart, as was supposed. The palpitation, rheumatism, and asthma were mere symptoms of the real disease, which was dyspepsia, or indigestion, for which the remedy was specially adapted. Those who wish to communicate with this young man can write to him at the above address, and he will vouch for the curative properties of Seigel's Syrup, the article that effected this almost miraculous cure. The following letter is from a chemist, who thought the facts should be made known:—"James Francis Thomas, of Pontnewynydd, near Pontypool, age 23, collier, was ill for nine years, unable to do any work for three years, never lay down in bed for nine years, had to sleep in a stooping posture, was treated by nearly all the doctors for miles around, who generally stated his complaint to be rheumatism and heart disease or a chronic nature, and beyond all power to cure. When hope had nearly died out, he was persuaded to try Seigel's Syrup; and, to the delight of his relatives and astonishment of his neighbours, after taking half a bottle he could lie down in bed. After taking one bottle he went to work. Has now taken two bottles, and on with the third, and is quite well and strong. His mother is in raptures, and can talk of nothing else but his marvellous cure, and wishes me to make it known."

Dear Sir,—I write to tell you that Mr. Henry Hillier, of Yatesbury, Wilts, informs me that he suffered from a severe form of indigestion for upwards of four years, and took no end of doctor's medicine without the slightest benefit, and declares Mother Seigel's Syrup, which he got from me, has saved his life.

Yours truly,
(Signed) N. Webb, Chemist, Calne.

Mr. White.

Seigel's Operating Pills are the best family physic that has ever been discovered. They cleanse the bowels from all irritating substances, and leave them in a healthy condition. They cure costiveness.

St. Mary-street, Peterborough, November 29, 1881.

Sir,—It gives me great pleasure to inform you of the benefit I have received from Seigel's Syrup. I have been troubled for years with dyspepsia; but after a few doses of the Syrup I found relief, and after taking two bottles of it I feel quite cured.

I am, Sir, yours truly,
William Brent.

Mr. A. J. White.

September 8, 1883.

Dear Sir,—I find the sale of Seigel's Syrup steadily increasing. All who have tried it speak very highly of its medicinal virtues: one customer describes it as a "Godsend to dyspeptic people." I always recommend it with confidence.

Faithfully yours,
(Signed) Vincent A. Wills, Chemist-dentist.

Hensingham, Whitehaven, Oct. 16, 1882.

Mr. A. J. White.—Dear Sir,—I was for some time afflicted with piles, and was advised to give Mother Seigel's Syrup a trial, which I did. I am now happy to state that it has restored me to complete health.

I remain, yours respectfully,
(Signed) John H. Lightfoot.

APPRECIATION OF THE PUBLIC.

CHARLES S. PACKER,

a brilliant Pianist and the greatest Composer Australia has known, the associate of Mendelssohn, Thalberg, Hummel, and Weber; the accompanist of the world's sweetest singers—Mario, Grisi, Lablache; the author of the "Crown of Thorns," and many other noble compositions, handed us the following:—

"Sydney, 7th March, 1883.

"I have tested the Hapsburg Pianos, imported by Messrs. Beale and Company, in all the various grades, and am extremely pleased with the sweetness, fulness, and power of the instruments. The tone and finish are all that could be desired. The proper balancing of bass with treble is strictly adhered to. Generally I consider them unsurpassed by any instrument hitherto introduced.

(Signed) CHARLES PACKER,
"Royal Academician."

Madame CHARBONNET-KELLERMAN wrote:

"Ayant soumis les PIANOS HAPSBURG, de Messieurs Beale et Compagnie aux PLUS STRICTES ÉPREUVES, je déclare avoir été aussi charmée que surprise de la DOUCEUR EXQUISE DE LEUR TOUCHER, unie à une ampleur et une SONORITÉ REMARQUABLES.

"Je les recommande en toute sincérité.
"ALICE CHARBONNET-KELLERMAN,
"De la Conservatoire de Paris,
"Sydney, 20 Juin, 1883."

CERTIFICATE.

"I have subjected Messrs. Beale and Co.'s HAPSBURG PIANOS to the severest tests, and am greatly surprised and delighted at their MARVELLOUS SWEETNESS and POWER.

"I cordially recommend them.

AGAIN ANOTHER VERDICT.

"Montague-Turner Opera Company,
"Theatre Royal, July 20, 1883.
"To Messrs. Beale and Company.

"Gentlemen,—I congratulate you on your successful introduction of the Hapsburg Iron-framed Pianofortes.

"I have used several of them in different towns, and have invariably found them all that could be desired in a first-class pianoforte.

"Being extremely powerful, sweet and clear in tone, the touch is elastic and sympathetic; and although tuned above concert pitch (a test which few pianos will stand), I can always depend upon the Hapsburg Pianos remaining well in tune.

"I can strongly recommend the Hapsburg Pianos to any one desiring a first-class instrument at a very reasonable price.

"I remain, Gentlemen, yours, &c.
"J. A. DELANY.
"Conductor Montague-Turner Opera Company."

Governor Sir W. C. ROBINSON, of South Australia, the composer of "Unfurl the Flag" and other patriotic songs, himself a thorough musician, examined and tested the HAPSBURG PIANOS, and gave his unqualified recommendation, which was duly reported in the Adelaide papers at much greater length than can be here given.

Sir ARTHUR PALMER, Lieutenant-Governor of Queensland, selected and purchased from us a Hapsburg Piano on account of its special sweetness.

The Brisbane Courier, July 16, 1883.

"The Piano used for the accompaniments and the solos was a brilliant-toned Hapsburg, of which both singers and players speak very highly. This fine instrument was valued at 70 guineas."

Telegraph, July 16, 1883.

"The Piano used on the occasion was a Hapsburg of a beautiful quality of tone and plenty of power."

The Australian, July 21, 1883.

"The voices blended beautifully with the accompaniment, which was on one of the Hapsburg Grand instruments. The tone of this instrument is exceedingly pure and powerful, and its qualities under the thrilling touch of the conductor, were displayed with consummate effect."

Sydney Evening News.

"The Hapsburg Pianos are of excellent tone."

South Australian Register, Adelaide.

"The Hapsburg Pianos are all excellent workmanship. The manual throughout is remarkably sensitive to the touch, and the volume is admirably balanced, and entirely free from the wiry tone of inferior instruments."

VALUABLE TESTIMONY.

"Bishop's Court, Adelaide, 29th November, 1883.

"Mrs. Kennion has much pleasure in saying that she and those who have used the Hapsburg Piano at the Court have been much pleased by the quality and sweetness of the instrument.

"Mrs. Kennion will have much pleasure in recommending the the Hapsburg Pianos."

"Public School, Yass,
"March 22, 1883.
"Messrs. Beale and Company, Sydney.

"Gentlemen,—I feel that an injustice would be done to you if I failed to record my appreciation of the splendid Hapsburg iron-framed Piano which I purchased from you.

"As a teacher of music for many years and having a fairly accurate knowledge of the powers of most instruments, I take it upon myself to state that I have never met with an instrument possessing such purity and brilliancy of tone, combined with such internal mechanism. Externally the piano is really a picture, and forms an elegant ornament for the drawing-room. It has been in my possession long enough to prove to me that its sweetness increases with time, and that no climatic influences affect it in the slightest degree. I have no hesitation in recommending the pianos to anyone requiring a really first-class article at a very reasonable price.

"Yours, &c.,
"FRANCIS J. GALLAGHER."

AND THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS BESIDES.

THE SOCIAL IMPORTANCE OF THE PIANO.

"The social importance of the piano," said Thalberg, "is beyond all question, far greater than that of any other instrument of music. One of the most marked changes in the habits of society, as civilisation advances, is with respect to the character of its amusements. Formerly nearly all such amusements were away from home and in public; now, with the more educated portion of society, the greatest part is at home and within the family circle, music on the piano constituting the greatest portion of it. In the most fashionable circles of cities private concerts increase year by year, and in them the piano is the principal feature. Many a man engaged in commercial and other active pursuits finds the chief charm of his drawing-room in the intellectual enjoyment afforded by the piano. In many lands the instrument is the greatest solace of the studious and the solitary. Even steam and sailing vessels for passengers on long voyages are now obliged, by the fixed habits of society, to be furnished with Pianofortes, thus transferring to the ocean itself something to the character of home enjoyments. By the use of the Piano many who never visit the opera or concerts become acquainted with the choicest dramatic and orchestral compositions. This influence of the Piano is not confined to them, but extends to all classes; and while considerable towns have often no orchestra, families possess the best possible substitute, making them familiar withe finest compositions. The study of such compositions, and the application necessary for their proper execution, may be and ought to be made the means of greatly improving the general education, habits, and tastes of Piano students, and thus exercising an elevating influence in addition to that refined and elegant pleasure which it directly dispenses."

The foregoing cogent remarks were uttered by Thalberg, about 20 years ago. Since then the popularity of the Piano has increased in a ratio unforseen by that highly gifted artist, in his day Liszt's only rival. Now, a house is justly considered as incomplete unless furnished with a Piano of modern style. Parents who have fought a hard struggle, and have so far succeeded that around them in their comfortable homes are most of the conveniences and some of the art products of civilisation, and loth indeed that their children should want any of the means of refinement properly within their reach and appropriate to their station. Long denied to themselves, may be, still the inextinguishable longing for a higher culture in those dear to them is only intensified by their own conscious lack. Grateful, indeed, should their children be and grateful they commonly are, for all the ameliorating influences of the paternal home. And what tends more in this way to render their homes attractive, the "brightest spot on earth," than the softening influences of pure and sweet music. Admiration springs up in the hearts of the members of the family one for the other, and in the exercise of their accomplishments in instrumental performance or in singing the evening slips away in melody. Depend upon it, the reminiscence of those times is all for good. To the jaded body and jarred nerves of the daily toiler, the sweet songs of Mendelssohn, the lofty harmonies of Beethoven, are an exhilarating tonic, and the only harmless stimulant. Expand the mind in one department, and the cultivation of the other faculties is rendered easier. Purchase then a sweet HAPSBURG PIANO and proceed to develop in yourself or in others of your family that musical perception which is divinely implanted.

THE MARVELLOUS SUCCESS

which has attended the introduction of these SPLENDID INSTRUMENTS may be estimated by the fact that there are MORE IMPORTED and SOLD THROUGHOUT AUSTRALIA than those of ANY OTHER MAKE WHATEVER.

NOTICE.

FOR SALE. KAURI BUSH and other Timber on a block of land called Taparahi No. 2, 3280 acres, in the district of Hauraki. The Kirikiri Creek runs through it for a distance of 10 miles, and it is well adapted for floating timber. An estimate of the Kauri, Matai and other timbers has been made as follows:—

Kauri ...	6420 trees
Dry Kauri ...	108 trees
Fallen ditto ...	160 trees
Rimu ...	3000 trees
Matai (counted) ...	114 trees
Kahikatea (ditto) ...	178 trees
Totara ...	1428 trees.

The kauri trees are from 6ft. 6in. in circumference to 45ft. Calculating the lengths at 100, 120, 150, and 200ft., there would be about 160,000,000ft. of timber; but judging from the size of the trees it would greatly exceed that figure. Inspection solicited.

Our title to the land is certificate of title under the Native Land Act, 1873. Number of grantees, 25. All anxious to sell the land with timber, or timber alone, as may best suit purchasers. For any further information please apply to me, at Kirikiri Hotel, Kirikiri, Thames, New Zealand.

MARK THE DATE. A Month preceding the Opening of the Railway to Bungendore.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1884.

THE BRIGHTON OF THE COLONY.

THE BRIGHTON OF THE COLONY.

CLOSE TO THE WATERS OF LAKE GEORGE.

One of the most picturesque and lovely lakes in the whole of the Australias.

A few years hence this splendid subdivision and flourishing township will be the Favoured Sanatorium of Sydney.

THE TOWN ALLOTMENTS Will, on the completion of the Railway, and from the influx of population consequent therefrom, soon double their value.

THE LARGER SUBURBAN SITES Will, upon inspection, satisfy the most fastidious that for beauty of aspect there is nothing to equal them in the colony, and the FARMS, From their unwonted richness of soil and proximity to railway carriage, will be beyond the reach of other than large capitalists.

FINLAY and CO., Goulburn, have received instructions from Thomas Rutledge, Esq., Carwoola, to sell by auction, AT BUNGENDORE, on FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17, At 11 o'clock sharp, A portion of the celebrated GIDLEIGH ESTATE, Being without exception the Grandest, most liberal, in terms, and finest subdivision ever offered in the south.

185 TOWN ALLOTMENTS IN BUNGENDORE, Varying in size from 1a. 1r. and 36p. to 1r. and 17p., principally three-quarters of an acre, and comprising 16 sections, having frontages to Ellendon, Butmaroo, Rutledge, Majura, Forster, King, Molonglo, Powell, and Modbury streets. Sections 3 and 4 almost adjoin the goods-shed and railway station, and are really fine business sites, being only one section removed from the courthouse, school, Church of England, post and telegraph office, Sparrow's Hotel, and two removes from the Royal Hotel, Bank of New South Wales, Lake George Hotel and mills.

60 MAGNIFICENT SUBURBAN SITES and HOLDINGS, ranging from 3 acres to 8 acres. These adjoin the TOWN ALLOTMENTS, and are beautifully situated and exceedingly suitable for villa sites, holdings for small farmers, vegetable gardens, dairymen, &c. The richness and excellence of the soil will grow every kind of produce, for which Sydney is an open market.

44 SPLENDID FARMS, ready for the plough; rich chocolate soil, and said to equal anything in the colony. The crops taken from the adjoining estate surpass anything ever seen in this district. The total area comprised in the 44 farms is 1068 ACRES 0r. 25p., and these vary from 4 to 50 ACRES. Being in one block, the purchaser may make his farm as large as he chooses within the area named. The railway terminus is only ONE MILE from these farms, and produce grown may be in Sydney 8 HOURS after production.

There is an under-supply of the finest water 20 feet from the surface, which will at all times ensure a bountiful supply for farm use or irrigation. Most of the land is plain and exceedingly lightly timbered—in fact, it may be said to be ready for the plough.

It is impossible to over-estimate the value of this splendid subdivision. At no time has a more attractive property been offered to the public, and the terms of sale are the most liberal ever offered by the auctioneers, enabling anyone of the most limited capital to become possessed of an allotment, holding, or farm which must become of very great value.

It is generally admitted that these allotments are infinitely more central and better situated than those lately sold by the Government, while the terms in liberality are simply YEARS against cash. To strangers or those unacquainted with Bungendore, we would submit the following for their consideration:—

BUNGENDORE, the present terminus of the railway to Cooma, is distant 40 miles from GOULBURN.

The RAILWAY in a month hence will run daily from Goulburn, making the run in 7 hours from Sydney.

BUNGENDORE, as a township, must ever be a place of great importance, as it is in the centre of a large productive and pastoral district.

The SOIL is of the richest description, and every acre is of the most fertile and productive character.

The SCENERY around is grand in the extreme, and Lake George, which is in the immediate vicinity, and can be seen from various sites of the subdivision, is of surpassing loveliness, extending for miles and as far as the eye can reach, through lofty hills, upland slopes, rich fields, and green pastures. There can be nothing more beautiful or climate more invigorating.

On the LAKE and country adjoining there is excellent fishing and shooting, and every convenience by steam launch and boat for the pleasure-seeker.

Intending purchasers should view the Estate. Thus—by train from Sydney or Goulburn on Saturday to Tarago, thence by coach same night to Bungendore (20 miles), returning on the following day.

On the MORNING of SALE a special train will leave Goulburn, running close to Bungendore, thence by conveyance, returning same night.

The subdivision is by Messrs. Atchison and Sleicher, 92, Pitt-street, Sydney, from whom, or the Auctioneers, plans may be had, free.

TERMS OF SALE.
Under £300, 20 per cent. cash, balance at 6, 12, 18, and 24 months, with 6 per cent. interest added.
Over £300 and under £800, one-fourth cash, balance at 1, 2, and 3 years, with 6 per cent. interest added.
Over £800, one-third cash, balance at 2 and 5 years, with 6 per cent. interest added, or an allowance of 2 per cent. interest for all cash purchases.

For SALE in TWO LOTS, for the convenience of purchasers.

There being about THREE THOUSAND BULLOCKS of FATTENING AGES, besides nearly 800 SPEYED COWS, now ready to take off the station, a very large proportion of the purchase money will be recovered at once, and as store stock is now as much sought after, and commanding such high rates, it renders this a most desirable purchase, and would be especially valuable to those who have fattening runs now requiring re-stocking.

TERMS: One-third cash upon the fall of the hammer, residue by promissory notes at one, two, and three years, bearing interest at 6 per cent., secured on the property.

HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN, Limited, have received instructions from W. C. THE WATER is never failing, abundant, and distributed all over the runs, embracing 20 MILES FRONTAGE to the DUMARESQ RIVER and numerous creeks.

LAND. There are 3526 acres purchased land, and 255 acres applied for. There are also numerous reserves, rendering these runs tolerably secure.

THE CATTLE consist of a very carefully bred SHORT-HORN HERD of about 8500 HEAD, of which there are over 2000 bullocks and 500 speyed cows, over 3 years old.

GOONIAN contains an area of about 128 square miles of splendidly grassed country, with apple-tree flats, box and ironbark ridges, yarran and pine.

THE IMPROVEMENTS include a most complete and comfortable homestead; dwelling-house, 12 rooms, with verandah, kitchen, and all necessary outbuildings; flower and vegetable gardens, orchard, cultivation paddocks, horse and drafting yards; paddock, 500 acres, securely fenced; 4-roomed house, stable, yards, &c., &c.

THE WATER on this run is also abundant and never-failing, including 30 MILES FRONTAGE to the DUMARESQ RIVER, besides numerous good creeks.

LAND. There are 6196 acres freehold land, and 640 acres C. P., besides several reserves, thus securing the run.

THE CATTLE, consisting of about 5500 head, are a very superior HEREFORD herd, and contain about 1200 bullocks, over 3 years old, as well as some 300 speyed cows, which in the present active demand for cattle of fattening ages, would represent a very large and immediate return from the property.

The value of a property like this is so apparent that no comment from the Auctioneers is called for, and the profit from such an investment must necessarily be very large, and WHEN TAKEN AS A WHOLE, it forms a most compact and easily worked station, IT IS CAPABLE of DIVISION, AS ABOVE, EACH PROPERTY BEING COMPLETE IN ITSELF, each being equally well watered, and provided with every requisite for effective and economical working.

Any further particulars required may be obtained on application to the Auctioneers.

HIGHLY-IMPROVED VALUABLE SUBURBAN ESTATE, next FAIRFIELD RAILWAY STATION.

FOR IMPERATIVE SALE, in consequence of the proprietor being about to remove to his recently acquired Estate, the noted GREYSTANES, at Prospect.

That important and beautifully-situated FREEHOLD PROPERTY, known as FAIRFIELD HOUSE and GROUNDS, containing an area of about 27 acres of rich soil, laid out in well-matured gardens, vineyard, orchards, paddocks, &c., immediately adjoining the Fairfield Railway Station.

The property is now in occupation by the owner, A. F. Smart, Esq., J.P., by whom it will be kept up in its present state of excellence until handed over to the purchaser at the coming sale.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from A. F. Smart, Esq., J.P., to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 10th OCTOBER NEXT, AT 11 O'CLOCK, THE ABOVE VALUABLE PROPERTY.

FAIRFIELD ESTATE comprises about 27 acres of rich garden and orchard land, upon which no expense has been spared to bring it into its present high state of cultivation.

During many years thousands of tons of the rich Prospect Creek soil has been carted on to and spread over the land, thus forming a large area of garden grounds not to be surpassed in richness by any estate accessible to Sydney by any of our lines to Sydney.

For years improvements by the planting of trees have been added to the estate, and its present high state of excellence proves beyond question the great care and constant and skilful attention that has been bestowed upon the property by the family of the present proprietor for a period something over 30 years.

The land is bordered on one side by the waters of Prospect Creek, affording an unlimited supply, in addition to which there is a large sheet of water (conserved by an expensively-constructed dam), the contents of which is estimated to be sufficient for irrigating the property, if required, for the next three years. All the other boundaries are well fenced, and are without dispute, the recent negotiation with the Railway Department of the Government having entirely removed a little difficulty which had previously existed.

The land surrounding the house is apportioned as follows, all having been deeply trenched, viz.:—

FLOWER GARDEN
VEGETABLE GARDEN.
THE VINEYARD.—This contains about 5 acres, and is full of long-established vines, bearing grapes both for wine-making and table purposes, all of the choicest description that money could purchase.

THE ORCHARD contains about 3 acres, and is full of well-grown fruit trees of nearly every variety known, from oranges to all sorts of stone fruits, and from apples to guavas, &c.

These portions of the Estate are securely enclosed by paling fences.

The rest of the Estate is subdivided into paddocks for the various purposes connected with the requirements of a gentleman's suburban property.

The IMPROVEMENTS comprise an old fashioned and substantially brick-built FAMILY RESIDENCE, having verandahs nearly all round, and containing dining-room, sitting-room, three bedrooms, and two bathrooms on the ground floor, with kitchen, store, and two bedrooms attached, and on the upper floor there are two other bedrooms; in the principal bedrooms there are linen presses fitted; and the house contains every convenience for the comfort of a gentleman's family. The cellar is large and dry, and there also rooms for the making and storing of wines, the produce of the vineyard. Amongst the other improvements may be mentioned stables, coachhouse, hayloft, corn and chaff rooms, two men's cottages, fowlhouse, piggeries, pigeon-houses, &c., &c.

The whole of the above property is in first-rate order and repair, and will be thus maintained until given up. On one side of the land runs the parish road leading to Liverpool, Parramatta, and surrounding districts, while the other is formed by the boundary of the Great Southern Railway. Within five minutes' walk of the house the George's River can be gained, thus bringing the gentle craft of fishing within the enjoyments to be obtained by the possessor of this truly valuable property.

The owner having determined to devote the whole of his attention for the future to the care and conduct of his extensive estate at Prospect, and the management of his valuable stock, for which he had no room at Fairfield, has placed the above property in the market for bona-fide sale to the highest bidder, and gentlemen seeking a country house, within an easy ride of Sydney by rail, should not lose the opportunity of inspecting FAIRFIELD HOUSE and GROUNDS, for which cards to view by intending purchasers can be obtained at the Rooms.

The Wine-making Plant will go with the property.

Terms, very liberal.

Plan on view.

IN ONE OR MORE LOTS.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the Executors of the late Miss Wainwright to sell by public auction, on the ground, on SATURDAY, 11th October, at 3 o'clock.

The above capital residence and grounds, IN LOTS TO SUIT PURCHASERS.

The COTTAGE is a neat residence of brick cemented on solid stone foundations, slate roof, and contains verandahs front and back, hall, 7 rooms, store and bath rooms, with detached kitchen, scullery, and 2 rooms over. The grounds could be greatly beautified around the homestead; already there are several ornamental trees, and the land in part has been cultivated. A little distant is an excellent 2-stall stable, with coachhouse adjoining, and loft over all. At rear of this are a man's room and laundry.

It will be offered first as a whole, or as follows:—

WELLS-STREET. Lot 1. COTTAGE and LAND, 66 feet frontage
Lot 2. ALLOTMENT, 33 feet frontage, with BUILDING thereon
Lot 3. ALLOTMENT with stable thereon
MARIA-STREET. Lots 4 to 7. FOUR ALLOTMENTS, each 33 feet x 119 feet in depth, all fenced in.

Seeing the nearness of these properties to the new railway station in Goodsell's paddock, the heretofore difficulty of access by slow vehicle or 'bus is got over, and a good demand should set in for houses so conveniently reached from the city, which would doubtless command profitable rentals.

GOVERNMENT RAILWAY POLICY.

RAILWAY TO CIRCULAR QUAY.

The only available Block.

TO CLOSE ACCOUNTS.

127 FEET at the DEEP-WATER WHARF, where the very large steamers of the COMPAGNIES DES MESSAGERIES MARITIMES berth without the aid of jetties.

127 FEET to MACQUARIE-STREET NORTH, immediately adjoining the BLACKWALL WOOL STORES, and extending nearly to the commodious range of Stores erecting for Messrs. Hill, Clark, and Co.

TO WOOL BROKERS, STEVEDORES, BOND WAREHOUSEMEN, MERCHANTS, CAPITALISTS, and SPECULATORS, this grand block of CIRCULAR QUAY and MACQUARIE-STREET FRONTAGE is recommended, as from its good position it would command ready occupancy when buildings are erected; and the proposed EXTENSION OF THE RAILWAY to the CIRCULAR QUAY, coupled with the comprehensive scheme of WHARF IMPROVEMENTS likely to be carried out close by, should certainly make its present acquirement a desirable thing in view of the very largely ENHANCED VALUE SURE TO ACCRUE in a very few years hence.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 17th day of OCTOBER, at 11 o'clock,

The above described EXCEPTIONALLY VALUABLE BLOCK of CIRCULAR QUAY and MACQUARIE-STREET FRONTAGE LAND.

Seeing that this site, on the east side of THE CIRCULAR QUAY, is nearly the only one there obtainable where mercantile premises can now be placed, it must be apparent that in a comparatively short time this site must COMMAND ENORMOUSLY INCREASED VALUE, and also from the fact that the greater part of our foreign and intercolonial shipping trade is carried on AT THE CIRCULAR QUAY, which year by year must demand still further store accommodation.

THE RAILWAY must further develop the importance of the place, as it is proposed to pass this spot on both the MACQUARIE-STREET and CIRCULAR QUAY FRONTAGES, while the Terminus will be very convenient to it.

A RANGE of WAREHOUSES and OFFICES could be so designed as to have INDEPENDENT APPROACHES, viz., CIRCULAR QUAY and MACQUARIE-STREET, thereby at a minimum of outlay the greatest income could be derived from the property.

The attention of buyers is invited to THIS GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY of securing a large double frontage block on which to erect a NOBLE PILE OF BUSINESS PREMISES which would prove a permanent and improving investment.

It is faithfully constructed, and was arranged to secure the most comfort possible for a residence in this favourite and easily reached suburb.

TITLE, TORRENS' ACT.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 17th October, at 11 o'clock,

The above exceptionally well situated first-class residence and grounds, so prominent from occupying the elevated site on the ridge above Milson's Point, from which it is only about five minutes' walk.

CAPRERA is of striking design, built of brick, cemented, on massive stone foundation, slate roof, being enclosed in front by dwarf wall, having iron railing. It is approached up a couple of gently sloping terraces by stone steps leading to a wide verandah, in which is the entrance porch, prettily tiled, and with stained glass windows, introducing through wide door, also having stained glass, to a spacious hall 12 feet wide, from which is a handsome drawing-room, 19 feet square, without the bay window recess, dining-room 22½ feet x 15 feet, study 14 x 12, breakfast room 15 x 15 feet. An easy ascending elegant staircase leads to upper hall, and 4 good bedrooms of similar size to those above named, and dressing room. There is also the stairway rising to a commodious tower room.

The verandah and balcony conveniences are very attractive.

There is also wine cellar in basement, and at rear are pantry, storeroom, kitchen (splendid range), scullery, man's room, with attached fuel shed. A separate stairs takes to an upper large servants' room. In the grounds at rear are roomy fernery and shed.

In the lane at the eastern corner is a weatherboard cottage with verandah, and four rooms, let at 10s per week.

This first-class property was not built for sale, and has been constructed in the best manner under the design and superintendence of the well-known architects Messrs. BLACKMAN and PARKES. The work is substantial and of good quality; the fittings below and main staircase are of picked cedar. The mantelpieces throughout are marble, the drawing-room one being of very chaste pattern, with tiled hearth to match. All the rooms have lofty ceilings.

The position is an elevated one, standing on the apex of the ridge east of the main road, and the house is readily identified by the tower overtopping the adjoining good properties. From CAPRERA is commanded a wide panoramic view of water and landscape, embracing a great stretch of distance, encircling from Military-road at North Shore on to the Lighthouse, coming round and taking in the city, and extending over the western harbour suburbs on to the ranges beyond.

INSPECTION is with pleasure invited, which alone will convey an adequate idea of the attractive features of the situation and comforts of the residence.

The above very valuable freehold property.

This large area of freehold is nearly if not the last block of UNIMPROVED LAND to be obtained in the centre of the most active business portion of the shipping trade, both for imports and exports, connected with the harbour of Port Jackson, and notwithstanding that the railway policy as recently enunciated by the Government does not immediately border on the above block of land, still it cannot fail to cause it to become considerably enhanced in value by the present intention of the Government, or by any direction that the line can be taken to Circular Quay, as it is quite apparent that the present proposal of the Government would be but an incomplete idea, unless a further extension was contemplated to unite both sides of the quay by railway, if not to bring the whole of the Darling Harbour wharfs under the same system of communication.

The subdivision of the above centrally-situated block of land is as follows:

BLOCK 1.—2 corner allotments fronting Pitt-street, of 33 feet 7 inches and 48 feet 7 inches respectively. No. 1 having a frontage also of 69 feet 8 inches to Albert-street, Circular Quay; and No. 2 a similar frontage to Reiby-lane. Nos. 3 to 8 inclusive, each have a frontage of 22 feet to Alfred-street, Circular Quay, by depths of 70 feet to Henrietta-lane.

BLOCK 2.—Lots 9 to 14 inclusive have frontages to Arbitration-street of 20 feet each by depths of 65 feet. Nos. 15 and 16 have like frontages by varying depths. No. 17 is a triangular corner block opposite the opening into Macquarie-place.

BLOCK 3.—Nos. 18 and 24 are triangular blocks, and Nos. 19 to 23 have each 18 feet frontage to Reiby-lane, with varying depths ranging up to nearly 70 feet.

All the 24 Allotments into which the land has been subdivided have DOUBLE FRONTAGES.

A Plan of the subdivision is now ready for inspection, of which copies in lithograph can be obtained on application.

TERMS LIBERAL—One-fourth cash, balance by promissory-notes at 1, 2, and 3 years' date, with 6 per centum per annum interest added; or three-fourths of the purchase money may remain on mortgage for three years at 6 per centum per annum interest, payable half-yearly. MOSS VALE.

THE SANATORIUM OF THE SOUTH.

That beautifully-situated Country Retreat known as PARK HILL, FOR POSITIVE SALE, with 25 acres of improved Grounds, close to the MAIN ARGYLE-ROAD, only 5 minutes' drive from MOSS VALE RAILWAY STATION.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from P. M. GILES, Esq., who is leaving the district, to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, November 7, at 11 o'clock,

That faithfully-built, expensively-finished, and delightfully-situated family residence, known as PARK HILL, in a nice elevation, commanding most extensive and picturesque views, bounded on three sides by public roads a chain wide, and favourably sheltered from the south and west winds.

It has wide verandah all round, and contains spacious hall, 8 lofty rooms, bathroom, kitchen with Leamington range; laundry with copper, fixed tubs, &c.; servants' bedroom, pantry, storeroom, and dairy. Detached are two-stall stables, harness-room, double coachhouse, man's room, and large hay-loft. There is also separate milking yard with cow-bail, vegetable garden, and cultivation paddock.

The water supply (equal to all seasons) is from a very large underground reservoir, with force-pump attached, and also from several iron tanks on the premises. It is laid on to the bathroom, kitchen, and laundry.

The total area of the land is 25 acres, highly improved, and considerably planted with choice ornamental trees, shrubs, &c., and the whole property is dotted over with indigenous trees of handsome growth.

The soil is first-class, being of the trap formation for which this district is so famous.

SUTTON FOREST is becoming the most attractive locality for country residences in the colony. The Government has secured a property within sight of PARK HILL as a country seat for HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR, and it is in the immediate vicinity of the residences of H. E. Kater, Esq., J.P., R. P. Richardson, Esq., J.P., W. Laidley, Esq., J. Little, and others.

Inspection is invited, as the property is for positive sale.

PITT-STREET. PITT-STREET.

RARE OPPORTUNITY.

LEASEHOLD, with option to make FREEHOLD.

TITLE, TORRENS' ACT.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on FRIDAY, 14th November, at 11 o'clock,

All that valuable block of central building land, PITT-STREET, on the eastern side close to PARK-STREET, having a frontage to Pitt-street of 59 FEET 6 INCHES, with the exceptionally good depth of 188¾ feet.

It is next to Messrs. Kearey Brothers' Coach Factory, a little beyond (on the opposite side) the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts, and is occupied by the METROPOLITAN BUILDING ASSOCIATION, and four adjoining shops on the south. There are also various small houses at the rear.

It will be offered on LEASE FOR 28 YEARS, at a ground rent to be fixed by auction; and for the situation and extent of land, the building covenant is reasonable, viz., that £10,000 at least shall be expended in buildings within 2½ years from day of sale.

The special feature of this leasehold is that the lessee is to have the right of purchasing the fee-simple or converting the lease into an ABSOLUTE FREEHOLD TITLE for a sum equivalent to 20 years' rent at any fixed period between the fifth and tenth years, his election of period to be named by him on day of sale.

To MERCHANTS, IMPORTERS, MANUFACTURERS, CAPITALISTS, SPECULATORS, and TRUSTEES.

This sale affords an unusual and FAVOURABLE OPPORTUNITY of acquiring now, at the outlay of a ground rent only, the right to buy (as hereinbefore provided for, in 5 or 10 years hence) at a present known price (determined by the annual rental), THE ABOVE ELIGIBLE CITY PROPERTY.

PITT-STREET is commanding a yearly growing importance. The throng of travellers on foot and by vehicles past this spot, both by day and night, attest the fact that this street is fast running the race for chief place with its neighbour, George-street, to which alone it is second in value.

Who can tell the growth of our commercial industries IN 10 YEARS FROM NOW, when positions like this site in leading thoroughfares will have become, it may be, trebled in value; so in that event the purchaser of this Leasehold—if he elect to buy the Land—will find himself owner of a MAGNIFICENT CITY PROPERTY.

In ordinary cases of Lease the expenditure and increment of largely increased value on expiration revert to the Landlord, but here a Lessee will have the right to secure both FOR HIS OWN BENEFIT.

TERMS AT SALE.

A SPECIAL TRAIN (the first on the new line) has been engaged, and will convey intending purchasers to the estate on day of sale, viz., SATURDAY, 18th OCTOBER NEXT.

INVESTORS are reminded that the ILLAWARRA LINE affords a new outlet for our crowded city POPULATION, and that HURSTVILLE stands FOREMOST as the locality MOST SUITABLE for IMMEDIATE DEVELOPMENT for the following among other reasons, viz.: Its ALTITUDE, RICH SOIL, CHARMING SITUATION, Accessibility (not only at a STATION, but at the TERMINUS of the DOUBLE LINE from Sydney), and from the fact that already CHURCHES, SCHOOLS, STORES, and numerous PRIVATE RESIDENCES centre round the property. In fact, ere long, HURSTVILLE will undoubtedly become a MOST IMPORTANT TOWNSHIP.

Without depreciating the value of other lands likely to come into the market, it is admitted on all sides that "WEST'S PADDOCK" is the creme de la creme of Hurstville. The land is all HIGH, STREETS 66 feet wide, ATMOSPHERE PURE and BRACING, VIEWS GLORIOUS, SURROUNDINGS GOOD, and PROSPECTIVE VALUE IMMENSE.

PLANS will be ready in the course of the MORNING.

All desirous of securing an ALLOTMENT at HURSTVILLE should not miss this chance, for once gone a second "WEST'S PADDOCK" can never be obtained.

HURSTVILLE HEIGHTS.

DALMORTON ESTATE, nearly opposite the HURSTVILLE STATION, facing the RAILWAY LINE, and the MAIN FOREST-ROAD, between PENSHURST PARK and the RAILWAY LINE, within 2 Minutes' EASY WALK of HURSTVILLE STATION.

177 GRAND SITES to choose from, having LARGE FRONTAGES and BIG DEPTHS.

For AUCTION SALE, on the GROUND, the SECOND SATURDAY after the OPENING of the ILLAWARRA LINE, viz., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25 NEXT.

BATT, RODD, and PURVES have received instructions to sell the above splendid Estate by public auction, On the GROUND, the SECOND SATURDAY after the OPENING of the ILLAWARRA RAILWAY, viz., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1884.

DALMORTON ESTATE.

The SITUATION of this splendid Property is ALL THAT CAN BE DESIRED, on the HIGH LAND, within reach of the INVIGORATING Sea Breezes from BOTANY, convenient to the STATION (only a couple of minutes' walk), and facing the Main FOREST-ROAD, and good CHAIN-WIDE STREETS.

DALMORTON ESTATE.

The VIEWS are lovely in the extreme, and embrace BOTANY BAY and HEADS, LADY ROBINSON'S BEACH, GEORGE'S and COOK'S RIVERS, HURSTVILLE, and surrounding country.

DALMORTON ESTATE.

The SURROUNDINGS are of the BEST. The POST and TELEGRAPH OFFICES, CHURCHES, SCHOOLS, and principal STORES centre round the estate, while numerous pretty RESIDENCES and Grounds surround the property.

DALMORTON ESTATE.

The SUBDIVISION has been carried out in a most liberal manner by Mr. Licensed Surveyor C. B. DAWSON, of 88 (late 139), Pitt-street. The ALLOTMENTS, 177 in number, have frontages of from 50 to 197 FEET, by depths of from 137 to 376 FEET, average site, 66 x 165. The STREETS are all 66 feet wide, made and cleared, and the LOTS pegged out and numbered.

DALMORTON ESTATE.

INVESTORS would do well to remember that the ILLAWARRA LINE affords the long-required OUTLET for our surplus City POPULATION; that HURSTVILLE is pre-eminently the locality most ripe for IMMEDIATE SETTLEMENT; and that the DALMORTON ESTATE is one of the PICKED SPOTS of that suburb—at present a suburb, but rapidly becoming an important Township.

It is most suitable for a saw-mill, a ship-building yard, or as a receiving depot for timber intended for market. As a ship-building country the Clyde River is not to be surpassed by any locality, through the excellence and variety of its timbers; and this spot in particular, as close by there is an everlasting supply of fresh water, to which there is an easy access, and there are several sawmills in close proximity.

The second parcel is at a small distance from the first, and most suitable for agriculture. It has an immense frontage to a fresh-water lagoon.

For the convenience of intending purchasers coming by Sydney steamer which leaves on Friday, the sale will not take place until after the arrival of that boat at 11 a.m. on day of sale, thus affording intending purchasers an opportunity to inspect before the sale (the land is only five minutes' distance from the wharf) and return to Sydney by the same boat on the following Monday. WEDNESDAY, 22nd October.

PRELIMINARY ADVERTISEMENT.

The celebrated and well-known FREEHOLD ESTATE known as HARDWICK, 2 miles from Yass Railway Station, one of the oldest and best grants South, containing 2680 acres of the richest pastoral and agricultural land, subdivided into convenient paddocks, with extensive frontage to the Yass River, Comfortable House, Garden, and Orchard.

Immediate inspection invited.

FINLAY and CO., of Goulburn (in conjunction with Messrs. Howell and Newton, of Cooma), have received instructions to sell by auction, at their Rooms, Belmore-square, on WEDNESDAY, 22nd October, at 11 o'clock,

The splendid HARDWICK PROPERTY, immediately adjoining the magnificent Douro Estate, the property of Mrs. Henry O'Brien.

Hardwick for many years was recognised as the most beautiful homestead in the Yass district. The excellence of the country is admitted by every one. Splendidly watered, lovely situation, undulating plains, and open forest.

Gentlemen desirous of securing an estate in the country should inspect this property. A little outlay upon the Homestead and Grounds would render this one of the prettiest homes in the South, while salubrity of the climate, excellence of soil, great stock-carrying capabilities, and proximity to market would make perfect one of the most profitable stock depots or stud farms in the colony for its size. The distance by time is eight hours from Sydney, southern line.

The area submitted will be 2680 acres, but being old grants the land will be found greatly in excess of this, the full benefit of which will pass to the purchaser.

Title unquestionable.

Terms: Quarter cash, balance on execution of the conveyance.

As the property is much valued, arrangements could be made before the sale for a considerable portion of the purchase-money to remain secured upon the property.

Arrangements for inspecting on application to the auctioneers.

MELBOURNE.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, at 12 o'clock.

At the Rooms.

IMPORTANT SALE of CENTRAL CITY PROPERTY situated at the CORNER of ELIZABETH and LATROBE STREETS, comprising NINE TWO-STORY BRICK SHOPS, having a frontage of 156 FEET to ELIZABETH-STREET, by a depth of 132 FEET along LATROBE-STREET.

Producing a Rental of £1150 per annum.

By Order of the Trustees in the Estate of the late H. W. MASON, Esq.

C. J. and T. HAM have received instructions from the trustees of the estate of the late H. W. Mason, Esq., to SELL by PUBLIC AUCTION, on THURSDAY, 16th October, at their Rooms, at 12 o'clock,

That GRAND PROPERTY, being Nos. 225 to 243, ELIZABETH-STREET, as now in the occupation of Messrs. Nathan, Archer, Elliott, Levien, Coppel, Cohen, Thompson, J. Cohen, and Messrs. Searlet and Marr; and also the lime and cement yard fronting LATROBE-STREET, and in the occupation of Mr. Wallis.

This valuable and central city property forms the whole of the original Crown Allotment 11, of Section 9, City of Melbourne.

This exceedingly valuable property occupies one of the most improving positions in the city, as business men are now realising the advantage of securing premises in Elizabeth-street, at the south end of which is the CENTRAL RAILWAY STATION, pouring in its thousands daily from nearly all the southern suburbs, and which forms the outlet to the northern suburbs and the inland towns, a great and rapidly increasing traffic passing the property now to be submitted.

The existing buildings are quite inadequate for even present requirements, a great portion of the land not being utilised to advantage.

The shops are let at low rents on short tenancies, the only one leased being that of Mr. Nathan's, let at £260 per annum, under a five years' lease from 1st February, 1885.

The auctioneers invite the special attention of capitalists to this important sale, being one of the largest blocks of city property ever offered

IN ONE LOT.

Experience in this city and all large centres of population proves that there is no investment equal to that of central city properties, especially in leading thoroughfares, the advance in the capital value being continuous, and the income steady and increasing.

Any capitalist or syndicate securing this magnificent block of land, having a frontage of nearly 300ft. to two leading streets, and erecting thereon buildings worthy of the position, could without doubt double the present income.

For particulars of title, application can be made to James Duerdin, Esq., 105, Collins-street West, and further particulars of the property can be obtained at the rooms of the auctioneers, 46, Swanston-street.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO OUR CUSTOMERS.

You will doubtless have noticed in the daily papers an advertisement or circular of the "Associated Lithgow Collieries" over the signature of "John Warde" as General Manager, requesting the customers of the various collieries to send their orders to him only, on and after the 1st October.
